CABINET CONSIDERS SPEECH

EXTREMISTS HELD IN CHECK

BERLIN, March 5.—There is much speculation regarding the nature of Chancellor Cuno's speech in the Reichstag tomorrow. Some of the organs of the extreme Right go so far as to announce in phraseology of 1917 that Herr Cuno will declare for the necessity of breaking off diplomatic relations with France.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent is informed in reliable quarters that such a step has not been considered for a minute, because it would only strengthen the French position and gain British and American sympathy for France, while the belief is also held that it would certainly lead to Germany's complete military and economic destruction. Chancellor Cuno merely thinks that in talking to the Reichstag his protest against the latest extension of the French occupation might find a stronger echo in the world than if it were in the form of a note to the Paris Government.

Differ on Announcing Offer.

Up to late this evening the members of the Cuno Cabinet had not agreed as to whether his speech to the Reichstag should contain an account of the offer of reparation which Herr von Bergmann would have made at the last Paris conference if, as is alleged, he had not been prevented by President Poincaré. The opposition against making this offer public now is based on the assumption that no matter what its nature might be it would be rejected by French statesmen and the French press in its present mood.

It is likely that Cuno, while asserting—and that assertion will doubtless be backed at present by the whole people—Germany's firm determination to resist to the bitter end, will also make a precise statement of Germany's preparedness to take up negotiations whenever France will really talk reparations, as urged by members of the democratic party and the Centrum.

Cuno, it is believed, will also address some serious words of warning to the extremists of the Right and Left who, with the valor of ignorance and from the security of East Prussian or Bavarian retreats, now daily preach war against France. He will attempt to make it comprehensible to these elements that what they want would mean kindling again the world conflagration, with all the world's sympathy returning to France, and that it would practically mean Germany's suicide.

Ruhr Exhibits at Leipsic Fair.

At the opening of the great Leipsic Fair today the technical part proved most attractive to the 150,000 visitors, of whom about 30,000 were foreigners, because these stalls had mostly been retained by exhibitors from the Ruhr district. Most of these exhibitors had succeeded in removing the machinery and other articles to be shown just before the French invasion began. Still, a number of the stalls remained empty because, as was explained by persons employed for that purpose, the French troops had stopped exhibits en route or prevented agents of the exhibiting firms from leaving the Ruhr.

Some of the Ruhr exhibitors are telling very adventurous stories of how they managed to evade French vigilance in disguises, often endangering life and liberty. A group started from the Ruhr six in number, it is said, but only one reached Leipsic, the others being arrested by French soldiers under some pretence or other. Some of these stories are considered to be exaggerated.

Today the exhibitors from the Ruhr met at the Leipsic Chamber of Commerce and directed an appeal to unoccupied Germany "begging that the fear of risk may not induce it to forsake commerce, the banks and other public organs in the Ruhr district." This was their only apprehension, while they had no doubt as to "the men at the front doing their duty to the end."

BERLIN, March 5.—The German Cabinet tonight approved a speech in which Chancellor Cuno tomorrow will appeal for the intervention of all disinterested nations to make possible negotiations for the settlement of the Ruhr question.

After discussions lasting until a late hour tonight, the Cabinet consented to allow Herr Cuno to declare that Germany is still ready to fulfill its reparations obligations to the best of its ability, but only under certain conditions, including that its representatives enter a parley on a basis of complete equality. Herr Cuno will demand that the Ruhr

American Birth Rate Declines While Death Rate Increases

WASHINGTON, March 5.—A decline in the birth rate and an increase in the death rate during the first nine months of 1922 were shown in provisional Census Bureau figures made public today by the Department of Commerce.

The mortality rate ranged from 7.5 in Idaho to 14.3 in Maine and averaged 11.7 in the States from which statistics were taken for each 1,000 of population in the period, as compared with an 11.6 average in the the same period in 1921.

Births on the other hand ranged from 18.3 per 1,000 of population in the State of Washington to 30 in North Carolina, and averaged 22.8 in the first nine months of 1922, as compared with an average of 25 in the same period in 1921.

ROME, March 5.—The attention of press and public is concentrated on the attempted theft Saturday night at the German Embassy accredited to the Quirinal and on speculation as to its real object.

The story is indeed a remarkable one and presents many points which need explaining. If one saw the whole burglary reenacted in the movies one would be tempted to pass remarks about the way in which present-day playwrights allow their fancies to run away with them. The extraordinary features are well brought out in a statement made public this afternoon by the German Embassy.

The statement says that for months before the burglary suspicious characters were seen hanging around the embassy premises. Men dressed in the uniforms of the Royal Carabiniers were discovered in the embassy gardens, where they had penetrated by unknown means, telescopes were continually focussed upon the windows of the embassy from the roofs of neighboring houses, attempts were made to extract information from the embassy staff and servants, the Ambassador, Baron von Neurath, his family and secretaries were constantly shadowed by unknown persons wherever they went.

Thieves Gave Rocket Signal.

Alarmed by these developments, the Ambassador ordered that all his documents be removed from the safe where they were usually kept and that worthless paper be put in their plac. He also had a conspicuous sum of, money placed in the safe.

Finally on the night of the burglary a large band of men drove up to the gates of the Embassy gardens in motor cars and penetrated into the grounds after a colored sky rocket had gone up as a signal. About a dozen men surrounded the Embassy while four entered with false keys and proceeded straight to the safe, which they opened with ease.

The robbers did not touch the money but seized two leather cases, which looked as if they contained official documents. They were preparing to escape when they were faced by the Ambassador, his secretary and all the Embassy staff, who covered them with firearms and ordered them to surrender. Apparently the Ambassador and his party had heard the burglars enter but made no effort to interfere with them until they had opened the safe, in order to see what they would steal—money or documents.

Pistol Battle in the Dark.

Instead of surrendering, the four burglars who were nearest, whipping out revolvers, started shooting. Their fire was returned by the staff of the embassy. Many revolver shots were exchanged, but as the whole affair took place in darkness there were only two victims.

The First Secretary of the Embassy was wounded in the hip and one of the burglars in the foot and face. Another burglar was overpowered and captured and a third was arrested by the police, who had been summoned by telephone. The fourth of the chief burglars and the men who had remained outside in the gardens made good their escape.

The Ambassador kept his two prisoners all night and only gave them over the next morning to a representative of the Italian Foreign Ministry. One of them on being questioned by the police confessed that he was the leader of the

BONAR LAW BEATEN TWICE IN ELECTIONS; SEEKS NEW LINE UP

OLD TORIES' AID IS SOUGHT

HOUSING CAUSED UPSETS

Vacillation on Rents and Policy on the Ruhr Were the Issues Involved.

LONDON, March 5.—Premier Bonar Law's Government has received another severe shock. Sir Arthur Griffith-Boscawen, Minister of Health, was declared defeated today in the Mitcham bye-election on Saturday by J. Chuter Ede, the Labor candidate, by 883 votes. Coming as this does immediately after the defeat of Lieut. Col. the Hon. George F. Stanley, Under Secretary of the Home Department, at East Willesden on Saturday, it shows that not even the safest Government seats are proof against a determined attack, and there are apprehensions in Conservative circles that Major J. W. Hills, Financial Secretary of the Treasury, who goes to the polls in Liverpool tomorrow, can now no longer count on what looked like a certain victory.

Both Boscawen and Stanley offered their resignations this evening to Premier Bonar Law.

The question of housing has been the main cause of the Government's double defeat. During the war an act was passed restricting rents. The time has now come to decontrol, but there has been much anxiety among the middle classes as to the moment and method by which it will be accomplished. Hardship to individuals it will be impossible to avoid, but one way to reduce this to a minimum would be to make the plans some time in advance and to make public an announcement concerning them. This the Government has failed to do.

It first permitted conflicting statements as to its intentions to be given out, and then when Mr. Bonar Law in the House of Commons named June of next year as the date for the general decontrol he added the proviso: "Unless either House of Parliament passes a resolution continuing the rent restrictions."

This ambiguity and uncertainty told heavily against the Government candidates. Their opponents argued that the Government by its wabbling was making a difficult job more difficult.

Policy on Ruhr Also Attacked.

An important subsidiary cause of Boscawen's defeat was the dissatisfaction of a considerable section of the Conservative electorate with the Government's reparation policy. The Minister of Health had to run not only against the Labor and Liberal candidates but also against J. T. Catterall, an Independent Conservative. Catterall attacked Boscawen not only on the rent decontrol but also because Great Britain was holding aloof from the French advance in the Ruhr. He polled 2,684 votes, most of which would probably have gone to Boscawen and thus have given him a comfortable margin over the Labor candidate.

During the campaign there were allegations that Lord Rothermere was behind Catterall, but both Rothermere and Catterall denied it. But there is no doubt that the ceaseless attacks made by Rothermere's newspapers on Mr. Bonar Law's reparation policy have done much to shake the prestige of the Government among certain classes which the Conservatives have always considered peculiarly their own.

Labor's victory in Mitcham is very unwelcome to the Liberals. It was they who captured East Willesden on Saturday from the Conservatives, and their victory gave a marked impetus to the movement for reunion of the two Liberal wings, but at Mitcham the Liberals did worse than the Conservatives, losing 2,864 votes, while the decline in the combined Conservative votes was only 1,054. Moreover, in this middle class constituency Labor polled 8,029. Such results show how Labor is increasing its hold on the community and is ceasing to be the party of any one social class.

This Is Boscawen's Fifth Defeat.

LONDON, March 5.—A smashing blow was dealt to the Bonar Law Government today by the announcement of the defeat of Minister of Health Sir Arthur Griffith-Boscawen at the Mocham election, when J. Chuter Ede, a Laborite, won what is considered a "safe" Conservative seat by a majority of 832. In the last election here the Conservatives had a majority of 5,036.

This is Sir Arthur's fifth defeat, and

BERLIN, March 5.—The coal war in the Ruhr, as some of the German newspapers term the Franco-German dispute, has found a curious echo in the air.

During the last few days experiments with a new system of wireless telephoning were made from a new sending station near Berlin. This morning letters from Holland and Switzerland brought news that the German electric waves did not progress on their mission without fierce opposition from the Eiffel Tower in Paris.

A Swiss correspondent wrote:

"Soon after your description of the Ruhr invasion began the Eiffel Tower began a French version on the same subject but with an intensity that drowned your lecture completely. When you began with gramophone records the Eiffel Tower immediately followed your example."

A Dutchman reports as follows:

"Every word of your lady singer's songs was distinctly audible. When you began singing 'Deutschland ueber Alles,' however, the Eiffel Tower sent out one long continued howl that made me think it was done purposely."

President and His Party Start for Florida; Mrs. Harding's First Outing Since Illness

Special to The New York Times.

ON BOARD PRESIDENT HARDING'S SPECIAL TRAIN FOR FLORIDA, March 5.—For the first time since his inauguration two years ago President Harding is now on a real vacation, freed from the necessity of keeping in touch with the uncertainties of Congress, the pleadings of job hunters and their friends, industrial troubles and all but the most important routine of the Executive office that cannot be carried on without his sanction.

The President left Washington this noon with Mrs. Harding and a party of friends for a four or five weeks' houseboat cruise on the inland waterways between St. Augustine and Miami. The purpose of the trip is to build up Mrs. Harding's health with absolute quiet and Florida sunshine. Today she stepped outside of the White House for the first time since her serious illness last September. Her pleasure was obvious in anticipation of the trip.

The White House party avoided the crowds gathered at the Union Station by driving to the yards, where it was only a step from the automobile to the Presidential private car. Mrs. Harding stood on the rear platform as the train left and waved at the police and yard workers. In the crowd outside the station was the group of amnesty pickets who have stood outside the White House gates since last Summer, with banners and placards urging the release of Federal "political" prisoners, but they did not gain admittance to the train shed.

Attorney General Daugherty, who was forced to give up all work last January on account of failing health, left his sick bed to accompany the Presidential party to Florida. On the train he went immediately to his stateroom and retired.

The President's special train is due to arrive at Ormond tomorrow at noon. Here will be waiting Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. McLean, hosts on the houseboat cruise.

Others in the Presidential party are A. D. Lasker, Brig. Gen. C. E. Sawyer, George B. Christian, Secretary and Mrs. Weeks, who will leave the train at St. Augustine; Secretary Davis, Senator and Mrs. Frelinghuysen, Senator Hale, and Judge John Barton Payne.

In addition to the proposed Alaska trip, it is said the President and Mrs. Harding may also go to Panama, but no plans have been made.

'HUMAN FLY' FALLS 10 STORIES TO DEATH

THOUSANDS SEE PLUNGE

Steeplejack's Bride in Broadway Crowd That Witnesses Tragedy —Was to Have Received $100.

The astonishment of a large crowd of men and women turned to dismay yesterday when, ten stories up the sheer wall of the Martinique Hotel, Harry F. Young, steeplejack, or "human fly," missed his grip by a fraction of an inch or so and fell. He died a few moments later.

Young was scaling the Broadway side of the Martinique as a publicity stunt for Harold Lloyd's latest screen comedy, "Safety Last," and Greely Square was jammed with thousands of men and women tense in the anticipation of a successful climb.

Young began his climb during the noon hour, when the Thirty-fourth Street shopping district was most crowded, for the Pathé Exchange, which releases Lloyd's pictures, wanted the greatest possible number of persons in the picture. Painted in large letters on the back of Young's shirt were the words, "Safety Last."

Wife Sees Him Fall.

Most anxious in the crowd was Young's wife of two months, a pretty bobbed-hair girl of about 20.

Frequently, in order to give the crowd, which by this time filled the street below, an extra thrill, Young seemed purposely to let his foot slip, holding tightly to the coping, however. There were gasps below, and Young climbed on. Up, up he climbed, resembling a giant moth, but his figure growing less and less conspicuous as it faded into perpendicular distance.

In his ascent Young walked along the fourth-floor ledge from the north end of the hotel to the middle and commenced climbing diagonally south from that point.

Hundreds more could see him there who couldn't before. Three camera men were on the fourteenth floor, and a motion-picture cameraman was on the roof. The machines clicked repeatedly as he went higher and higher. It was their chance to get photographs of what Lloyd was called upon to do in his newest release.

Finally, Young reached the ledge of the tenth floor. Necks were craning and Greeley Square seemed strangely silent. He made the eleventh story. People stood thrilled, their heads thrown further and further backward. Young's foot slipped. They thought he was again making believe, but in an instant they learned their mistake. For an incredible moment Young seemed to stand in space, then his white form came crashing down onto a coping and went in a quick plunge to the sidewalk. A prolonged "Ah!" went up from the crowd.

Police Sergeant Gross, who was trying to get the spectators to "move on" from the sidewalk to which Young was falling, pushed several women out of the way just in time to save them from probable serious injury or death. An ambulance call was sent in, but when the ambulance arrived from Bellevue a half hour later Young had performed his last stunt.

Just before the climb, Young and his wife had luncheon at the Martinique. Jack Walsh, house detective of the Martinique, with whom Young had inspected the building last Friday for pitfalls, asked him, he said later, if he should have a room and bath ready so the steeplejack might wash up after completing the climb.

"If I do it, have the bath ready," was Young's reply. "If I don't, get a shovel."

Police Refused Him Permission.

Walsh also revealed that Young was to have scaled the wall on Saturday, but the police refused him permission on account of Saturday's traffic congestion.

Before starting the climb, Young signed a paper releasing the Pathe Exchange, Inc., "from any claim for personal injury to or death of the undersigned in connection with the climbing of the outside walls of the Hotel Martinique."

Walsh said that Young was to have received $100 for his services.

In Young's pocket was found a card which gave his name and address and added: "Work guaranteed on flagstaffs, church steeples, water tanks and impossible places to reach. America's unique and original steeplejack and stuntist." He and Mrs. Young lived at 415 East 146th Street, having moved there last Saturday. He was 23 years old.

AUTOS KILL 5 BOYS, TWO UNIDENTIFIED

BRAKE SQUAD IS ACTIVE

Five small boys were killed by automobiles yesterday, all in Manhattan streets. In each case the police placed a technical charge of homicide against the chauffeur. Stirred by the deaths, members of the Brake Squad of the Police Bureau of Public Safety served thirty-five summonses for defective brakes.

Two of the young victims died almost at the same time in Harlem streets, and two of the others, one a negro lad of about 12 years and the other a blue-eyed boy about 7 years old and seemingly of Irish extraction, were unidentified up to late last night.

John Green, 10 years old, who lived in an apartment house at Bradhurst Avenue and 146th Street, was roller skating along Bradhurst Avenue when he was struck by an automobile delivery truck owned by the Wallach Laundry Company of 330 East Fifty-ninth Street. The truck was operated by Frank Serefella, 27 years old, of 419 East Eighty-sixth Street.

According to the police version of Serefella's story, he slowed down his truck when he saw the crooked course of the young skater, and tried to halt when the boy suddenly skated in front of his vehicle. Serefella said that he was unable to stop and the truck passed over the boy. Policeman McCahell of the West 135th Street Station was in a patrol wagon directly back of the truck and summoned Dr. McNab from Harlem Hospital, who said the boy had died from a fractured skull and internal injuries. Serafella was taken to the West 135th Street Station.

Ralph Sevilla, 10 years old, was run down and killed in front of his home at 1 West 112th Street by an automobile owned and operated by Thomas P. Tunney, 30 years old, of 111 Bank Street. The police said that Tunney explained that the boy had run directly in the path of his machine so suddenly that he could not stop in time. Policeman Hayes of Traffic Squad B arrested Tunney on a technical charge of homicide.

Wanted to See Funeral.

His desire to catch a glimpse of the funeral of his playmate, who died a few days ago, caused the death of "Teddy" Walneuk, 5 years old, of 416 East Ninth Street. The boy was running to catch up with the funeral procession, which had just started from the former home of Joseph Dialosa, 5 years old, at 433 East Ninth Street, when he was struck and killed by an automobile which the police said was driven by Joseph Fotia of 211 East 103d Street. The boy was carried into a drug store at 141 First Avenue, but died before the arrival of a surgeon. Fotia was taken to the Fifth Street Station.

Harry Goldburg, 23 years old, of 1,015 Tiffany Street, Brooklyn was driving his taxicab, with two fares aboard, south in Madison Avenue at 130th Street when a negro boy, about 12 years old, dropped from the back of a northbound Madison Avenue trolley car. The boy, according to Goldburg's account of the accident, ran in front of the taxi and was hit before the chauffeur could jam down his brake pedal. Goldburg picked up the boy and hurried to Harlem Hospital, where the youthful victim died at 6:45 o'clock last night. Goldburg was taken to the East 126th Street Station.

The second unidentified victim was killed by an automobile moving van as he was crossing Fifty-fourth Street at Ninth Avenue. The boy had just left the sidewalk and the moving van, going west in Fifty-fourth Street, in charge of William Staack, 26 year old, of 12 Fiftieth Street, Corona, L. I., struck him with such force that he was thrown back on the sidewalk.

Staack leaped from his seat and gathered the small body in his arms. He said that as he did so he heard a childish voice shout "my brother," but when he turned to the group of children from which the voice seemed to come, the youngsters ran away frightened.

PRESIDENT STARTS CAMPAIGN TO PUSH WORLD COURT PLAN

Letter to Ohio Is Regarded as Sign That He Will Use Every Occasion to Urge Proposal.

CANNOT BUT JOIN, HE SAYS

HIS MOVE WAS NOT HASTY

But Was Put Forward With Conviction That It Was Our Duty to Aid Great Project.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—In a letter written to Lieut. Gov. Bloom of Ohio, President Harding has reiterated his proposal that the United States should become a full-fledged member of the Permanent Court of International Justice, established by the League of Nations at The Hague. The President makes no reference to the refusal of the Senate to give the sanction for which he asked to enable the United States to participate in the world court, but his letter is full of striking sentences which by interference show that the Senate's attitude has had no effect on his purpose of bringing this Government into the League's tribunal founded to lessen the danger of war.

The occasion of the President's letter was a resolution adopted by the Ohio Senate endorsing his proposal of American participation in the court. The resolution praised the President for "courage and statesmanship." In his letter to Lieut. Gov. Bloom, made public here today, the President says:

"It is inconceivable to me that the American people, who have long been devoted to this ideal, should refuse their adherence now to such a program as is represented by this tribunal."

The letter is regarded as significant of the purpose of President Harding to devote every possible occasion during the nine months' recess of Congress to keeping his proposal before the American people. This is his first utterance since the final rebuff of the World Court proposal by the Senate on Friday. It is the expectation here that in his trip across the continent on his way to Alaska this Summer he will make several speeches calling or popular support of his recommendation to the Senate that American participation in the court be sanctioned by that body.

Text of the President's Letter.

"My Dear Governor Bloom: In the press of business incident to the conclusion of the Congress session there comes to me today a copy of Senate Resolution 44, Eighty-fifth General Assembly, State of Ohio, entitled, 'A resolution extending to President Harding the commendation of the Ohio Senate for his courageous stand in favor of an International Court of Justice.' The resolution reads:

Whereas President Harding has shown his courage and statesmanship by recommending that the United States be represented on the International Court of Justice which is a continuance in permanent form of the old Hague Tribunal, and

Whereas President Harding is entitled to great consideration because of the deliberation that he has displayed before giving his final approval to such steps, therefore

Be it resolved by the Senate of the State of Ohio that this body on behalf of the people of the State of Ohio hereby extend to President Harding its commendation for the courage and wisdom he has shown and its best wishes for the favorable consummation of his statesmanlike proposal.

Be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be forwarded by the Clerk of the Senate to the President of the United States and the President of the Senate and Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Acted With Matured Deliberation.

"I wish to tell you, and through your official capacity to inform the members of the Ohio Senate, of the especial satisfaction it has given me to receive this testimony of approval and of valued support from a body of which I was for a long time a member. I feel that the adhesion of our country to the program and purposes of the Court of International Justice would represent a

San Francisco Quake Victim Lived 17 Years in a Boiler

SAN FRANCISCO, March 5.—John McKenzie, driven into a discarded boiler in a vacant lot by the great fire and earthquake of 1906, has been driven from his junk yard home of seventeen years by another fire. The last blaze put him in a hospital.

McKenzie, a retired sea captain, was found on the street with his clothes burning. At the hospital, when questioned concerning the location of his burning residence, he told of the spot where investigators found the abandoned boiler fitted up with a bed and a bathtub.

McKenzie said that after three sleepless nights during the great fire he had crawled into the boiler and made his bed on the bricks still warm from the fire. He had stayed there ever since. He will recover from his burns, and so will Patrolman Callahan, who was severely injured in saving the old man's life.

BILLION PHONE CO. TO TOP U. S. STEEL

NO OFFERING TO THE PUBLIC

Net Income in 1922 of $66,170,428, or $11.14 a Share, the Highest on Record.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company proposes to increase its capital stock from the present authorized total of $750,000,000 to $1,000,000,000, according to announcement yesterday by President H. B. Thayer. If approved by stockholders, who will meet on March 27, this will make the company the largest corporation in the United States, the United States Steel Corporation, the company of largest authorized capital stock at the present time, being capitalized at $950,000,000. There will be no public offering of the proposed new stock, the company needing it to meet commitments already entered upon and for conversion of bonds.

The proposed step follows a record of steadily increasing earnings since 1900, when the Bell lines were consolidated under the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. An example of this growth was shown yesterday in the company's report of earnings for 1922, net income having reached the new record figure of $66,170,428, against $54,002,704 the previous year and against the comparatively modest figure of $5,456,058 in 1900. With the exception of two years—1908 and 1914—net income has shown a progressive increase. The company's earnings were equivalent to $11.14 a share on the $594,609,500 of stock outstanding, compared with $11.10 the previous year on $488,477,500 of stock outstanding.

No Stock Offering This Year.

President Thayer has stated that no new stock offering is contemplated in 1923. The additional stock, he said, is needed to meet commitments under the offer made stockholders on Aug. 24 last; for conversion of convertible bonds and for subscriptions already made under the employes' stock plan. A summary of Mr. Thayer's report to stockholders follows::

It was in general a year of steady accomplishments in the undertakings of the Bell System but marked by a sensational demand in many sections for telephone service. More than $185,000,000 was expended in additions to plant and in the three and a half years since the property of the Bell System was turned back by the Government, more has been spent in plant additions than in the ten years preceding the war and at the same time many improvements in apparatus and methods have been introduced. During the year 1922 over 600,000 stations were added to the Bell System, a larger increase than in any preceding year, bringing the total to more than 14,000,000. Continued progress was made in the construction of the plant which would be free from storm damage, over 64 per cent. of the wires of the Bell System being now underground.

Equity Represented by Stock.

ALBANY, March 5.—The Senate tonight advanced to third reading three of the so-called Lockwood Housing bills, two of them being measures drawn and advocated by Samuel Untermyer.

The housing bills advanced by the Senate, sitting as a committee of the whole, were those giving to the State a monopoly in compensation insurance by the elimination of casualty and mutual insurance; making labor organizations subject to regulation by the State and providing penalties for illicit practices by unions affiliated with the building trades; providing for State supervision of the New York Stock Exchange and other exchanges to prevent frauds in stock transactions, and the Cotille bill providing for the incorporation of the New York Stock Exchange and its supervision by the State Superintendent of Banks was also advanced.

After disposing of these bills, the Senate, as a Committee of the Whole, also advanced to third reading the Walker bill providing for the reorganization of direct primaries as a means of nominating all candidates, including those for State offices and the Supreme Court, and abolishing official State and judiciary conventions.

The Walker home rule amendment to the Constitution which, if adopted this year, would go to the voters for ratification next Fall was also advanced. It provides that the Legislature may vest in municipalities power to enact and adopt their own charters without interference by the Legislature.

Action on the Lockwood and the other bills was taken after the Senate had first refused to advance to third reading any of the six Lockwood committee measures reported by the Judiciary Committee without recommendation. The first vote was reconsidered, and in the subsequent voting there failed to pass the Untermyer bill creating a State Trade Commission, after Senator Walker had declared that in view of the failure to include the Dairymen's League and organizations among farmers formed for price-fixing purposes he could not see his way clear to vote for it.

The bill which would prevent life and fire insurance companies from investing in stocks and bonds, except those issued by Federal and State Governments or municipalities also failed to pass.

Democrats supported and Republicans opposed the advancement of the Lockwood bills. Those which failed of advancement still remain on the calendar.

NEW CHARTER DRAFT TURNS CITY SCHOOLS OVER TO THE STATE

COSTS TO BE MET HERE

PUTS CURB ON SUBWAYS

Courts to Pass on Projects for More Than $50,000,000—Craig Pushing His Minority Report.

A proposal for the transfer to the State of complete power over New York City's school system as a State school district and a part of the State's educational system will be made in the charter to be submitted by the majority report of the Charter Revision Commission. The city would still have to pay for the schools under this arrangement and details of the appointment of a Board of Education would be left to separate legislation. The College of the City of New York and Hunter College would be excepted and remain under city control.

This became known yesterday at the meeting of the commission in the Bar Association Building, 42 West Forty-fourth Street. After the draft of the charter had been approved by a majority of the commission, Controller Charles L. Craig announced that his own "home rule" or "birch bark" charter would be submitted to the Legislature in a minority report.

The proposed majority report charter also imposes a decided limitation upon the city's power to build and operate future subways by providing that the city must obtain court approval, after investigation by a commission of disinterested citizens, before the operation of any revenue-producing improvement involving the investment of more than $50,000,000 is begun.

"Backed by Best Opinion."

On the subject of the school system, the report says:

The best opinions of those who have had adequate opportunity to observe the management and operation of the educational system of the city appear to favor the incorporation of the school system proper in the State system, rather than the maintenance of a separate city system. The commission has adopted this view and has provided in the proposed charter that the territory of the city shall constitute a school district, distinct from the city considered as a public corporation. This accords with the policy of the present law which, the commission may assume, represents the considered judgment of the Legislature.

On the other hand, the proposed charter provides for the support of the schools by the city, except for contributions which may be made by the State. It is required that each annual educational budget (which in the first instance is to be prepared by the Board of Education) shall provide for the necessary expense of maintaining the city schools upon at least the same level of service as that then currently existing, but leaves to the discretion of the city authorities additional and emergency appropriations. Funds appropriated for existing service are to be subject to the unrestricted control of the Board of Education. This does not differ in substance from the present arrangement.

The accompanying draft of charter does provide, however, that the educational budget shall at all stages remain separate from the city budget proper, and that the school tax shall be extended and shall appear upon tax bills and tax receipts in distinct segregated amounts. This is for the purpose of compelling not only the city authorities but the Board of Education, the Legislature and the public to recognize the precise extent of the provision made and of the burden assumed for ordinary school purposes.

The commission recommends that the College of the City of New York and Hunter College of the City of New York be left, so far as appropriations and taxation therefor are concerned, under the jurisdiction of the city. These institutions are not in a true sense parts of the public school system for which the Constitution imposes responsibility upon the Legislature; nor has the State any peculiar interest which dictates the assertion by it of control over them. Upon the contrary, they are peculiarly the concern of the city, and in the opinion of the commission the city should be permitted to determine for itself the extent to which their usefulness justifies their cost or warrants increasing it. The city is filled with their graduates, many of them occupying positions of influence, and no apprehension need be felt that these institutions will not be justly or adequately cared for.

The Board of Education, now appointed by the Mayor, is to be appointed by some method to be fixed by the Legislature in a separate bill.

The majority report and the charter favored by the majority were made public at the meeting, but Henry de Forest Baldwin, Chairman of the commission, said the necessity of making technical corrections and getting the charter into legislative form would probably make it impossible to submit it to the Legislature for several weeks. Mr. Craig's charter, which was said to differ little from the first draft made while he was on a hunting trip in Canada, will be ready within a week, puts all public utilities under city control and provides more complete home rule than the charter to be proposed by the majority report.

It was learned that a motion would probably be made to put through Mr. Craig's charter. Mayor Hylan, who with Borough President Edward Riegelmann of Brooklyn is a member of the commission, is not expected to sign either the majority or the minority report.

"He will have his chance when the bill comes to him," Mr. Craig said after the meeting, referring to the requirement that all city bills must go to the Mayor for approval or disapproval.

None of the three city officials mentioned has been attending recent sessions of the Charter Revision Commission which was appointed by Governor Miller. Mr. Craig appeared there yesterday, apparently to be recorded in the action taken on the final report. Mr. Craig moved to substitute his charter for that of the majority and was the only one to vote for the motion. The majority charter was then passed by the vote of the following members, with Mr. Craig the only one in the negative:

H. De Forest Baldwin, Lewis L. Delafield, H. Pushas Williams, Edward M. Bassett, George Cromwell, Arthur S. Somers, Joseph S. Levine, Herman A. Metz, Professor Howard McBain and Alderman John J. Keller.

It was explained that William Barclay Parsons was unable to be present, but would sign the majority report.

The charter to be proposed by the majority of the commission is not to be effective, if enacted and accepted by the city, until Jan. 1, 1926, the day after the present City Administration will go out of office. Provision also is made for its submission to the voters of the city in a referendum.

Powers of the City.

In its report the proposed powers of the city, the Board of Estimate and the Board of Aldermen jointly are summarized as follows:

"The school system, not including the College of the City of New York or Hunter College of the City of New York, is left, except with respect to taxation, to be dealt with by the Legislature as a part of the State educational system.

"Certain boards, officers and departments may not be abolished or stripped of essential powers. These include the Board of Aldermen, the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, elective and constitutional officers, the Municipal Civil Service Commission, the Departments of Police, Pensions and Taxes and their respective commissioners, the Board of Review (dealing with taxes and assessments), Judges, the Corporation Counsel, Chamberlain and Commissioner of Inquiry.

"The regulation of the rates and practices of public service corporations is restricted to such services and matters as shall not be regulated by State or nation.

"While the powers to construct and acquire revenue-producing improvements and to lease them for operation by others are not limited, the power of the city directly to operate such improvements is limited, substantially, to the exercise of such powers as it now possesses and such as hereafter may be conferred upon it by the Legislature.

Pay-as-You-Go Policy.

"The powers to contract and refund long-term debt are limited and a pay-as-you-go policy is otherwise enforced by numerous provisions with respect to the budget, the collection of taxes, the administration of pension funds and the constitution of the sinking funds.

"The method of exercising the powers of taxation, eminent domain and assessment of benefits, severally, is prescribed as to essentials.

"The city's powers are distributed, for purposes of exercise, between various officers, boards and departments as indicated below, but, except as stated, all such powers may be exercised, redistributed or assumed by the Board of Aldermen or the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, or by the two boards acting in conjunction.

"The powers conferred upon the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, acting alone, comprise:

"Control of the official and departmental organization and the transfer of powers from one municipal authority to another; the transfer of unused budgetary appropriations to other purposes sanctioned by the budget.

"Authorization of all street-openings and improvements and of all other public, including local, improvements, except such as may cost, severally, more than $500,000; authorization of the condemnation of excess lands.

"Authorization of stock and bond issues, except any such as may exceed $50,000,000 for a single purpose; authorization of refunding operations.

"Control and management of city property, including water-front property, and of the sinking funds.

"Control of the operation of such revenue-producing improvements as the city is empowered to operate.

"The granting of franchises, control of the use of streets by public service companies, unless the subject has been taken over by the State or Federal Governments, the regulation of their rates and practices.

"The auditing and compromise of claims and the initiation, defense and settlement of legal proceedings.

Joint Powers Defined.

"The powers which are to be exercised by the Board of Aldermen and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment in conjunction are the following:

"The creation and definition of the constitution and powers of local improvement boards.

"The authorization of public, including local, improvements (except street improvements) costing in excess of $500,000, severally; the establishment and maintenance of street and park opening and other reserve funds.

"Cession of city property to the State or to the United States.

"The determination of the number and the salaries of officials (with a few specified exceptions) and of all employes to be maintained by the city treasury.

"Authorization of stock and bond issues, in cases in which the issue (for any single purpose) exceeds $50,000,000.

"The authorization, subject to prescribed safeguards, of the operation or lease by the city of revenue-producing improvements.

"Supervision of pension, retirement and similar funds and the inauguration of a consolidated system.

Election of Aldermen.

The report says that a majority of the commission favor a system of proportional representation in the election of Aldermen, but expresses belief that such a requirement in the charter would be successfully attacked as unconstitutional. The commission adds that it will submit a draft of a concurrent resolution to an amendment to the Constitution to permit the Legislature to require this method of election in cities or permit the cities to adopt it voluntarily.

In discussing the power granted the city over public utilities the report says:

"The proposed charter grants to the city practically unlimited power to construct and otherwise acquire revenue-producing improvements.

"The proposed charter, however, contains checks upon the exercise of all such powers, whether heretofore or hereafter granted. It seems reasonable, considering the difficulties under which a municipality labors in the operation of public utilities, and the opportunity for political abuse which is inherent in any such undertaking, that, before the city shall have the right to enter upon any such enterprise upon a very large scale, the consequences shall be ascertained as far as practicable and that there shall be a ground for believing that the undertaking will not be disastrous. For these reasons the accompanying draft of charter provides that before the operation of any revenue producing improvement involving an investment of more than $50,000,000 for a single purpose shall be entered upon it shall be judicially determined, after investigation by a competent commission of disinterested citizens, that the proposed enterprise probably will be self-supporting, taking its entire life into consideration, and that both the Board of Estimate and Apportionment and the Board of Aldermen shall determine that the proposal is wise."

TELLS OF TRAILING STOLEN PERMIT RUM

HIGH OFFICIAL TO TESTIFY

The pursuit of a truck load of liquor across three States, after the liquor had been withdrawn from a warehouse in Boston on one of the permits stolen from the office of the Prohibition Director in New York, was described yesterday at the trial of former Prohibition Director Harold L. Hart, William A. Orr and others, charged with conspiracy to defraud the Government through manipulation of stolen permits. The liquor trailed is alleged to have been received by the Central Drug Company, 721 Seventh Avenue.

Ten barrels of whisky were withdrawn on permit No. 247,086 of the stolen series, from the Quincy Cold Storage Company, Boston, on Aug. 23, 1921, according to William P. Meehan, a truckman, who testified that he trucked the liquor from the warehouse to the Central Drug Company, one of the corporate defendants under the conspiracy indictment.

On the day that liquor was withdrawn, Dominick L. Yudrovich, prohibition agent in the office of the Federal Director in Boston, was instructed to check up the shipment. He testified that he went to the warehouse, where he was introduced to Meehan by Randolph Rose, a clerk, who testified at the hearing last week.

Yudrovich said that after watching Meehan start for New York with the truck load of liquor he and another prohibition agent got a small automobile and started in pursuit. They trailed it through Massachusetts, Rhode Island and part of Connecticut, he said, until they were forced by a breakdown to stop at Thompsonville, Conn. As soon as repairs were made the prohibition agents, according to Yudrovich, resumed their journey. He testified that they went to the Central Drug Company next morning, questioned a clerk, and went from there to the Longacre Building, where they met Louis Biloon, one of the defendants.

The witness said he asked Biloon, said to be head of the Central Drug Company, whether the liquor had arrived. Biloon, according to Yudrovich, said he did not know and would have to ask "the man, Duffy." Subsequently, when the Boston prohibition agents met Biloon and Duffy, according to Yudrovich, Duffy, whom he identified in the courtroom as Thomas F. Duffy, also one of the defendants, said he would have to go to the warehouse to see if the liquor arrived.

Again in the afternoon, the witness said, he saw Biloon and Duffy and was informed that the liquor had arrived. He testified that when he asked Duffy to show a statement of the receipt of the liquor Duffy refused and said he first would have to consult his attorney. At Duffy's request the two prohibition agents went back to see Biloon and Duffy, who then denied that the liquor had been received, according to Yudrovich.

After the witness had testified that Meehan, the truckman, had showed him a receipt for the liquor, he was asked by counsel for the defense:

"Did you make any effort to find out if the receipt was authentic?"

"No," said Yudrovich.

"Did you ever see the papers under which the ten barrels were shipped?"

"No."

When counsel for the defense questioned the witness as to how much he knew of the regulations of the Prohibition Director's office, the prosecution objected on the ground that Yudrovich was not qualified to answer, and disclosed that the Government would call a high prohibition official from Washington to testify concerning matters of routine.

The first witness yesterday was Miss Laura Rahm, Secretary to George W. Wallenstein, head whisky salesman in the New York office of the Kentucky Distilleries and Warehouse Company. She was asked if she knew John La Penna, one of the defendants, and replied in the affirmative. Miss Rahm was asked to look out La Penna.

When she found that La Penna was unable to find him at the defendants' table she scanned the rest of the courtroom and picked him out among the spectators on one of the rearmost benches.

"What are you doing back there?" demanded the Court.

"I couldn't find a seat, your Honor," replied the defendant, who was sternly advised to remain within the enclosure.

The trial will be resumed at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Meanwhile the Federal Grand Jury, on evidence presented by Assistant United States Attorney Moses N. Polakoff, returned an indictment charging Isadore Rappaport, President; Harr Kahn, Treasurer, and Max Kahn, Secretary of the Pharmaceutical Supply Company, Inc., 480 Broome Street, with being implicated in a conspiracy to violate the Volstead act. The charge involves a discrepancy between the amount of liquor withdrawn and the amount disposed of and legitimately accounted for between December, 1921, and May, 1922. Rappaport and the two Kahns were released in $5,000 bail each soon after their arrest. They will be called early next week for pleading to the indictment.

DR. BUTLER ANGERS CHICAGO MINISTERS

CHICAGO, March 5.—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, accused the Chicago Methodist ministers of "un-Christian and un-American intolerance" in their criticism of his stand in opposing the Eighteenth Amendment. The letter from Dr. Butler was read at a meeting of the ministers today.

Two weeks ago the ministers passed resolutions demanding that Dr. Butler resign from the Presidency of Columbia because of his attitude against prohibition.

"The reported action of the Chicago Methodist preachers," Dr. Butler's letter read, "is one more exhibition of that un-American and un-Christian intolerance which is just now the besetting sin of our people. . . . question whether any one of those who voted for the resolution had read my public address on law and lawlessness. In that case they voted without knowledge.

"Personally I obey the law and urge others to obey it because it is the law, and without regard to any opinions of my own as to its justice or morality.

"I regard constitutional prohibition as the most serious and powerful enemy which those who labor for temperance or the control of the liquor traffic have ever had to fight.

"Just now we are fighting a losing battle, and the liquor traffic is gaining on us day by day. My confidence in the American people, however, is such that I believe they will sooner or later be roused from their intellectual and moral lethargy on this subject, and frame both their conduct and their laws in accordance with the precepts and practices of our Lord and the teachings of the Scriptures. The so-called Christian churches seem for the moment to have pretty well deserted Christianity."

Dr. Butler's letter then quoted Dr. Inge, Dean of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, as upholding the smuggling of alcohol.

Rich Jersey Rum Runners Now 'Rum Barons'; Their Aids Dub Themselves 'Rum Marines'

HIGHLANDS, N. J., March 5 (Associated Press).—Rum Row is working feverishly to get Rs bargain counters ready for the expected Spring rush.

Considerable activity in the fleet, notably three arrivals, two departures and the arrival of supply tugs from New York, was observed today. The most imposing of the new settlers on the row is a two-masted tanker of approximately 2,500 gross tons, and she apparently is loaded to the plimsoll marks. The other arrivals were schooners of the Bahama type.

One of the local bottle fishermen, who ventured out to the fleet last night and returned, it is said, with a small cargo—less than 100 cases—was asked what the new arrivals had aboard.

"Well," he replied pointedly, "tain't Panama hats."

One of the departing vessels was a palatial steam yacht, said formerly to have been the property of a New York millionaire. She now flies a foreign flag and is reported in the Bahama trade. This yacht had been on the row for some weeks, and what was left of her cargo was transferred to one of the remaining sailing vessels this morning.

The weather still is unfavorable for extensive running to the shore, and bottle fishermen on the Jersey coast are waiting until the wind blows right. Several Long Island boats put out to the fleet today, however.

The runners along the shore are getting rich, and with the coming of wealth they are resenting being called bootleggers. They see their trade as something to be looked up to. They'd rather be called "rum barons," and their men already have dubbed themselves the "Rum Marines, Highlands Company No. 1."

CITY WANTS WHISKY FOR HOSPITAL USE

Asks Bids on 100 Quarts of Rye—Report New Rum Fleet Off Cape May.

The City of New York advertised yesterday for 100 gallons of liquor for the sick. Through the Board of Purchase the city asks individuals or firms to make sealed bids to furnish and deliver that quantity of rye whisky in fifty-gallon barrels to Bellevue and Allied Hospitals. The bids are to be opened at 10:30 o'clock on the morning of March 13 in the rooms of the Board of Purchase in the Municipal Building.

From Dr. George O'Hanlon, Superintendent of Bellevue Hospital, it was learned that whisky was being used for pneumonia and in some instances for influenza and for aged people with weak hearts. Dr. O'Hanlon said there had been no excessive use of the stimulant at Bellevue Hospital as a result of the influenza epidemic. He explained that liquor was not used as generally for influenza sufferers as for pneumonia patients.

Excitement was caused in the corridors of the Federal Building in Brooklyn yesterday when Leo M. Carahan, 771 Forty-first Street, was rearrested for alleged failure to pay alimony just after he was released in $1,000 bail on a charge of operating a still in his perfumery shop. The alleged moonshiner was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Harry Meyers as he left the room of United States Commissioner Hennessey. Carahan's wife wants alimony of $25 a week, and Carahan was arrested on a charge of contempt.

Henry Fink, former owner of the Ritz Cabaret, 5 Nevins Street, Brooklyn, which was closed by injunction yesterday, was again arrested by prohibition agents yesterday at his new establishment, the Little Ritz Club, 1,233 Bedford Avenue.

When John McNickol, a British war veteran of 301 Troy Avenue, Brooklyn, was arraigned before Magistrate Ellperin in Gates Avenue Court on a charge of intoxication, the defendant's wife informed the Court that her husband had been drunk almost continually since the end of the European war; that his habits caused her to lose her job, and that the longer he stayed in jail the better would be her chance to get another job and support the children. McNickol has been arrested twenty-three times and arraigned before thirteen Magistrates for intoxication.

"The only thing I can do," said the Court, "is to see how long I can send you away, six months."

An entirely new fleet of rum-runners was reported last night from Cape May, N. J., to have appeared off Five-Fathom Bank lightship, twenty miles off Cape May.

Customs officials under direction of Deputy Collector William R. Sanders continued their investigation of the rum-running schooner Victor, which was found abandoned off Barren Island last Saturday with lifeboats gone, sails and rigging missing, but with tables freshly set for dinner. No one has appeared to lay claim to the ship.

The stopping of the illegal sale of denatured alcohol by bootleggers is the objective of the latest drive launched from Prohibition Headquarters in New York City. The drive has been organized because analysis of liquors seized in recent raids has disclosed that denatured alcohol is being used extensively in so-called alcoholic beverages.

Denatured alcohol is tax exempt and, therefore, is withdrawn in large amounts, according to prohibition officials, who explained that thousands of gallons were withdrawn monthly through the Collector of Internal Revenue for use in the manufacture of toilet preparations. To prevent its use in beverages the prohibition officials disclosed that their drive would include a special investigation of the many manufacturing concerns holding permits for the use of denatured alcohol.

MINISTERS TO SUPPLY CARS FOR DRY AGENTS

Philadelphia Methodists Respond to the Plea of the Newly Appointed Chief There.

PHILADELPHIA, March 5.—The Methodist ministers of Philadelphia voted today to purchase two automobiles for F. A. Haseltine, newly appointed Chief of Prohibition Agents in Pennsylvania, so that he and his men will not have to "depend on either their feet or the trolley cars to catch bootleggers."

The ministers' decision followed an address by Mr. Haseltine in which he said that his office had been handicapped by lack of adequate transportation facilities.

"The Government forbids us to hire autos at its expense wherever street cars are available," Mr. Haseltine said, "but, despite this handicap, we do get results."

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 5.—Charles S. Woods, Pennsylvania manager of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, in a statement today declared that "Governor Pinchot's claim that the people of the State are behind his new prohibition bill is utterly unfounded."

Mr. Woods's statement asserted that the opposition is growing day by day. This association demands the defeat of this pernicious measure in its entirety," he added, "and we would feel the same if it only contained the three words 'Pinchot dry bill,' and it is backed in this demand by the overwhelming sentiment of the people of the State, who want no more prohibition bills of any sort whatever.

"The Governor's cry for help is the best evidence that he is hearing from the people. The Anti-Saloon League and its trustee, the Governor, are in desperate straits."

$100 FOR A DROP OF LIQUOR.

PITTSBURGH, March 5.—One hundred dollars was the price paid in police court here today for a tablespoonful of whisky. Peter Maliadie, proprietor of a north side hotel, footed the bill.

When a woman complained that Maliadie was selling liquor to her husband, police raided the establishment. They found only a tablespoonful of whisky in a broken bottle. The evidence was produced in police court. Maliadie denied the charge, but Magistrate B. L. Succop fined him $100, with the option of serving thirty days in jail.

MODERN PAUL REVERE WARNS OF LIQUOR RAID

Riding a Mine Mule He Beats Invaders, and Townspeople Pour Alcohol Into Streets.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, March 5.—Riding an old mine mule, an anti-Volstead Paul Revere awakened the inhabitants of Renton, a small mining village in Plum Township, to their danger today when a squad of county detectives entered the hamlet to clean out the home brewers and distillers.

Stanley Maron, alive to the dangers which meant the uninterrupted search of every house in the village, hurried on his old mule from door to door giving the alarm. Soon the village streets were deluged with moonshine, coming from barrels, bottles, pots and every conceivable kind of receptable. The heavy, pungent odor arising in the village byways led the raiders on, but they had little reward for their work.

That every house in the village produced its own raisin jack, corn likker or home brew is attested by the fact that Maron stopped at each one and gave the direful tidings.

However, six men were arrested and twenty-five gallons of liquor, together with three large stills, were confiscated. The men were charged with violating the Wonder act. They were released on bail pending hearings.

Many complaints have been received by Chief Braun of the wholesale manufacture of illicit liquor in that district. Most of the residents are foreigners, working in the mines.

FIND WHISKY IN BREWERY.

Philadelphia Agents Seize $500,000 in Liquor and Labels.

PHILADELPHIA, March 5.—Liquors said to be valued at more than a half million dollars were seized today in a raid on a brewery of John Fredrich by prohibition agents under the direction of Frederick A. Haselton, new Enforcement Chief for Eastern Pennsylvania and Southern New Jersey.

William Fredrich, a son of the proprietor, and John Sachs, a foreman of the plant, were arrested. They were alleged to be pouring whisky from barrels into bottles and placing counterfeit labels and revenue stamps on the bottles when the agents arrived.

Twenty-four barrels and thirty cases of whisky were said to have been found in the place, while eight cars standing on a siding and loaded with 4,000 bags, each containing twenty-four bottles of liquor, also were seized. The bags were labeled "potatoes." Some of the liquor, according to the Government agents, had been shipped here from Savannah, Ga., after having been taken from ships at that point. A large number of alleged counterfeit labels and revenue stamps were confiscated at the plant, which is located at Fifth Street and Rising Sun Avenue. Police tonight aided the dry agents in guarding the plant and the seized liquor.

The brewery of Joseph Straudmuller & Son, Trenton and Boston Avenues, also was raided today by prohibition officials. Three hundred barrels of beer, said to contain more than the legal percentage of alcohol, were seized.

LIQUOR SMACK BURNS.

Lights Boardwalk as It Blazes Off Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 5.—Fire destroyed a fishing smack loaded with 1,800 quarts of liquor, lighting the sky with a glow that attracted the attention of thousands of visitors parading the boardwalk tonight. The vessel, believed to have been the Comet, was anchored about a mile and a half north of the inlet.

The hull of the little vessel was torn apart by a series of explosions, each followed by bursts of flame. When coast guards reached the side of the burning smack she was settling and about the vessel floated half-filled barrels of liquor. The liquor, according to the coast guards, continued to burn after it was spilled on the water. The crew of the smack, according to members of the coast guard, left the smack in small boats when the fire started. A search for the crew and owners of the vessel was begun by prohibition agents seeking to trace the source of the liquor.

RUM-RUNNING ON THE SOUND

Connecticut Shore Is Active as Ice Disappears—Police Make Seizure.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 5.—Rum-running along the Long Island Sound shore of Connecticut, which flourished last Summer, has begun with the disappearance of ice from the bays and inlets. Yesterday State police seized 3,800 bottles of whisky and gin on two trucks in Westport and arrested four men. State police at the barracks in Centrebrook, only a few miles away, learned that two vessels which were off the mouth of the Connecticut River on Saturday were rum-runers, and had landed many boatloads of liquor. Much of the contraband was taken by motor trucks at Sabrook Point and started inland. Liquor landed at Grove Beach, further west, was stored in a barn until loaded on a truck which the police intercepted.

Federal and local officers today seized a motor boat, The Giant, and 130 cases of liquor on the Stratford shore, and made three arrests. The Giant was loaded off Block Island.

SEIZED LIQUORS DISAPPEAR.

Pennsylvania Director Had Charge of the Stock Confiscated.

PHILADELPHIA, March 5.—A shortage of 118 cases of liquors in the stock confiscated by prohibition agents when they raided the warehouse of I. L. Lipschuts several weeks ago was reported today after an inventory by United States Marshal Matheus. The stock had been ordered transferred to the Marshal's custody by the Federal District Court.

According to the report, John T. Davis, State Prohibition Director, when ordered to turn the liquors over to the Marshal, tendered an inventory of the amount supposed to have been in the warehouse. The Marshal's deputies declared that they had found the number of cases and bottles corresponded, but that 116 cases were empty. No empty cases or bottles were listed on Director Davis's report. Marshal Matheus declined to receive the empty cases.

ANDERSON REPEATS CONSPIRACY CHARGE

PECORA DELAYS INQUIRY

Prosecutor Makes Public Dry Leader's Testimony About the $24,700 "Publicity" Fund.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., March 5.—Central New York ministers here today gave William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, whose financial affairs are under investigation by a New York Grand Jury, a vote of confidence.

Mr. Anderson, who addressed the gathering, denied having accused the District Attorney of New York of having "any part in a conspiracy to ruin me," and asserted he had explicitly disclaimed intention to make any such charges in anything he had said. He announced his purpose "to continue to expose the conspiracy that exists, and the relation of Raymond B. Fosdick, Rockefeller representative, to it, regardless of the efforts to silence me by statements about other matters."

Mr. Anderson said his respect for John D. Rockefeller Jr. and his appreciation of what he had done for the Anti-Saloon League "in no sense obligated me to submit in silence to the secretly manifested hostility of his employe, who evidently had deceived him in some particulars.

"Mr. Fosdick's personal animus against me," he continued, "evidently has led him to do things for the wets that they would not have done for themselves and which are despicable almost beyond belief. I shall prove by John D. Rockefeller Jr. himself the clash of opinion which supplied a basis for such animus."

The meeting was attended by 300 clergymen. William E. ("Pussyfoot") Johnson and Ernest H. Cherrington, Superintendent of the World League Against Alcoholism; Dr. J. H. McConnell, a league Trustee, and Dr. L. P. Tucker delivered addresses.

Pecora After Witnesses.

Acting District Attorney Pecora announced yesterday that the continuation of the Grand Jury's investigation of the allegation that William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, had submitted a fictitious bill for $24,700 for publicity work for the league in 1913 and 1914 had been postponed for several days to enable him to get additional witnesses. On of these witnesses, he said, was William Milton Potter, formerly Assistant Treasurer of the league under Mr. Anderson. Mr. Potter is in McAllen, Texas, he added, and he had sent him a telegram requesting him to appear before the body as soon as possible. He refused to reveal the names of the other witnesses to be called.

Mr. Pecora said that he had received a letter in the forenoon from Mr. Anderson, enclosing a copy of the address the Superintendent of the league delivered at the meeting of clergymen in Syracuse, stating Mr. Anderson's unbiased attitude toward the acting prosecutor and explaining that he was enclosing the address so that Mr. Pecora would understand that he never intended to link him with the alleged conspiracy to ruin him.

The Acting District Attorney added that while he was appreciative of Mr. Anderson's purpose to eliminate him from the alleged conspiracy he felt that he could not avoid answering some of the implications that might arise from recent statements of the Board of Directors of the league to the effect that the District Attorney's office was a party to the conspiracy.

He also revealed testimony given by Mr. Anderson in Mr. Pecora's examination of the Superintendent which preceded the Grand Jury investigation in connection with the statement that Mr. Anderson paid some of the $24,700 to men connected with wet publications.

"The statement that Mr. Anderson paid some of the money to men employed on wet newspapers, as far as I know, was made for the first time by him to the Board of Directors of the league at a meeting on March 26, 1918," Mr. Pecora said. "This statement said in part: 'A considerable part of this business was so confidential that it would have defeated its purpose if any of it had become public, and would have embarrassed men whose personal sympathies were with us, working for the papers and concerns that were against us, if their names were ever known.'

Kept Their Names Secret.

"In my interview with Mr. Anderson I elaborated somewhat upon that statement in his written report to the Board of Directors. Referring to the confidence in which he agreed to hold the names of these men, I asked him these questions and received the following answers:

"'What were the reasons for the confidence?'

"'Some men might have been embarrassed if it was known they were doing anything that was furthering prohibition.'

"'Did that apply only to some of those persons or to all?'

"'To all; generally to all.'

"'Did they tell you how they might become embarrassed if it became known that they were aiding prohibition?'

"'Yes; some of them were newspaper men and some of them were working for papers and, of course, were not, so far as I know, doing anything with the papers they were working for, they might have been embarrassed in their standing with their own papers.'

"With regard to the payment of money for this work," Mr. Pecora continued, "among other things Mr. Anderson was asked the following questions, to which he made the following answers:

"'Were any bills or vouchers ever submitted to you by any of the persons engaged in the promotion of that publicity work covering any of the expenses involved in that publicity work?'

"'No, because the whole proposition was a total cost proposition.'

"'On a cash basis?'

"'Yes; they did what was supposed to be done.'"

Replying to the statement issued last Saturday by Edgar Truman Brackett, counsel for Mr. Anderson in the Grand Jury investigation, in which the former State Senator declared that the burden of proving Mr. Anderson's guilt rested with the State, Mr. Pecora said:

"Mr. Brackett is correct in his statement of the principle of law that a man is presumed to be innocent until his guilt has been established beyond a reasonable doubt. The burden of establishing his guilt rests upon the prosecution. A man's own statements, however, in so far as they may tend to establish his guilt, may be used against him.

Accepts the Explanation.

"In making public references to any of Mr. Anderson's statements to me I was moved solely by the desire to answer the implications that might arise from the statements recently put forward publicly by the Board of Directors of the Anti-Saloon League in Mr. Anderson's behalf to the effect that the District Attorney was a party to a conspiracy aimed at Mr. Anderson.

"I am glad to note, however, that Mr. Anderson specifically disavowed the making of any charge of that kind against the District Attorney at Syracuse today.

The Bible School Board of Yonkers, in a meeting held in the First Methodist Episcopal Church on Sunday, adopted the following resolution:

"Resolved, That we, a Christian organization, being especially interested in the welfare of the youth of our community and city, express our hearty endorsement of the action of the Board of Directors of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, as published in THE NEW YORK TIMES, supporting its Superintendent, William H. Anderson, whose indefatigable efforts to suppress the use of beverage alcohol have at least much to prevent crime and the ruination of young lives."

VOLSTEAD GETS A WATCH.

House Judiciary Committee Honors Retiring Author of Dry Law.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Andrew J. Volstead, retiring Chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, met with his colleagues today for the last time around the table on which the Prohibition Enforcement act was drafted, and received a gold watch as a token of esteem.

Representative Dyer of Missouri presided. He told Mr. Volstead that, although the membership had not been unanimous "on all of the measures" turned out by the committee, there was no division in the opinion "that he had proved to be an earnest and able member of Congress."

Representative Dominick of South Carolina thanked Mr. Volstead for his fairness as a presiding officer.

Accepting the gift, the author of the dry law, who was defeated for re-election, declared he had no personal ambition to return to Congress. He said he was sorry the prohibition act had overshadowed, so far as publicity was concerned, other equally important work of the committee.

"There have been other measures for which we should receive equal credit—or blame," he said, with a smile.

HAWAII CALLS FOR BEER.

Resolution in Legislature Asks Congress to Liberalize Dry Law.

HONOLULU, March 5 (Associated Press).—Amendment of the National Prohibition law to permit the manufacture and sale of 4½ per cent. beer and 15 per cent. wine in the Hawaiian Islands is requested of Congress through a resolution introduced today in the territorial Legislature.

Enforcement of the Volstead act in the Territory of Hawaii, according to the resolution, has "worked a manifest hardship on the people, especially those who are not in affluent circumstances." The resolution states that "prohibition enforcement has greatly and secretly increased drunkenness, and the hypocrisy, cant and dissimulation have become rampant."

LAUDS NEGRO EDUCATION.

Harding Foresees Beneficent Results to Race and Nation.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Education is "precisely the right approach to the great problem of the negro race's place in our American civilization," President Harding told the negro National Educational Congress in a letter read at the opening session of its five-day conference here today.

"It is true, indeed," continued the letter, "that the same might be said of every other race or national or social element that goes to make up the total of our citizenship. But it is peculiarly true of the colored people, because they have been so little favored with educational opportunity and therefore have a great deficit in this regard to be made up. I have always felt that the right kind of effort along educational and industrial lines among the colored people is certain to be productive of the most useful results, both to them and to the national interest in general."

"My own attitude toward the problem of the races of this country was so fully set forth in my address at Birmingham over a year ago that I can hardly add anything to that statement of it. I wish, however, to embrace this opportunity of assuring you and the members of the congress of my continuing and most sympathetic interest in the effort you are putting forth in behalf of the race and of more effective composition of the race problem of this nation."

SON CONTESTS EGAN WILL.

Former Minister to Chile Left Entire Estate to Daughter.

A contest of the will of Patrick Egan, United States Minister to Chili under President Cleveland, was marked yesterday for trial today by Surrogate Foley. The contest is filed by a son, Brenden Egan, of 1,821 Undercliff Avenue, who declares that his father lacked mental capacity when he made a will leaving his entire estate to his daughter, Mrs. Kathleen Travers of 202 West Seventy-fourth Street. Her husband, Rudolph Travers, was named as executor. A clause in the will says:

"In consideration of the care and attention given me by my daughter, Kathleen Egan Travers, in providing for me subsequent to the death of my wife, and in consideration of a provision to pay the income of 1,000 shares of the Hipwood Crutch Co., Inc., of New York, now owned by her, to her sister, Grace Mary Egan, during her life, I give and bequeath all my property to the said Kathleen Egan Travers."

Mr. Egan left six other children, including the daughter Grace.

Charged with violation of the Sullivan law, Sylvester Cotton, 28 years old, negro longshoreman, of 112 West 132d Street, who as "Kid" Cotton, a few years ago, fought Sam Langford, Jack Johnson and Harry Wills, was held in $1,000 bail for examination March 12 by Magistrate William A. Sweetser in Washington Heights Court yesterday.

Patrolman Edward J. Koch of the West 135th Street Station, attracted by a crowd at 122d Street and Lenox Avenue Sunday night, found Cotton and another short, muscular negro mixing it while the crowd shouted its approval. At the approach of the patrolman, Cotton's antagonist ran away. A revolver was found protruding from Cotton's overcoat pocket.

Frank W. Stanton of 1,122 St. Nicholas Avenue, who appeared for Cotton in court, said that if given a week's adjournment he would prove that the revolver was slipped in Cotton's pocket by a man in the crowd.

Chicago Board Plucks 43 Would-Be Movie Regulators.

CHICAGO March 5.—Unable to make a passing grade of 70, forty-three candidates for the position of Movie Censor of Chicago failed in the examination, the Civil Service Commission announced today. Among the questions asked were:

"What is the meaning of the word immoral as applied to motion pictures?

"Would it be harmful to any class of people to exhibit a scene showing a burglar opening a money safe by either drilling by the use of explosives and affacing all evidence of finger prints?

"What sort of motion pictures would tend to create contempt or hatred for a particular class of law-abiding citizens?

A new examination will be held.

Soviet Ministers Vote Funds for Further Digging in the Ruins Under Central Asian Sands.

BY WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, March 4.—Russia has her buried tombs less old than that of Tutankh-Amen, but far more extensive and perhaps no less interesting. The Council of Soviet Ministers has just voted funds for a three years' trip of the Russian explorer Kosloff to complete his researches in the ancient capital of Mongolian civilization, Kharakhoto, which has been for more than a thousand years in the sands of the Central Asian Desert.

In a lecture delivered last evening at the Polytechnic Museum Kosloff described the first fruits of the expedition which resulted in the discovery of the wonders of Kharakhoto. In the desert, under the protection of sands never moistened by a drop of rain lies a mighty city whose civilization far outstripped that of Pompeii and Herculaneum. Kosloff brought back 2,500 books in seven languages, including Persian, Sanskrit, Arabic and Mongolian. He found coins of gold, silver and copper and—a statement which raised a laugh from the audience—paper money, showing that even in the palmy days of Mongolia currency problems were not unknown. The explorer has pictures, too, on canvas and silk, whose colors and lines, thanks to the dry sand, are as fresh and distinct as when they left the artist's hand. There are tapestries, frescoes and a mass of ceramic work by the most famous Oriental craftsmen. Within a few weeks all will be assembled in a special Kharakhoto Museum in Petrograd.

The Koslof expedition will leave Moscow within a few weeks.

COUNCILMEN DENOUNCE MAYOR OF CLEVELAND

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 5.—The stormiest session ever held by the City Council occurred today, when Mayor Fred Kohler vetoed the Marshall gas franchise ordinance and condemned the City Councilmen for "blundering" and "placing personal politics ahead of the people's interests."

His message was followed by a spontaneous uprising by the Councilmen, cries of "Standard Oil Mayor" and indications of a conflict between the administration and the executive branch of the regular council meeting.

Council President Townes took the floor this evening and scored the Mayor, who was occupying a chair in the room.

"I want to say a word in reference to you, Mr. Mayor," said Townes, turning to Kohler. "From time to time we have given you credit when credit was due. But from the beginning your attitude toward the City Council has been contemptuous and openly insulting.

"I want to say that not only did you insult us for the kindness and sweetness of the temper of your council on the night of your loquacious talk to us you would have been ejected from the Council Chamber. Not only did you insult us, but you shamed the office which you hold.

"Cease being a czar and stop taking part when other people are doing what they think is right. Accept the responsibility which you cannot shift or dodge."

"There have been rumors afloat, Mr. Mayor, as to who your backers were in the campaign for election," he declared. "The records show that one of the attorneys for the East Ohio Gas Company contributed $1,000 to your campaign fund. God alone knows how much more was contributed in your behalf by them."

"I'll say he's a damn liar, and you newspaper men can put it into print," said Councilman Brashwitz, when informed of the Mayor's charges.

"Kohler can go to the devil. I will stand with the crowd and override the Mayor's veto," said Councilman Damm.

Councilman Moore said the Mayor's letter accompanying his veto was conclusive evidence that "we have a Standard Oil Mayor."

Other members of the council signified their intentions to fight the veto, and declared "it was all we could have expected."

M'NARY DECLINES OFFICE FOR RECESS

Tells Harding He Cannot Accept Temporary Appointment Without Senate Action.

ASSAILS COUZENS CHARGES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—James G. McNary of New Mexico, whose nomination to be Controller of the Currency failed of confirmation by the Senate, refused to accept a recess appointment today. President Harding, before leaving for Florida, tendered the appointment to Mr. McNary, who replied that he did not feel that he should assume the duties of the office without the full authority which goes with a Senate confirmation—a confirmation which, he added, was denied him as a result of unfair tactics. His letter is as follows:

"I beg to express my appreciation of the high honor you have again conferred on me by reappointing me with a recess appointment for the office of Controller of the Currency. I am most grateful to you for your continued confidence and friendship, and for your unfailing support during the contest to prevent my confirmation.

"No one knows as well as you that I did not seek the office. To take this office oath means not only severing all present banking connections, but debars me from renewing them for two years after leaving the office. Also, the acceptance of the office means a very considerable financial sacrifice to me, as well as the sacrifice of the comfort and happiness of my family.

"After careful consideration I have been unable to convince myself that I should take up the responsibility of the office without the full authority which goes with a confirmation, which was prevented by unfair tactics, which a large majority of the Senate stood ready to give, and without which no man is in a position to render his best service.

"I beg, therefore, that you will permit me to decline the recess appointment with my most sincere expression of gratitude, and also most profound regret for the inconvenience which the incident has caused you."

Mr. McNary issued this afternoon the following statement in reply to the statement given out yesterday by Senator Couzens of Michigan, Chairman of the Subcommittee of the Committee on Banking and Currency, which had investigated his qualifications for the office:

"The tender of the recess appointment by the President speaks for itself, and I have stated in my letter to him my reasons for declining it.

"Heretofore I have refrained from making any public statement as to the controversy that has gone on over my confirmation as Controller of the Currency, and I dislike to have to do so now, but feel that it has been made necessary by the statement given to the press by Senator Couzens.

"The statement given out by Senator Couzens is so completely false that, in justice to myself and my friends and the Senate committee that recommended my confirmation, it must be replied to. It is in direct conflict with the records from which Senator Couzens pretends to quote and with the facts submitted to the committee, on which it made its report recommending my confirmation.

"First—For instance, the statement that I had borrowed amounts from $5,000 to $75,000 from the First National Bank of El Paso without security is utterly false, as shown by the records of the bank and by the facts submitted to the Senate committee.

"Second—The statement that fifty-two times during a period of six months the bank was in a position of having a suit instituted for the forfeiture of its charter is utterly false in every particular.

"Third—The statement that the bank and I had speculated in sugar is false, neither having speculated in sugar to the extent of a dollar.

"Fourth—The statement that a loan was made by any officer of the bank after the Board of Directors had declined to approve is wholly false.

"These are but specimens of the entire falsity of the statement. One more must be mentioned.

"Senator Couzens says: 'Mr. McNary has told me that he contributed $20,000 to the National Republican campaign fund.'

"Senator Couzens knew, when he made that statement, that I had made no such statement to him, and in the only conversation I ever had with him in my life the subject of campaign contributions was not even mentioned."

Senator Couzens left for Detroit this morning. Any answer he may care to make to the McNary statement will be issued, it was stated at his office, on his arrival in Detroit tomorrow.

ACTOR, HURT, ASKS $50,000.

Trial of a suit by Guy Bartlett, actor, of 512 West 170th Street, Manhattan, against George Phillips, jitney bus owner, of West New York, for $50,000 damages, began yesterday in the Supreme Court at Jersey City before Judge Luther A. Campbell.

The actor alleged that on Nov. 22 last, Phillips, driving his bus at excessive speed, crashing into the touring car in which Bartlett was riding from Freehold to New York in Palisade Avenue, West New York. Bartlett's skull and collar bone were injured. The actor said that the injury had affected his speech so that he could no longer play the parts to which he had been accustomed. He said he had played with De Wolf Hopper and other prominent leading actors.

SUBPOENAS LIFTED FOR HARDING GUESTS

Morse Summonses for Daugherty, Lasker and Payne Are Dropped Just in Time.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—An attempt by legal process to prevent Attorney General Daugherty, Chairman Lasker of the Shipping Board and John Barton Payne, Chairman of the Red Cross, from leaving Washington for a vacation trip with President Harding in Florida was begun and then abandoned shortly before the hour set for the departure of the President's special train.

At the request of attorneys for Charles W. Morse, the New York shipbuilder, whose trial here on charges of fraud in connection with war contracts had been set for next Wednesday, the United States Marshal's office issued subpoenas requiring the three men to appear in court on the opening day of the trial as witnesses for the defense.

While a Deputy Marshal was trying to serve the subpoenas, however, District Attorney Gordon conferred with the Morse counsel, and it was agreed that the attempt would be abandoned. It was said that other subpoenas might be issued later, asking that one or more of the three return from Florida to appear in court.

The Attorney General and Mr. Lasker, it was said, were to be asked to bring into court certain records of their offices in connection with war-time ship contracts. The testimony of Mr. Payne, a former Chairman of the board, was sought in connection with the making of the contracts.

The compromise reached in the case was understood to have provided for a postponement of the trial date until March 19.

The District of Columbia Supreme Court today sustained the motion of the Government to dismiss a demurrer which sought to quash the indictments against Morse, his three sons, and Rupert M. Much, former Secretary of the Virginia Shipbuilding Company.

CONGRESS PAGES PASS BILLS AT MOCK SESSION

Boys Pretend to Enact Measures That Failed—New Members Seek Office Space.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—A negro janitor with mop and bucket was the solitary occupant of the House galleries today as page boys organized a mock legislative body to pass numerous bills and resolutions which failed in the closing days of the Sixty-seventh Congress.

Afterward the doors of the House and Senate Chambers were closed, to remain so until December, unless President Harding should call Congress into extra session.

The principal activities at the Capitol today consisted of efforts of retiring members to clear their offices and get home as quickly as possible. Great piles of débris littered the corridors, keeping the clean-up squad on the jump. Copies of bills and reports no longer wanted were taken away by the cartful.

There also was a scurrying for more desirable office space by members who will be in the next Congress. Under existing custom newcomers must take what is left after the veterans choose the most desirable rooms.

A number of the new House members appeared at the offices of the Sergeant-at-Arms and went through the process of identification to draw compensation, which began March 4. They also arranged to get office space so that they can carry on the work of their predecessors. In many instances clerks and secretaries of the retiring legislators were made available to them temporarily.

SACCO-VANZETTI CASE SET.

Arguments for a New Trial Will Be Heard on Friday.

DEDHAM, Mass., March 5.—Hearing of motions for a new trial of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, convicted of murder in the first degree for the shooting of a paymaster and his guard at South Braintree three years ago, was set for next Friday by Judge Webster Thayer of the Superior Court today. Should the arguments be unfinished at the end of that day, the Judge said he would sit again on March 16 to complete them.

Sacco, at the jail here, began the nineteenth day of refusal to eat the food supplied by jail authorities. He continues to drink water freely. His condition has not changed greatly in recent days, it was said, and his weakness is not such as to cause any immediate alarm. Vanzetti is confined at the State Prison under sentence for another offense.

HYLAN REPLIES TO HERALD.

Declares He Has Been Absent From Desk Since Jan. 31, Not Jan. 3.

Mayor Hylan, in a letter to the editor of The Herald yesterday, denied a statement by that newspaper to the effect that he had been absent from his office practically from Jan. 3. He said he did not leave the city until the evening of Jan. 31. The letter continues:

"If you have room for facts in the columns of your newspaper, I have just given you some.

"A few weeks' absence in a year from one's work is necessary if one is to keep in shape for the proper performance of such work. Did your doctor ever tell you that?

"You would do well to take a little vacation. It might help you to hew to the line of truth."

WORK AND NEW TAKE NEW CABINET POSTS

Former Says He Will Preserve the "Open Door" in Interior Department.

"NO SUBMERGED POLICIES"

He Promises "Frank Exposition of All Actions Deemed Essential to the Public Interest."

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Dr. Hubert Work, who resigned as Postmaster General to become Secretary of the Interior, assuming his new office today announced that he intended to have an "open door" policy, and that he had no financial interest in the great projects in the West coming under the supervision of his office.

In his statement defining his policy he said:

"For many years I have lived among the great domestic problems of the nation that come within the province of the Department of the Interior in the West, but have no financial interest in any of them. The natural resources of our country today are boundless in their scope, and it is the duty of the Government and those officials entrusted with administrative authority to preserve with zealous care those rights of the Government and the people with the same solicitude that might be exercised in purely personal obligations.

"The various bureaus and semi-independent agencies co-ordinated in the Department of the Interior exercise an influence of tremendous magnitude upon our national life. Our public land problems, including reclamation and irrigation, deal with the prosperity of millions of our citizens throughout the western part of the country, and they are perhaps not always fully understood or appreciated in the East, nevertheless they are fundamentally the problems of all Americans.

"I believe that the work done and the questions confronting the Government should be placed frankly before the American people. The American Government should advertise with all the energy of which it is capable to the end that its millions of citizens of both sexes and of every class may enjoy a better understanding of the functions of Government, what they stand for, and what they seek to accomplish in the interest of the public.

"Education of the proper kind is the most powerful agency known to civilization and, combined with honesty and fidelity of purpose, will make for better Americans and a better America. So in the conduct of the Department of the Interior, there shall be no submerged or camouflaged policies, no issues tucked away, but an open and frank exposition of all actions deemed essential to the public interest.

"The same strictly business methods that prevailed in the Post Office Department during my incumbency as Postmaster General will be applied to the Department of the Interior to the end that its functions may be exercised with the efficiency that characterized the Administration of my distinguished predecessor, Secretary Fall. I will continue the open-door policy in this department adopted at the Post Office Department, so that the public may look in if it wishes to see its own business transacted."

Harry S. New, who completed a six-year term as United States Senator from Indiana yesterday, took the oath of office today as Postmaster General. Dr. Work witnessed the swearing in and then went immediately to the Department of the Interior.

"This greeting to postal employes was issued by the Postmaster General as soon as he had taken the oath of office:

"To all of my fellow-employes of the Post Office Department I give cordial greeting, and I hope they will bid me welcome, which for each of you is the joy and satisfaction that come from the knowledge of duty well done. Let us have faith in and help each other."

ENDS 5,000-MILE AIR TRIP.

Gen. Mitchell Returns From Inspection of Army Flying Stations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, Assistant Chief of the Army Air Service, landed at Boiling Field last Friday night after completing a 5,000-mile inspection of Army Air Service stations.

General Mitchell left Washington on Jan. 21 by airplane. Adverse weather conditions prevailed the first day and the first stop was made at Dayton, Ohio. At the Dayton station extensive tests were made with an air compressor to enable the motor to function with sea level efficiency at altitudes of over six miles. He also flew a new type of training machine with an innovation for seating the pilot and student side by side, and supervised the testing of night flying equipment, including landings and signaling lights, which are expected to make flying in the night as safe as in the day.

In his inspection trip General Mitchell visited Selfridge Field, Mich.; Scott Field, near St. Louis; San Antonio and El Paso. From the Southern border the fliers turned northward to the Canadian border, making a visit of courtesy to the Governor General of Canada at Ottawa. At the University of Toronto General Mitchell visited the laboratory of Dr. McLenna, who first reduced helium gas to a liquid.

BOY FIRES SECOND SCHOOL.

Former Reform School Inmate Again in Custody.

Two years in the Hawthorne Reformatory has not cured Samuel Eisenberg, 15, of setting fire to buildings, according to detectives. The boy yesterday admitted, the police say, that he started the fire in the storeroom of Public School 147, Bushwick Avenue and Siegel Street, March 1.

Detectives Robert Ferris and Thomas Carroll of the Stagg Street Police Station, detailed on the investigation, learned that Eisenberg, whose home is at 12 Manhattan Avenue, Brooklyn, had spent a term at Hawthorne for setting fire to Public School 43, Manhattan Avenue and Boerum Street, in the Fall of 1918. Eisenberg yesterday said he wanted to see the engines hurrying along the street. He invariably ran after fire engines when they passed his street, he said. He was taken to the Children's Society to spend the night. He will be arraigned in Children's Court today.

8 MONTHS FOR BANK CLERK.

Judge Puts Part Blame for $8,000 Theft on Officials.

Officials of the Flatbush Savings Bank from which Stuart M. Summers of 218 Lenox Road, Flatbush, said he stole $8,000 while employed as a clerk there, were blamed almost equally with the 18-year-old youth when Judge Alonzo G. McLaughlin sentenced him yesterday in the Brooklyn County Court to eight months in the City Prison. The youth had pleaded guilty to petit larceny.

It was alleged that Summers had taken $15,000 from the Christmas Club accounts, but no evidence was presented to prove this.

"This defendant is hardly more than a boy, and his record was excellent until he committed this crime," Judge McLaughlin said. "Part of the blame can, with reason, be traced to those responsible for placing this youth in a responsible position without proper and adequate checks upon his performance of duty. Under such circumstances and in view of his youth and past excellent record, nothing would be gained for him or for society as a whole by sending him to State's Prison."

CONGRESS PARTY SAILS FOR NAVY MANOEUVRES

Will See the Old Warship Iowa Sunk by the Mississippi's Great Guns.

Special to The New York Times.

CAN COLLECT INTEREST.

Supreme Court Rules Government Must Pay on Seized Lands.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Owners of property taken by the Government during the war are entitled, in computing compensation, to interest or other forms of allowance for the use of the property between the time it was taken over for public use and the date on which the Government paid for it, the Supreme Court held today in a case brought by the Seaboard Air Line Railway Company and others against the United States, growing out of the taking by the Government of certain land at Charleston, S. C., owned by the railroad.

The Government seized the land for storage purposes in connection with the forwarding of war materials. Its tender in payment for the property was rejected by the railroad, which took the case into the District Court for Eastern South Carolina, where it obtained a judgment of $6,000 as the value of the property and an allowance of interest on that amount from the date the Government took possession. The Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the award of $6,000, but held that the railroad company was not entitled to interest or any allowance to compensate the loast of the use of the property between the time when it was taken and the date on which the company received payment from the Government.

HOMES FOR ENVOY OFFERED

PARIS, March 5 (Associated Press).—More than 100 houses have been offered to American Ambassador Herrick for his future residence under the Congressional bill providing for the purchase of an Embassy.

Mr. Herrick and Sheldon Whitehouse, counselor to the Embassy, have found among the buildings offered at sums within the limit of the appropriation several that might be suitable.

The one which meets with the greatest favor is on the left bank of the Seine, in the old aristocratic quarter where the Italian, Austrian and German Embassies are housed. The house in question is of historic interest and has a large garden with other buildings sufficient for the Embassy offices. The Embassy has no option on the property nor any binding arrangement at present; consequently the precise identity of the house has not been made public.

A bill appropriating $300,000 for the housing of the American Embassy in Paris was signed by President Harding Saturday.

Shuey Has Reported 27 Congresses.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—A record for congressional service was established by Theodore F. Shuey, Civil War veteran and dean of the Senate shorthand reporters, with the adjournment of Congress yesterday. It was the twenty-seventh Congress whose adjournment was witnessed by Mr. Shuey, who is 78 years old and began work in the Senate in 1888.

ANDERSON NAMED FOR OFFICE HERE

FARM LOAN BOARD FILLED

Commission of Tolbert for Marshal in South Carolina Signed, Though Senate Shelved Nomination.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—President Harding appointed today Charles W. Anderson to be Collector of Internal Revenue for the Third District of New York. This is a new district in New York City created by an act of Congress passed in the closing hours of its session and approved yesterday by the President too late for Mr. Harding to send a nomination to the Senate. Today's appointment will hold until Congress reassembles in December.

Collector Anderson is a negro who served previously as Collector of Internal Revenue for one of the New York City districts. He was appointed in 1905 by President Roosevelt, served throughout the Administration of President Taft, and was retained for two years by President Wilson. Officials said today that he had made an excellent record.

Elmer S. Landes, Republican, of Ohio, and Martin L. Corey, Democrat, of Nebraska, were appointed today as members of the Farm Loan Board. Membership on this board was increased by three by a bill enacted in the closing hours of Congress. The third additional member is yet to be appointed.

Before leaving Washington this morning for Florida President Harding signed the commission of Joseph W. Tolbert as United States Marshal for the Western Judicial District of South Carolina. This continues him in the office for which he was nominated but was unable to obtain the confirmation of the Senate.

Mr. Tolbert is Republican National Committeeman for South Carolina and Chairman of the State Committee. When he was nominated Senator Dial of South Carolina asserted before the Senate Committee on the Judiciary that Tolbert had been charged with a criminal offense in South Carolina, and had sold political patronage.

The committee failed to take action on the nomination. Some of those opposed to Tolbert claim that his nomination could not have been confirmed. They assert that as many as twenty Republican Senators would have voted against his confirmation.

It is the understanding in official circles here that President Harding will appoint former State Senator Herbert D. Coates of New York as Attorney General of Porto Rico.

GOV. TOWNER TO SHUN PORTO RICAN POLITICS

Says He Will Try to Interest People of Island in Its Development.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Former Representative Horace M. Towner of Iowa, recently appointed Governor of Porto Rico, conferred today with Secretary Weeks in regard to affairs in the island. He said that he intended to ignore politics and hoped to interest the people of the inland in a program for economical and industrial development.

Before leaving for his new post Mr. Towner will make a careful study of legislative and other matters affecting Porto Rico. He intends familiarizing himself intimately with the Farm Credits act and believes that the farmers there will receive much benefit from the law extending long term credits to them.

Governor Towner said he did not look for any drastic legislation affecting the organic act under which the island is governed, and he thought the only legislation that would be necessary would be such as was required from time to time in a regular way.

Improvement of transportation facilities between the United States and Porto Rico and the encouragement of commercial relations between the island and the mainland are matters which are engaging Governor Towner's attention. While Porto Rico does a considerable amount of business with the States, he believes that this can be increased and that markets for Porto Rican products can be improved. Coffee is one of the products of the island which are now shipped almost entirely to Spain and Cuba.

Governor Towner will sail for Porto Rico March 31.

CUBA WELCOMES CROWDER.

General Presents His Credentials as First Ambassador.

HAVANA, March 5 (Associated Press).—For the first time in the history of the republic, Cuba has a diplomatic representative accredited to her bearing the rank of Ambassador.

Major Gen. Enoch H. Crowder, U. S. A., retired, today presented his credentials to President Zayas at the Presidential Palace.

In the reception room of the palace, President Zayas received General Crowder, who in a brief address said his instructions were "constantly to endeavor to advance the interests and prosperity of both Governments."

Dr. Zayas in welcoming General Crowder expressed his personal gratification, and that of the Cuban people, at the appointment of an Ambassador by the United States, and particular satisfaction over the fact that General Crowder was known to be a friend and well-wisher of Cuba.

Power to Alien Property Custodian.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—President Harding signed today an executive order vesting in the Alien Property Custodian "all power and authority conferred upon me" to carry out provisions of the new alien property act which provides for the return to former enemy aliens of seized property to the value of $10,000 or under. The custodian is empowered to withdraw from the Treasury any money or property on deposit, together with interest or income received from the property, to make payments under the act.

Will Test Oklahoma Homestead Law

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The validity of the Oklahoma law providing that no deed, mortgage or contract relating to a homestead "shall be valid unless in writing and subscribed by both husband and wife," as presented in a case brought by the Sperry Oil & Gas Company and the Oklahoma Producing & Refining Corporation against Pearl and Webster Chisholm, will be passed upon by the Supreme Court. The case which the Court announced today it would review was considered of importance owing to the number of oil and gas leases to property in Oklahoma.

Break Ground for Memorial.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Ground was broken today without ceremony for the memorial to the dead of the First Division to be erected in the park south of the State, War and Navy Building. The monument, which is to be erected by the First Division Memorial Association, will be of monolith granite, 45 feet high, surmounted by the figure of a woman representing "victory."

LOWERS CIVIL SERVICE TESTS FOR VETERANS

President's Order Directs the Commission to Give Them Preference in Examinations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—President Harding, before his departure on his vacation today, issued an order to the Civil Service Commission directing it to give preference to veterans in the civil service examinations. The regulations prescribed by the President are:

"1. Veterans and others entitled to preference are to be given five points in addition to their earned ratings in examinations, as is done with respect to applicants for Presidential Postmaster. Veterans who suffered serious disability are given ten instead of five points. Time spent in the military service is to be credited in rating experience which was interrupted by military service, and military training or experience of definite value in fitting a veteran for the position for which he applies is to be considered in rating the examination. For eligibility a rating of 70 per cent. is required of all applicants, but the veteran needs earn but 65 (or if a disabled veteran, 60) to get on the register.

"2. Veterans are to be released from age limitations and from many of the physical requirements.

"3. Veterans are to be appointed in the departments at Washington without regard to the apportionment law providing for the distribution of appointments among the States.

"4. An appointing officer who passes over a veteran and selects a non-veteran with the same or a lower rating must place his reasons for so doing in the department's records.

"5. In the event of reductions being made in any part of the classified service no person entitled to preference in original appointment is to be discharged or dropped or reduced in rank or salary if his record is good.

"6. The period of eligibility for reinstatement of veterans is five years.

"7. Examinations are reopened for World War veterans who lost opportunity for examination by being in the service or being disabled if they apply while in the service, or within ninety days of discharge, recovery or completion of training."

CONGRESSMAN'S AID HELD.

Mrs. Buchanan, Kendall's Secretary, Is Accused of $1,500 Forgery.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Mrs. M. B. Buchanan of Richmond, Va., secretary to Representative Kendall, of Pennsylvania, was arrested today charged with having forged endorsements on three checks drawn to the order of a colored woman whose son had been killed in the war. The total value of the checks was $1,500.

Appearing before United States Commissioner MacDonald, she demanded a hearing. This will be given her March 15. In the meantime she is held under $3,000 bail.

According to the authorities the checks, drawn to the order of Martha Warfield, colored, represented an accumulation of payments for compensation owed her by the Veterans' Bureau. It is charged that Mrs. Buchanan obtained the checks from some person whose identity is unknown, forged the payee's signature and obtained the money.

Representative Kendall said that he knew nothing of the transaction until his secretary was arrested at his office today.

SUES MISS ROBERTSON.

Her Former Secretary Asks $10,000, Charging She Slandered Him.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Miss Alice M. Robertson of Oklahoma, whose term as a member of the House expired yesterday, was sued today in the District of Columbia Supreme Court for $10,000 damages for alleged slander.

The suit was brought by Benjamin E. Cook, her former secretary, who charged that Miss Robertson, in a conversation, said he had sold her automobile without authority and had "pocketed the proceeds."

WOMEN START SMITH BOOM.

400 Take Pledge at Albany Dinner to Back Him for Presidency.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 5.—More than 400 Democratic women tonight pledged themselves to support Governor Smith for the Presidency. The pledge was given at a dinner to Mrs. E. V. Colbert, Vice Chairman of the Albany County Democratic organization.

Mrs. Anna Moscovits Cross of New York proposed the pledge "that the women of Albany County support the leader on the Hill until he takes a place where he could bring America into a position where it would be respected by every country in the world."

RAIDING OF EMBASSY MYSTIFIES ITALIANS

expedition and that he had entered the embassy not to steal money, but to get possession of certain documents.

Many Elements of Mystery.

Such are the facts as they are known at present, but they do not throw any light on some important points. In the first place there is mystery as to why, when the Ambassador became convinced that burglarious attempt was to be made against his residence, he should have come to the conclusion that the burglars were after documents rather than money. In the second place, it is not known why he did not inform the police of his suspicions.

The reasons for many of the actions of the burglars are equally obscure. Why did they advertise their presence by using skyrockets? Why did they come in such large numbers? Why did those outside make no effort to go to the assistance of the four inside when the latter were in danger of capture?

The greatest mystery, however, is as to the nature of the documents which the burglars wished to steal and who exactly it was who wanted to get possession of them. Obviously, the documents must have been more important than those which one would ordinarily expect to find in the embassy safe, seeing that several persons were willing to risk their lives in the effort to obtain them.

Documents containing a State secret would ordinarily be of no use to an ordinary private citizen. This being so, a question which is agitating Italian public opinion is, Who was it who employed the burglars to steal the documents? The burglar who said he was the leader of the expedition declared that he was induced to make the attempt by a bearded man who was a perfect stranger to him and who spoke with a French accent.

This gives rise to deep suspicions here, but the statement is without confirmation at the present stage of the inquiry.

Laid to Hunt on Negotiations With Pope.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BERLIN, March 5.—German diplomatic circles believe that the attempted robbery of the Embassy in Rome was prompted by a desire by the French to discover whether the Germans are negotiating with the Pope, according to high sources here tonight.

As the details of the attempt were published here, showing that only one document and a cipher book were sought by the intruders, who left money, which was deposited beside the documents, German circles are convinced that it was the work of French agents.

REPUBLICANS LAUD CONGRESS'S RECORD

Assert It Enacted More Constructive Laws Than Any Other in Peace Times.

TAKE PROSPERITY CREDIT

Point to Aid of Farmers, but Declare "No Class or Sectional" Legislation Was Passed.

WASHINGTON, March 5. — More worthwhile constructive legislation was enacted by the Sixty-seventh Congress than by any Congress in peace times, it was declared in a statement issued today by the Republican National Committee. The effect "of this splendid record," it was added, "is visible on every hand."

"The tremendous and in many instances unprecedented increase in industrial activity, in savings accounts, in all wholesale and retail business, which has taken place during the past two years," the statement said, "has not been accidental. Conditions have grown steadily and consistently better from month to month since March, 1921, during all of which time the Sixty-seventh Congress was practically in continuous session. This improvement would not, indeed could not, have taken place had that Congress been enacting laws hostile to or hurtful of the industrial, agricultural, commercial and financial interests."

Declaring that the outstanding work of the Congress which adjourned yesterday was its fiscal legislation, the committee statement pointed to enactment of the Budget law, which it said was "easily the most constructive piece of legislation of this generation," and had resulted in a drastic cut in public expenditures and in decreasing the number of Federal employes by nearly 100,000. The Congress, it was stated, also clipped $1,000,000,000 a year from the country's tax burden.

The committee said that a series of laws "of particular benefit to the farming interests, but none of which can be classified as sectional or class legislation," was passed. "In fact the greatest praise that could be offered the Sixty-seventh Congress," it was added, "is a statement of the fact that it enacted no class or sectional or destructive laws."

Reviewing the more important laws enacted during the last two years the committee declared they had "materially assisted in the return of normal prosperous conditions to all legitimate enterprises" and had given "agricultural, industrial and commercial interests a solid foundation upon which they can build with confidence."

ALLIGATOR HUNT FIZZLES.

Two Lads Get Only as Far as the Children's Society.

There was a time when every runaway boy headed for the wild and woolly West to kill Indians, but that day has gone. Now they head for Florida to capture alligators and big fish. That was the objective of Ernest Clark, 14, of 987 Lenox Avenue, and Hardy Scarborough, 15, of 134 West 129th Street, who started for the South yesterday and wound up in the Children's Society.

The Clark boy found $90 that his mother had put away in what she supposed was a good hiding place. The pair spent $49 on hunting knives, long trousers and leggings, and then went to the Pennsylvania Station to get tickets for Jacksonville. The ticket agent thought they were rather young and sent for the police. In time Mrs. Clark arrived, and recommended the Children's Court, where the boys will be arraigned today.

PSEUDO PRINCE IN TOILS.

H. C. Schwarm, Held in New Britain, Faces Perjury Charge.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., March 5.—Harold C. Schwarm, erstwhile "Prince Louis de Chateroux de Bussigny de Bourbon," pleaded not guilty in police court here today to a technical charge of breach of the peace. His case was continued until Thursday, with bonds fixed at $500.

Prosecutor J. G. Woods told the Court that more serious charges might be preferred against Schwarm. Asked by Judge Alling to be more specific, the prosecutor said that Schwarm would be charged with perjury. Chief of Police Hart said that still further charges may be brought after he receives information from the police of New York and Boston.

Schwarm was arrested here yesterday with his wife, who is held as a material witness. He is said to have taken out a marriage license here in March, 1921, under the name of H. R. Van de Vere. He is alleged to have masqueraded as a Russian physician in Boston.

PRESIDENT STARTS WORLD COURT FIGHT

long and important step toward the assumption of those proper and entirely safe relationships to international affairs which should be borne by such a country as our own. The recommendation that the United States adhere to the protocol under which this court has been created was not put forward without the most thorough and matured deliberation. Those who at this time are entrusted with the direction of the international relations of our country are firmly convinced that this move not only would represent the wise policy for our own people, but would be an emphatic testimony of our purpose to encourage every feasible project for establishing the rule of law, as opposed to the rule of power, in this world.

"The whole story of civilization has been the story of the efforts to substitute the domination of justice under law for armed might. I may say frankly that it is inconceivable to me that the American people, who have so long been devoted to this ideal, should refuse their adherence now to such a program as is represented by this tribunal. Nothing could be farther from the purpose of the Administration than to suggest that our country surrender any of its control over its own fundamental rights and destinies. But we may be sure that differences will always arise among States and peoples, precisely as they have always arisen between individuals; and just as courts of justice and equity have been set up to determine issues as between individuals, so it is proper and logical that provision should be made for a like adjudication of those differences between nations and peoples which may properly be committed to such determination.

"I look upon the establishment of the Court of International Justice, with the jurisdiction that has been given to it, as one of the greatest advances which world society has made toward conditions in which, at last, the rule of law may be substituted for the rule of force. It looks to the settlement of issues before they become dangerously acute; it contemplates the elimination of the causes of conflict and war. Feeling thus, I cannot but believe that our own country should be among the most devoted adherents of such a program.

"In view of these sentiments you will not doubt the sincerity with which I assure you how greatly I appreciate the testimony of approval which the Senate resolution has brought to me. Nor will you, I trust, omit to recognize the satisfaction with which I acknowledge the fact that the first testimonial which has come to me from any legislative body in the nation comes from my own State of Ohio.

"Please accept an expression of my best wishes for yourself and for the members of the Senate.

"Most sincerely yours,

MOTIVES

If a man takes the life of another the law recognizes that motive controls action and the state will ascertain the motive for the act.

But outside of matters governed by law, little thought is given to motive, although every act of every man, whether at work or at play, is controlled by motive.

Many an employer who imagines his working force and his supervision to be on a high plane would be amazed to learn that frequently 25% of an annual payroll investment is lost. A loss that could be prevented through the inculcation of sound motives in the minds of the employees.

FRENCH SHOOT MEN PULLING UP RAILS

MINERS APPEAL TO FRENCH

Ask Them to Prevent Threatened Shut-Down by Owners—British Zone to Let Troops Through.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUESSELDORF, March 5 (via Cologne).—At Westeholtz last night one man was killed and one wounded by a French patrol which ran into a party of workmen on the railroad track said to be intent on displacing a section of rail.

At Hoerde another man was killed in a fracas between troops and a number of drunken men.

At Recklinghausen, where there are three Protestant pastors, of whom two are moderate and one violently nationalist, notice has been served on the third that he must moderate his sermons and discourses or else be compelled to join the exiles over the Ruhr frontier.

At Bochum a delegation of miners from small mines yesterday made a request to the French commander to protect their interests, as the proprietors of the mines had threatened to shut down and dismiss the whole staff.

These are the only week-end incidents contained in reports of local commanders to General Degoutte at headquarters here. As a whole, the Ruhr remains quiet. There are not, and there do not seem likely to be for some time to come, any startling developments. What is most occupying the minds of people is still the lightning rise in the cost of living. All the local newspapers today doubled their price.

Money Situation Critical.

This money situation is causing far more nervousness than does the presence of the French troops. No one knows what is going to happen next and what he ought to do, whether to change foreign currency now or hold on. The banks are refusing to sell dollars and pounds and insist on paying foreign drafts in marks.

In the shops no business is being done and though food is plentiful the merchants complain that they cannot get rid of their stocks so great is the disparity between the price of the most ordinary necessities and the rate of wages being paid.

It is in the mines that the effect of French occupation is undoubtedly being most severely felt. There is still plenty of money apparently available to pay wages, but there is less and less work for the men to do, and the holiday system which began last week is being extended. Those miners who are of Polish or other foreign nationality are being invited to return home, in which case the mine owners will pay their expenses. If they refuse to leave the district they are informed that they will be paid off.

Outside the occupied area there is much more evidence of the effect of rising prices and shortage of coal than there is inside. At Muenster, the cloth mills have been reduced to working only four days a week and, from being far below cost, electric light has risen far above the world price.

No Sign Yet of Weakening.

It would be an exaggeration, however, to say that there is yet any definite sign of weakening on the part of the Germans. Among the industrial leaders even such moderate men as Krupp von Bohlen, husband of Bertha Krupp and director of the whole Krupp industries, are still opposed to any concession, while they criticise the Government as well as the industrialists who have led the Government into its present plight.

Among the workers the talk very often comes down to a formula like this:

"If England and America will fix what Germany must pay, we will pay it to them and they can settle with France. But so long as the French are here with their bayonets we won't pay them a paper mark."

To encourage local resistance the Berlin Government has issued a new order not to sell goods to the French and promising full compensation for whatever is requisitioned. With all the food and all the money necessary Berlin seems determined to bolster up the people's patriotism and so long as these are available there is no reason to believe that the local situation will greatly change.

Each side is always asking how long the other can last, and naturally the French believe they are so strong that they can far outlast the cash resources of the Government which so recently was loudly proclaiming that it could not pay even one more instalment of reparations and must have a two-year moratorium.

Darmstadt Workers to Stay Out.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

FRANKFORT, March 5.—The railway workers of Darmstadt, who struck when the French occupied the locomotive works, voted to continue in strike tonight when the French refused their demand to clear the workshop of sentinels.

The French commander met the railway men at the union headquarters this evening and told them they must continue to work, repairing locomotives, which would then be taken to Mayence to replace those damaged by the Germans during the strike operations there.

The railway workers offered guarantees that the work would be carried on if the sentries were removed, but the French declared it was not a satisfactory arrangement and would make further sabotage too easy.

The workers are meeting late into the night, discussing ways and means for carrying on the fight.

Essen Firemen Act as Police.

ESSEN, March 5.—Since the green police have been driven out the people of Essen have only the fire department to look to for protection. The telephone strike is still on, and several times daily men are arriving at fire stations breathlessly to report robberies.

The apparatus is then turned out and firemen with chemical extinguishers enter the premises. They have arrested three robbers, who were taken to prison on a hose wagon.

New Rhine Currency Report.

BERLIN, March 5.—Financial circles in Berlin have been informed that the French are planning to replace immediately German money by a new Rhine currency on a thaler basis. All German money in the vicinity will be stamped, with 100 marks as a thaler. The exchange will be fixed at ten thalers for a mark, which will be considerably better than the rate of exchange.

The new money will be printed as fast as plates can be prepared to replace the stamped over money.

Accord Reached at Cologne.

LONDON, March 5.—A dispatch to The Times from Cologne says General Sir Arthur Godley, Commander of the British forces at Cologne, and General Degoutte, the French Commander in the occupied regions, have arrived at a satisfactory agreement on the question of the transportation of French troops through the British zone.

The dispatch adds that the details of the agreement are confidential and require the approval of the respective Governments, but that it is not likely objections will be raised.

FRENCH TROOPS READY FOR FURTHER ADVANCE

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BERLIN, March 5.—Extensive movements of French troops are reported by Tribune correspondents at Elberfeld, Barmen and Darmstadt.

Since 5 o'clock this morning, French troops have practically invaded the towns and cities which lie on the edge of the Ruhr basin and are taking up positions several miles eastward of their former further outpost. Troops have been stationed to the north, south and west of Elberfeld for several weeks but tonight they are approaching the town from the northeast and southeast.

Several large bodies are operating near Darmstadt. The railway station at Griesheim was occupied this evening, the railway men there immediately stopped work, halting Frankfort-Griesheim trains.

German circles believe that these movements are in preparation for an immediate advance should the Reichstag accept the Nationalists' motion for breaking off diplomatic relations with France.

GERMANY BUYS COAL HERE.

Shipments in Cargo Lots From Hampton Roads Start This Week.

NORFOLK, Va., March 5.—Shipment of American coal to Germany, said to be a result of the French seizure of the Ruhr mines, will begin from Hampton Roads in cargo lots this week.

Two vessels, the British Ventura de Larrinaga and Norwegian Hallgrim, both in port now, after loading cargoes of coal at the Newport News terminals, will leave for German ports. A third vessel is understood to be chartered for the same purpose.

LONDON, March 5.—Civil service estimates for 1923-24, just issued, which were for the most part prepared by the late Government, show a reduction of £88,184,904 on account of the year's expenditure.

These reductions, together with promised reductions in the naval and military services, make the prospects of lower taxation in the next budget almost a certainty. It is believed the Chancellor of the Exchequer will take sixpence off the income tax and probably reduce the duties on beer, sugar and tobacco.

BONAR LAW BEATEN TWICE IN ELECTIONS

since he first became a Government Minister he has been relieved from three constituencies in succession. It is expected now that he will fade out of the political limelight, temporarily at least.

The election was fought on the Government's housing control proposals, in which Sir Arthur had the leading Cabinet responsibility. Four candidates were in the field, and there is no doubt of the fact that the Independent Tory candidate spilled the beans for the Minister. The figures are significant. 13,267 votes being cast against the Government only 7,196 in favor of it. The Laborite polled 8,029 votes, Sir Arthur 7,196 votes, the Liberal 3,214 votes and the Independent Tory 2,504 votes.

Sir Arthur declares he was beaten by "rank treachery."

There is speculation as to who will now be the Health Minister. Two names are mentioned, Colonel Leslie Wilson, chief whip for the Government, and Neville Chamberlain, the present Postmaster General. It is expected in some quarters that the Government will change its housing proposals at the last moment.

Both Send in Resignations.

LONDON, March 5 (Associated Press).—Sir Arthur Griffith-Boscawen, defeated in the bye-election for the Mitcham Division of Surrey has resigned from his post as Minister of Health in the Bonar Law cabinet. The election was necessitated by the retirement of T. C. Worsfold, the sitting member, and the fact that Sir Arthur was defeated for Parliament in the general election.

Earlier in the day Colonel G. F. Stanley, Under Secretary for Home Affairs, who was defeated in the bye-election for the east division of Willesden, also tendered his resignation to Premier Bonar Law.

The Government's ill-luck in its search for safe seats for its members who were defeated in the general election is compelling Premier Bonar Law to consider partial reconstruction of his Ministry, as was foreshadowed a fortnight ago.

It is probable that Sir Arthur Griffith Boscawen will be succeeded by Arthur Neville Chamberlain, the present Postmaster General, which will make still another ministerial vacancy.

It was learned today that Mr. Bonar Law had invited Lord Birkenhead to join the Government, but had met with refusal possibly because, as rumored, Birkenhead aspires to the foreign portfolio, and the Prime Minister could hardly displace Lord Curzon in order to install Lord Birkenhead. It is understood that Mr. Bonar Law is making overtures to Austen Chamberlain and other members of the late Government who went out with Mr. Lloyd George, with the object of strengthening the debating power of the Government benches.

Thus far only one of the five Ministers defeated in the general election has managed to get back, namely Colonel Leslie Wilson, Parliamentary Secretary to the Treasury. Among others mentioned tonight as the possible successor of Griffith-Boscawen as Minister of Health is Lord Robert Cecil.

Mr. Catterall, who came between the Health Minister and victory, was in serious danger of being assaulted this afternoon. An ugly rush was made at him when he was leaving the polling station, but his supporters forced a bodyguard and got him away in an automobile, amid cries of "Traitor!" from the friends of the official Government candidate.

Colonel Stanley's campaign was fought along much the same lines as Boscawen's, with the same issues involved. The man who defeated him, Harcourt Johnstone, is half American, his mother, the wife of Sir Alan Johnstone, being a sister of Gifford Pinchot, Governor of Pennsylvania. He was aided materially in his victory by the splendid election campaign of Lady Johnstone.

Sir Arthur Griffith-Boscawen was known as "a man with a grievance" even before the fall of the Lloyd George Coalition and he and Stanley Baldwin were largely responsible for the Conservatives deciding last Fall at the Carlton meeting to break with Mr. Lloyd George. For this he was rewarded with the Ministry of Health in the new Cabinet, Baldwin becoming Chancellor of the Exchequer. He subsequently came in for a good share of Austen Chamberlain's tongue lashing during the campaign which preceded the November elections, in which he was defeated at Taunton.

Taunton is a farming district and as he had been Parliamentary Secretary of the Board of Agriculture he was held to be responsible for the deplorable condition of British agriculture which prevailed at the time of the election. Since then he has four times attempted to win a seat in the House of Commons in as many by-elections.

He was born in 1865 and first entered Parliament in 1892 from the Taunton Division; henceforth he was to hold several under-secretaryships until the World War, when he took command of the Hampshire regiment which served in France. Although he was mentioned in dispatches he was disappointed that the Coalition had no better rewards for him than Parliamentary Secretary, first to the Ministry of Pensions and then to the Ministry of Agriculture.

SEEK WAY TO PAY RHINE ARMY COST

Allies Again Confer With Assistant Secretary Wadsworth, but No Decision Is Reached.

ATTITUDE IS PESSIMISTIC

One Suggestion Is That America Be Reimbursed From Future Reparation Receipts.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 5.—At the end of a three hours' discussion today between Eliot Wadsworth, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, on the one hand, and representatives of England, France, Italy and Belgium, on the other hand, of the problem of America's claim to payment of $250,000,000, the cost of the United States Army of Occupation on the Rhine, it was announced that no progress had been made. The general attitude is one of pessimism.

Mr. Wadsworth would give no explanation of the proceedings, and he seemed disposed to live up closely to his request at the initial meeting that the negotiations be kept secret.

However, from other sources I learn that the reason for pessimism lies in declarations made by the American representative that the United States would not accept any considerable part of her bill in materials nor would she pay it out of German property sequestered in the United States, but that she wanted to be paid through the Allies in cash.

Problem for the Allies.

This demand presented to the Allies, who are no longer receiving cash from Germany, naturally presents a problem not capable of quick solution. Since the Allies refuse to reopen the question of distribution of the 1,000,000,000 marks paid them by Germany last year and divided up, the best possible offer they could make would be to give Washington an assurance of a percentage of future German payments. And as future German payments depend largely, if not entirely, upon the success of the Franco-Belgian occupation of the Ruhr, an occupation the United States Government has not approved, it may be seen that there are immense difficulties in the way of reaching any satisfactory solution at this time.

If the French and the Belgians succeed in the Ruhr, the Allies may be able to collect America's bill for her some of these days. If they fail, they can never collect it.

Mr. Wadsworth, who appears to have come without a definite plan, asked today to be allowed to study the total German payments made to the Reparation Commission of 5,800,000,000 marks in cash and materials. In discussion of this problem he made the statement that America did not regard favorably payment in kind, because customs and traffic difficulties lay in the way of payment in coal, wood and dyes, and because the total amount which could so be paid would be small.

He also stated quite positively that Washington did not acquiesce in the allied contention that America should pay herself out of German property sequestered in the United States.

To give the different delegates time to consult their Government, the next meeting was fixed for Saturday.

Discussion Very Courteous.

PARIS, March 5 (Associated Press).—The conference between Eliot Wadsworth, American Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and the allied financial representatives on the costs of the American occupation of the Rhine was continued today. Various methods of reimbursing the United States being discussed, and it was adjourned until Saturday without a decision having been reached.

The allied financial representatives consider the American claim for army expenses should be met, and are disposed to arrange some method of reimbursement satisfactory to the United States, but no wholly acceptable method has been found. Some favor is shown, however, to the suggestion that reimbursement be undertaken by the Reparation Commission out of future receipts.

The conference lasted for more than two hours, and the tone adopted by the Allies was very courteous. Sir John Bradbury later said that it would be unfair to any of the parties concerned to let the suggestion crop out that there was any unwillingness on the part of the Allies to meet the situation in the most helpful manner, and added that it was a question of procedure to find ways and means.

Germany at the present time is paying in kind an estimated total of 2,000,000 gold marks monthly to Great Britain, Rumania, Jugoslavia and Italy, and the possibility has been hinted that these countries will receive the suggestion that they make cash or other payment to the United States in proportion to the values received.

BERLIN, March 5.—Germany has already begun direct negotiations with Italy regarding deliveries of nitrates on the reparation account, according to official announcement. A statement to this effect has been sent to the Reparation Commission in reply to an invitation that Germany enter into conference relative to such deliveries to France, Belgium and Italy.

The reply declares that because of the Ruhr occupation the German Government is not in a position to make deliveries to France and Belgium, and therefore could not send representatives to the contemplated conference, which was fixed for today.

SAYS WILSON PROMISED FOOD FOR GERMANY

Haase Then Declined Russian Help, Radek Asserts — Lenin Again Predicts World Revolt.

MOSCOW, March 5 (Associated Press).—A story that former President Wilson, after the armistice, perhaps prevented Germany's acceptance of Russian food is told by Karl Radek, the Soviet chief of publicity, in an article in Pravda. M. Radek expresses the opinion that now, as then, the German proletariat has a chance to unite with Russia in beginning a new era in history and changing the map of the world.

The article relates how, after vainly trying for a week to make connections with Berlin, Foreign Minister Tchitcherin and Radek finally got in communication with Herr von Haase, then Director of Food in the German Government. The Russian officials, the article states, offered to start a trainload of grain to Germany, but von Haase replied thanking them for their offer and saying:

"But we have received from President Wilson a promise that America would supply Germany with foodstuffs in sufficient quantity. We therefore ask you to use the bread for the hungry of Russia."

Radek, appealing to German workers to unite with those in Russia, urges the German proletariat to save itself from the "foreign yoke," and declares that a union of the Russo-German working classes is bound to come.

Premier Lenin also contributes a lengthy article, in which he reiterates that while a world revolution is inevitable it is likely to be postponed until the masses of the people in India and China are sufficiently educated and developed to wage the struggle. The Premier says that the interventionists in Russia and Europe were defeated and the counter-revolution was broken because of dissension in the camps of "the Eastern exploiters and the Western exploiters," meaning Japan and America. Until the final struggle comes, in which the great masses of the East, he thinks, will have a part, the Premier asserts that Russia must adopt an economic program capable of preventing the "imperialistic" European States from crushing her.

To Observe Manzoni Anniversary.

ROME, March 5.—Premier Mussolini has sent a circular letter to all Italian representatives abroad urging them to commemorate on May 22 the fiftieth anniversary of the death of Alessandro Manzoni, the noted Italian novelist and poet. [Alessandro Manzoni was born at Milan, March 7, 1785, and died at that city May 22, 1873. He was the chief of the Italian romantic school. His masterpiece is the historical novel, "I Promessi Sposi," translated into English as "The Betrothed Lovers."]

CUNO CONSIDERING FEELERS TO FRANCE

From the highest official sources The Tribune is able to give the gist of the address which will outline the foreign policy of the present German Government and may lead to a diplomatic settlement of the Ruhr dispute.

Herr Cuno will open his address with a strong protest against further occupation of German territory and the death penalty, which was announced against railway workers by the French. He will state that the occupation threat constitutes a violation of the nation's rights under the Versailles Treaty and he will appeal to all nations to become conscious of their moral duties and not allow such a trampling on international rights. He will then develop the lines of the future German policy and point out the new political situation in Europe.

Ready for More Resistance.

He will state that new French pressure will provoke German counter-measures for increased passive resistance, after which he will launch into the most important paragraphs in which he will give the conditions under which Germany will be willing to approach a council table.

The Chancellor will state his declaration of Germany's position and he will attempt to prove the honest determination of Germany to make reparations for war damages and to aid in the reconstruction of Europe.

He will then turn strongly against the Nationalist demands and declare that he will never seek the goal demanded by the Nationalist Party. He will flatly refuse to entertain the Nationalist demands that diplomatic relations be broken off with France, as such an act would give rise to the possibility of a new war. He will declare that Germany will never take up arms in this fight and warn all hot-headed Nationalists against instigating armed resistance.

Herr Stresemann, leader of the People's Party, who will follow Herr Cuno, will make a more direct offer of the German terms. He will declare that his party is ready to organize a Franco-German trust of big industries if France will repair the wrongs it has done in the Ruhr. It is interesting to note that such a trust was proposed by the French, with their industrials holding 20 per cent. of the stock of the Ruhr industries, before they proceeded with the occupation.

Socialists Approve Speech.

The Socialists tonight, through the agency of Herr Loeb, President of the Reichstag, received an outline of Chancellor Cuno's speech. The Tribune learns that Herr Loeb approved the outline in the name of the Socialist Party.

Herr Wells, the Socialist leader, will probably speak, but Foreign Minister von Rosenberg will not say anything until Wednesday.

A further clause in President Ebert's proclamation against espionage will be proposed tomorrow, asking for the severest penalties for Germans in occupied or unoccupied territory who give any aid whatsoever to invading troops. The popular cry for new legislation bordering in severity on wartime measures offers the best barometer of political and national feeling in Berlin.

Rupture Not Expected by French.

PARIS, March 5.—The Quai d'Orsay has no confirmation of the report from Berlin that the German Government intends to sever diplomatic relations with France and Belgium. The report is not credited here, especially since the publication of an agency dispatch this afternoon denying it.

The Quai d'Orsay states that it received numerous messages today from the French Embassy in Berlin, none of which mentioned a diplomatic rupture.

It is generally believed here that Germany would have more to lose than France by such a move. The view is held that sooner or later Germany must make proposals to France and that she would then need her diplomatic machinery in Paris.

POINCARE DENIES CUNO'S ASSERTIONS

Repeats France Does Not Plan Annexation, But Wants Only Reparations.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 5.—Premier Poincaré today made the following statement concerning Chancellor Cuno's assertions:

"The German Government, by the voice of Chancellor Cuno has protested against the occupation of the ports of Mannheim and Karlsruhe and the railroad shops at Darmstadt. France does not aim at a hegemony of iron and coal and at the dismemberment of Germany, as the German Chancellor says; she wishes the reparations due her to be paid. The French Government on numerous occasions has declared it has no idea of annexations and no idea of imperialism.

"When Chancellor Cuno enumerates the sacrifices of Germany and defends the German industrials against the charge of sabotaging reparations he forgets the sacrifices of France for the past four years for the reconstruction of her devastated regions.

"Germany has paid for reparations since the end of the war a total of 5,300,000,000 marks gold. Of this total France, up to December 1, 1922, received 1,779,000,000, which does not even cover the cost of the Army of Occupation and the Spa advances up to that date. The French Government during that time has expended a total of 95,000,000,000 francs, more than 54,000,000,000 of which went to the devastated regions. One may see on which side lie the sacrifices.

"Absolute proof that the German Government, aided by the industrials, has sabotaged reparations lies in the fact that despite the occupation of the Ruhr, despite heavy purchases of English coal in foreign money by the German Government, German exchange has passed from 65,000 to the dollar to 22,000 and Germany declares she can get along without coal from the Ruhr.

"Therefore the sums expended by Germany to send up the mark and buy coal abroad could have been employed for reparations, and the fall of the mark was as artificial as its recovery. Therefore, also, since Germany can so easily get along without the 2,280,000 tons of coal she received monthly from the Ruhr she could have fulfilled completely the coal program of the Commission on Reparations.

"As for the proposals of the Committee of Bankers of which Chancellor Cuno speaks, they had for their immediate purpose reduction without discussion of the claim of France against Germany; this claim not even covering the needs of France the proposal could only be rejected. Besides the French Government had repeatedly declared that the question of reparations must be arranged according to the Treaty of Peace; that is to say, by decision of the Commission on Reparation and not by a committee of bankers, whoever they may be."

REPORTS REBELLION WANING IN IRELAND

Observer, Returning After a Seven Months' Absence, Says Free State Has Made Good.

DUBLIN IS QUIETER NOW

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

DUBLIN, March 5.—The Irish Free State has made good and the republican rebellion is at an end. This assurance was given to me today by Irish Ministers on my return to Dublin after a seven months' absence, and this was the impression I got from the general appearance of things and from the man in the street.

Since the surrender of Liam Deasy and his men there has been a steady disintegration of the republican forces, if the bands operating in one or two forces could be dignified by that name. An Irish Minister told me that there were good fighting men in Cork, Kerry and parts of Tipperary, but that they have all come into the Free State fold.

Dublin is quiet now except for occasional sniping or the explosion of a land mine by individuals, but there is no organized force. Matters have improved so much that Ministers, who have been living in Government buildings, practically all prisoners for months, are now able to visit their homes and see their families, although it is still unsafe for them to live unguarded and probably will be for some time.

The most serious situation is in the country, where country homes are destroyed with monotonous regularity; but this, I am sure, is not political, but pure Jacquerie. It is done from the same motives which prompted the French peasants to burn chateaux after the Revolution, a desire to obtain the land which belongs to the owners of the houses after they have been driven from the country.

The Government has taken stern measures to end this agricultural anarchy, and is retaliating on them in a way they can understand, by seizing and selling their cattle for the benefit of their victims. Also, the Government is placing bodies of troops throughout the country to replace the unarmed police, who it is now recognized cannot deal with armed men by moral force alone.

The improvement in the appearance of the national troops is amazing, considering the short time since they have been organized. Six months ago the National Army was just a mob of slouchy boys in uniform. Now it is an army of smart soldiers who take pride in their appearance and bear every evidence of efficiency.

The Ministers admit that some sections still leave much to be desired. The continued escape of Mr. de Valera from arrest is frankly admitted to be the fault of the army intelligence, which ought to have laid him by the heels long ago. I am assured that there is no truth in the theory somewhat widely held that the Government does not want to arrest Mr. de Valera, because it would not know what to do with him, or in a similar theory industriously promulgated by republican women that it is afraid of an outburst by popular indignation if it arrested the republican chief.

The Government wants Mr. de Valera and has made up its mind what to do with him. It intends to get him before long.

FIVE KILLED IN IRISH FIGHT.

Free State Captures Nine Rebels, Including Leader Named Daly.

DUBLIN, March 5.—Two irregulars were killed, three wounded and seven captured, among the latter an important leader named Daly, in a sharp fight today with the Free State troops near Cahirsiveen, County Kerry. The troops lost three men killed and two wounded.

In Dublin tonight several casualties resulted when the military posts at the City Hall, the Telephone Exchange and Fowler's Hall were fired upon by irregulars. During the firing people in the streets ran for cover in order to escape the machine gun bullets.

ITALIAN ARMS IN CHINA.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PEKING, March 5.—The Chinese Foreign Office has protested to the Italian Minister against the selling to Chang Tso-lin, the Manchurian war lord, of $5,000,000 worth of machine guns, small arms and ammunition which Chang has ordered for delivery at Tientsin and Chingwangtao.

General Wu Pei-pu has become more aggressive in his efforts to bring the Yangtse provinces into accord with Peking, and this accounts for his increasing concentrations at Hankow and other points. His forces include Chihli and Honan troops. General Wu is sending heavy reinforcements to aid General Yangsen's effort to recover Sze-chwan for the Peking Government. He already has 150,000 troops in the field in Sze-chwan.

Telegrams from consular agents show the increased progress of troops favorable to General Wu in Kiangsi and Fukien provinces, while Wu insists that General Schen Hung-ming, who recently captured Canton, will become the Military Governor of Kwantung Province.

This is a direct challenge to Sun Yat-sen and is due to Dr. Sun's announcement that on reaching Canton he would join the six Southern counties into an organized unity under provincial autonomy unless the Northern militarists yielded.

The money for the campaigns is being raised chiefly by levies on merchants in all cities in the involved districts. Both sides lack ammunition for prolonged warfare owing to embargoes, but lately Chang has been encouraging Dr. Sun, who for a little while seemed amenable to the reunification plan worked out in Pekin.

Zaghloulist Leaders Are Arrested in Cairo Following Bomb Outrage.

CAIRO, March 5.—Excitement due to the bomb attacks on British soldiers last night was heightened this morning by the arrest of leading members of the Zaghloulist party and the suspension of Zaghloulist and other extremist Nationalist newspapers tonight.

British soldiers have been parading the city this evening, carrying sticks and threatening to thrash natives in reprisal for the wounding of their comrades by the bomb throwers.

A record number of American tourists arrived in Cairo today. They have been keenly interested in the excitement here and are perfectly safe, as there is no disposition among the Egyptians at this juncture to create disorders.

SMITH URGES MOVE FOR WATER POWERS

HOLDS SPEED IS NECESSARY

DISPUTES FEDERAL CLAIMS

Says Niagara and St. Lawrence Are Under State and Should Be Developed by It.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 5.—In a special message sent to the Legislature tonight Governor Smith demands that "an adequate appropriation be made of funds to be rendered immediately available" for the purpose of beginning development under State auspices of the undeveloped power on the Niagara and St. Lawrence Rivers, and transmitting current to the various municipalities throughout the State for distribution and sale by them.

A feature of the Governor's message is a recommendation that all existing transmission lines, privately owned and used to transmit power generated by private capital, be declared common carriers. This done, they would be regulated by the State with regard to operation and the rates charged for current.

"They should be compelled to transmit electrical energy at a reasonable price," says the Governor's message.

The Governor declares that the awards of licenses to private concerns for the establishment of hydroelectric power plants should be discontinued at once, and calls for the instant abolition of the Water Power Commission created during Governor Miller's Administration with power to issue such licenses. The Water Power Commission as at present constituted is controlled by the Democrats.

Some comment was elicited by a request of the Governor that the State Engineer be empowered to go ahead at once with development of power from the waters of the Niagara and St. Lawrence Rivers. The State's rights to control the waters of these boundary streams, and of navigable streams throughout the State generally, has been questioned and the Federal Government has created a water power commission to issue licenses for development of sites adjoining such water courses. Under Governor Miller litigation was begun to contest the right of the Federal Government, but there has been no decision as yet.

Governor Smith, in another part of his message, calls for an appropriation of $75,000 for the Attorney General to defray the cost of "the action now pending to determine the right, control and jurisdiction of the State over the navigable waters within its border for power development.

Text of the Governor's Message.

"To the Legislature:

"In my first message to the Legislature I spoke about the necessity for the development of our water power. Our resources in this direction excel any other State in the Union. The Niagara River on the west and the St. Lawrence on the north furnish power possibilities of immense value. The flow of these rivers is unusually uniform, compared with other streams of the State. They stand alone so far as the quantity and quality of available power is concerned. These two rivers are capable of furnishing sufficient firm primary basic power to serve the needs of all of our people. Electrical energy from these streams can be transmitted to every municipality in the State. The art of electrical transmission has advanced to that extent. There is a very urgent demand for such energy everywhere for light, heat and power. Our municipalities need it for light; our industries demand it for power.

The State should develop these power resources on these rivers and transmit energy created thereby to every municipality over transmission lines owned and controlled by the State. Under proper management the State can develop these powers cheaper than private corporations. This is obvious from the fact that the State is enabled to secure funds for such development at a much lower rate of interest than private capital. This would enable our municipalities to secure an abundance of firm primary basic power for distribution in such manner as they may determine at approximately the cost of production and delivery. The ultimate consumer would be able to secure this power at the lowest possible price. I recommend:

"First—That appropriate legislation be enacted to carry out this policy, which means the immediate development by the State of the undeveloped water powers available on the Niagara and St. Lawrence. We should at the same time provide means for the transmission and sale to the municipalities of the electrical energy thereby created. Provision should be made for beginning the work immediately. To do this will require an adequate appropriation of public funds made immediately available.

"Second—That the State Engineer be clothed with the power and charged with the duty of beginning development work at once by the most economical plan that will contemplate development and distribution to municipalities by the best methods known. Ample authority should be conferred upon him to enter upon negotiations with the Federal Government for consent to develop hydroelectric power on these streams consistent with its control over these waters for navigation.

"Third—That pending the development of all these powers, existing transmission lines should be declared common carriers by law and compelled to transmit electrical energy at a reasonable

"Fourth—That no further permits or licenses for the development of power should be granted to any private corporation. The surest way to bring this about is to repeal any statute creating any commission, board or officer already vested with any such authority. Any statute heretofore enacted conferring upon commissions, boards, bodies of any kind, power to grant any right, lease or license to develop water powers that belong to the State should be instantly repealed.

"Fifth—That seventy-five thousand dollars ($75,000) be made immediately available to the Attorney General to enable him to defray the expenses of the action now pending and begun by the State against the Federal Government designed to determine the right, control and jurisdiction of the State over the navigable waters within its border for power development.

"This action should be prosecuted with the utmost care, vigor and dispatch in order that this vital question be finally determined. We have already delayed too long. While we have been debating and bickering over the enactment of laws for the progressive development of our great water power under State ownership and control, the Federal Government has enacted a water power law which challenges our right, authority and jurisdiction over the navigable waters of our State in all matters relating to power development.

"The Federal Government contends that it has the right, authority and jurisdiction to control and dictate by license how, when and where developments are to be made on the Niagara and St. Lawrence Rivers, as well as all other navigable streams of the State. Such right and authority, if sustained, would enable the Federal Government to deprive the State of New York and its people of this priceless heritage bestowed upon us by the Creator Himself. In the final analysis it would permit the Federal Government to divert the energy created by the fall of water in our streams to other States against our will. The bed of our streams over which power-creating water flows belongs to the State or, better still, to its citizens. Our use and control of the same is threatened. I am credibly advised that a strong and determined propaganda is now being spread in support of a plan to divert the electrical energy from our border streams to territory outside the State. This we must resist with all the power that we can bring to our command.

"No pending public question is of more moment to the people of this State than the development of this great resource. It has been exploited in the past in the interest of private corporations that have operated it for private gain. What remains of it must be developed in accordance with the enlightened thought of today, and that, I take it, to be the State itself, under State ownership and State control, to the end that all of the people may be able to realize the individual benefit which should flow to them from their own resources and their own property.

"After investigation now in progress with respect to the development of power from surplus canal waters at Crescent and Vischer Ferry, I shall take occasion to address you further upon that subject. ALFRED E. SMITH."

WASHINGTON OPPOSES STATE'S POWER PLANS

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The Federal Government today filed in the Supreme Court its amended bill in answer to the original proceeding begun by the State of New York to test the constitutionality of the Federal Water Power act.

It contended that the case was defective in that it does not join essential parties and is without equity. No concrete question is presented by the State, the Federal Government declared, to show what the State's plans are in the erection of structures in the navigable waters of the State or whether such structures would affect navigation. The questions which the State raised do not present, the Government asserted, a controversy within the original jurisdiction of the court, and they amount, therefore, to a suit against the United States, which could not be maintained without the Federal Government's consent.

The reply denied that the United States had not "made or incurred liability for any expenditures or done any work for the improvement of the navigability of any of the waters constituting the Barge Canal system."

Whatever right the State has in the beds of any of the rivers named in its bill is subject, the Government insisted, to the paramount right of the United States to take the same for the purpose of navigation.

Referring to the St. Lawrence River, the reply declared that the subordinate rights of the State to Federal control must prevail. Not knowing that the plans of the State are with regard to the river the Government stated it was unable to determine whether the State's plans would interfere with navigation.

Pointing out that the Federal Water Power act had no application to structures placed in navigable waters prior to its approval, the Government declared it had not taken nor threatened any action with regard to the State's proposed hydro-electric projects because none of them had been laid before the Water Power Commission.

The improvement of the St. Lawrence River for navigation by ocean vessels being under consideration of an international commission, notice was served by the Government in the brief that should the State proceed to develop power at the two sites it had selected the Federal Government would institute proceedings to prevent it.

No action had been taken by the Federal Government, the brief stated, looking to the enforcement of any penalties against New York under the Water Power act.

The act as interpreted by the Government does not transfer the title of any properties from the State to the United States nor does it provide for the Federal Government to produce electric power from the water power in the State. It does not confer, the Government added, any power upon the Federal Power Commission to control rates for the sale of electric power developed from water power in the States unless that power becomes a matter of interstate commerce and the States interested are unable to agree upon rates.

The Federol Power Commission disclaimed any intention to regulate any public utility in the State or the production of electric power either by the State or individuals.

PINCHOT ASKS POWER GRANT

Wants $35,000 From Legislature for Water and Fuel Survey.

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 5.—Governor Pinchot today requested that the Legislature provide a special appropriation of $35,000 to carry on an outline survey of water and fuel resources available for Pennsylvania and of the most practicable means for their utilization for power development.

The Governor explained that the purpose is to conduct a carefuly study of power development possibilities both within and outside the State, expressing it as his opinion that the development of Niagara Falls, the Delaware, Susquehanna and Potomac Rivers and other sources of power is of as great interest and value to the State as if these sources were entirely within Pennsylvania.

"Such a survey should point out the way to secure for all industries, farms, homes and railroads in all parts of the commonwealth an abundant supply of cheap electric energy while duly safeguarding existing investments in the electric industry," the Governor said.

WHY HERMINE VISITS CORFU.

LONDON, March 5.—Reuter's correspondent at Doorn says that the visit to Corfu of Princess Hermine, the former Emperor's wife, is being undertaken at the request of Wilhelm, and is for the purpose of investigating the state of his property at Corfu. Absolute denial is given, according to the correspondent, to the report that her visit to Corfu is related to her physical condition.

Calls for Federal Mine Operation.

ALBANY, March 5.—A resolution calling on the Federal Government to operate mines and distribute coal was offered in the Legislature tonight by Assemblyman Coughlin, Democrat, of Kings. He maintained the present fuel shortage was due in large measure to the absence of unified action and cooperation between mines and the railroads.

WOULD DROP RACING AND FAIR BOARDS

LESSENS LUNN'S INFLUENCE

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 5.—Lieut. Gov. Lunn would be cut off from what at present is the principal sphere of influence or his office outside the rostrum in the Senate Chamber if Governor Smith's plan for statutory consolidation of State Departments goes through.

Among the thirty-three bills that were introduced at the session tonight to carry out recommendations for the simplification of the State Government through the abolition of obsolete agencies and the consolidation of others with some already existing, were two providing for the abolition of the State Fair Commission and the State Racing Commission.

Neither of these departments was mentioned in the Governor's special message of a week ago as among the bodies to be abolished, and when the bills were introduced tonight surprise was expressed coupled with predictions that the Governor might find that he was borrowing trouble.

Lieut. Gov. Lunn, who has become a powerful figure in the Democratic Party since his election, has taken as much delight in his work as Chairman of the State Fair Commission as a small boy takes in a new toy. He has been exceedingly active in fostering the project for the erection of a $500,000 coliseum in the State Fair Grounds at Syracuse. In some influential quarters it was stated tonight that the coliseum project would go the way the commission did.

The bills provide that the duties of the State Fair Commisson and the State Racing Commission be transferred to the Department of Farms and Markets. In a message which probably will be presented to the Legislature before the week is over, Governor Smith will recommend placing that department under Executive instead of Legislative control.

The State Racing Commission does not involve any expense to the State, except for the payment of a secretary. Its three positions are non-salaried but are eagerly sought by men of means who are lovers of horses. General James W. Wadsworth, father of the senior United States Senator from this State, has been a member of the commission for a dozen years or more. The other members are former Congressman George W. Loft, a prominent member of Tammany Hall, and Harry F. Sinclair, an oil man.

Positions on the State Fair Commission carry salaries for five members appointed by the Governor. Pierre Lorillard Jr. of the Tuxedo, is a member whose term would not expire until 1927. George R. Fitts of McLean who, in 1920, was the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor, is filling a term which has two years more to run. The fifth appointive member is Henry R. Williams of Dunkirk, whose term expired at midnight.

With the bill to abolish the State Fair Commission, Governor Smith sent to the Senate the nomination of Mrs. Thomas J. Stofer of Buffalo, as a successor to Commissioner Williams.

In other respects the bills introduced tonight follow closely the recommendations in the special message of a week ago. If the bills are enacted the net result would be the abolition of a dozen bureaus and the consolidation of about fifty agencies of the State government with less than a dozen existing major departments.

'SEES' WITH HIS CHEEKS.

CHICAGO, March 5.—Deprived of sight, Carl Bostrom has learned to "see" with his cheeks, so that he walks briskly and unaided about the campus of Northwestern University, where he is studying journalism. The sensitized nerves of his face "see" buildings and trees, streets and the lake, doorways and stairs by noting delicate variations in air pressure. They respond to faint differences more sensitively than a barometer does. Out of these differences Bostrum has constructed such an accurate mental picture of the campus that he goes about without a guide or a cane.

"Each building has an atmospheric aura all its own," the sightless student said today, as he breezed across the campus. "I can recognize buildings by the light rays emanating from them. I know them by their peculiar influences on the air about them. I see them with the nerves of my face.

"Owing to the water there's a marked difference in the atmospheric pressure at opposite sides of the campus. The air near the lake is humid, of course. On the other side of the campus it's drier. That makes it easy for me to place myself when I come out of a building.

"I'm sure I'll be able to get about as a reporter, even though I'm blind. I'm determined to be a newspaper man. That's why I'm sticking so hard to college."

MILLERAND TO GO TO ITALY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 5.—The Eclair says today that President Millerand will soon make a trip to Rome on invitation of the Italian King. There is no official confirmation of the report but it is thought to be true.

In view of the demand of a certain part of French opinion that France seeks to make an alliance with Italy to replace the entente cordiale with England the projected journey of the President of the Republic evokes considerable interest. However, it is pointed out that M. Millerand is not a partisan of any effort to form a Continental bloc to the exclusion of England and it is doubted that his trip would be for the purpose of concluding any such arrangement.

THESIS ON ORCHIDS IN AIRPLANE TRIAL

Semaphore Code to Classify Visitors and Padded Payrolls Also Feature Chicago Case.

CHICAGO, March 5.—Airplanes were shoved into the background by a thesis on orchids, a semaphore system indicating the wealth of visitors, and padded payrolls in the trial of Clarence I. Hogue, assistant inspector of airplanes in this district during the war, and Lucien M. Simpson, an inspector, which started today before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

Alfred R. Brunker, Hogue's chief and first witness in the trial, testified that he appointed Hogue because he did not have sufficient time from his other business interests to devote to the work. He went to Washington, he testified, to conclude arrangements for giving up the office and upon his return found things in a "weird state."

A semaphore system of lights had been installed in Hogue's office, where an office girl could indicate to Hogue b red, green and yellow lights the wealth of the visitor, Brunker testified.

Brunker said Hogue was a native of New York, had been a Captain in the Canadian air forces, wounded and invalided home and that he seemed to be the right man for the position when he was looking for an assistant.

He testified on cross-examination that he was convinced Hogue had been mentally irresponsible during his absence in Washington. He said he thought Hogue had suffered a nervous breakdown.

DIES FOR CHILD MURDER.

Floyd Smith, Pennsylvania Farmer, Had Received Seven Respites

BELLEFONTE, Pa., March 5.—Floyd Smith of Bradford County, Pa., was executed at Rockview Penitentiary today for the killing of his infant child in South Waverly, Pa., in April, 1920. He was led to the chair at 7:08 A. M. and was pronounced dead at 7:17 by Dr. Robert H. Campbell, the prison physician, after three contacts.

Continuous efforts since he was sentenced in February, 1921, had been made to save Smith from the electric chair, and until almost the last moment he was hopeful that Governor Pinchot would interfere. Smith received seven respites, one within five hours of going to the death chair. His case was carried to the highest court in the State and last week the Board of Pardons refused a commutation of sentence.

Smith was accompanied to the death chamber by the Rev. George L. Courtney, the prison chaplain. He was composed and made no confession. He maintained to the end that he did not wilfully kill the child.

The child Smith was accused of killing was born a few months after his marriage. According to Smith, he started out at night to abandon it. Near a farm house in the vicinity of his home, he said, a dog barked and in attempting to run away he fell upon the child, crushing it to death. Fearing he would be charged with murder, Smith said, he placed the body in a creek in South Waverly. He was arrested at Binghamton, N. Y.

TABOOS RIVERSIDE DUMPS.

Senator Straus's Bill Would Also Eliminate Drive Coal Pockets.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 5.—Senator Straus and Assemblyman Rosenman of New York City introduced tonight their bill for the elimination of garbage dumps and coal pockets from Riverside Drive. This subject has been before the Legislature for a number of years.

The bill, which differs in some respects from earlier measures, provides for the compensation of persons whose property is taken and gives to the city which is operating the dumps, and to private owners operating coal pockets a year in which to move out. This year's bill would become effective on Jan. 21 next.

"The City Administration is today erecting waste reclamation plants at points on the west side which will in a short time take the place of the present antiquated and unsightly garbage dumps which mar Riverside Drive," said a joint statement made by the sponsors." Moreover, the City Administration is refusing to grant renewal permits for coal dumps. As these leases expire they lapse."

IGNORE WARD-PETERS CRIME

ALBANY, N. Y., March 5.—An attempt made by Assemblyman Cuvillier to have the Assembly Ways and Means Committee discharged tonight from further consideration of his resolution calling for an investigation of the Ward-Peters murder mystery in Westchester County was a dismal failure.

After Mr. Cuvillier had spoken for more than half an hour Assemblyman Donohue, the Democratic leader, spoke against the resolution. The motion to discharge was then voted down viva voce, only two or three voting with Cuvillier.

Cuvillier declared that justice had been denied in Westchester County because Walter S. Ward, who was indicted for the killing of Clarence Peters, "is wealthy and thinks he is above the law." Cuvillier also charged that District Attorney Roland of Westchester, who permitted the indictment against Ward to be dismissed two days after he took office, is guilty of malfeasance in office and ought to be removed.

BOY OFFENDERS FEWER.

Better Breeding and Probation Decrease Juvenile Delinquents.

ALBANY, March 5.—Improvement in the bred of small boys and the State policy of probation for juvenile delinquents instead of commitment to State institutions is depopulating those institutions, according to a report of the State Board of Charities. The number of delinquents is lower this year than ever. The same conditions holds in other States, the report adds.

A marked tendency away from institutional care for classes of sick children is remarked in the report. Older persons, however, are being treated in increasing numbers in dispensaries and hospitals.

State Senate Gets Pure Coal Bill.

ALBANY, March 5.—A pure coal bill was introduced tonight by Senator Ryan, Democrat, of Rensselaer. Under its provisions it would be a misdemeanor for any persons, firm or corporation to sell or offer for sale as coal any fuel which is mixed with coke, charcoal, slag, limestone or slate, unless the purchaser was notified in advance of the adulteration.

On the portable tripod, black velvet cable that used to stand beside the camera, "just-in-case," there was only a basket of flowers, a pair of opera glasses, and a bottle of wine. Almost under a glass ball.

And how realistic those pictures were! As viewed through the satin lenses they lost not merely width and height—but depth as well. All Europe and Niagara Falls were in the basket.

PRENDERGAST DARES SMITH TO OUST HIM

RESENTS TALK OF DICTATION

Chairman Insists That Commission, and Not Telephone User, Is the Best Judge of Cost.

A signed dispatch from Albany printed in The World yesterday asserted that Governor Smith, because of the public dissatisfaction over the new telephone rates ordered by the Public Service Commission, would urge the speedy passage of the bill pending in the Legislature giving him power to oust the commission. Under the apparent impression that the dispatch was inspired, Chairman William A. Prendergast of the commission issued a reply in which he practically defied the Governor and stood by the new telephone rates, which he said were "right."

The purpose of the provision in the law making it necessary to have two-thirds of a concurrent vote of the Legislature before a public service commission could be ousted, he explained, was to insure dignity and permanency to a commission acting in a judicial capacity and to free it from "capricious interference from a Governor, no matter what his name might be." Concerning an intimation in the article that the Governor should have, as formerly, the power of removing public service commissioners, Mr. Prendergast assumes that this power had been used and asks for the names of the Governors who bulldozed commissioners into giving decisions meeting with more popular favor than the telephone decision, and for the names of the commissioners who submitted to the bulldozing.

Prendergast's Statement.

Mr. Prendergast points out that a Governor has no right to dictate to or admonish a public service commission, that a Governor, because of his many other duties, cannot study any complicated rate case to the point where all of the facts would be thoroughly understood, and that few of those who complain of a decision by a commission have any adequate knowledge upon which to base their complaints. Mr. Prendergast's statement follows:

"A morning paper gives considerable prominence to an article written by one of our most competent, well-informed and engaging correspondents, which is entitled: 'Smith Will Speed Bill to Oust P. S. C.' Smith Will Speed Bill to Oust P. S. C.:

"With the suggestion for the abolition of the present Public Service Commission the members of the commission are not very much concerned. They look upon that proposition as one of an entirely political character. They certainly wish Governor Smith no success in his efforts to oust the commission, but they will continue to look upon his efforts in that direction with sportsmanlike composure.

"The question of ousting the commission, however, is trivial compared with other statements that are made in that article.

"It is said by 'spokesmen for the Governor' that he has been deluged with letters from telephone subscribers, but that petitions asking him for relief might just as well be addressed to the New York Street Cleaning Commissioner. From this it is argued that the present law, which provides that a Commissioner or Commissioners can only be removed by 'concurrent resolution of both houses of the Legislature,' is an unwarranted restriction upon the ability of a Governor to get rid of a commission. The change made in the law two years ago was inserted for the purpose of giving the commission acting in a judicial capacity, a dignity and permanency of tenure which would save it from capricious interference from a Governor no matter what his name might be.

"Most thoughtful people have approved this change in the law. That it is regarded as a good change is proved by the fact that the bill introduced at the suggestion of Governor Smith (Senate No. 834, Int. 783), which provides for the abolition of the present commission and the appointment of a new commission of three members, contains the very same provision in respect to removal from office. What, therefore, are we to understand from the Governor's spokesmen? Nothing, except that the present Commissioners should have been made removable by the present Governor, but that the three Commissioners whom he would appoint (if his legislation is successful) could only be removed by a two-thirds vote of the Legislature. There should have been a little better teamwork between the bill drafter and the Governor's spokesmen.

Quotes From Article.

"But even all this is not the most serious thing. The Governor's spokesmen go on to say that 'the Governor is deprived of the power to remove Commissioners, a power which was exercised by a former Governor when he chose to get rid of Democratic appointees.' Further, that fear that a Governor might dislodge a Commissioner has in the past enabled more than one Executive to compel decisions meeting with more popular favor than the recent one (telephone case).

"Who are the Governors who bulldozed Commissioners or commissions into giving such decisions? Who are the Commissioners who submitted to any such dictation? They should be known, so that hereafter they might be held in public contempt.

"We are also told by the Governor's spokesmen that Public Service Commissioners, under the present law, is not amenable to dictation or even admonition from Governor Smith, and that this is the reason why Governor Smith was not able to make more progress with me in our conference last Saturday. This is the first intimation I have had that no progress was made.

"Why should Public Service Commissioners, acting as they do, in rate cases and in other matters, in an entirely judicial capacity, be subject to dictation or even admonition from anybody? The whole purpose of the Public Service Commission act from the first one that was passed in 1907, is that the commission should be free from dictation or admonition from any official or power. If you make the commission amenable to dictation from the Governor then you do not get a decision from the commission—you get a decision from the Governor. Instead of having Commissioners you have so many hunkins of the Executive.

"To put the matter plainly, it is no part of a Governor's function or right to dictate to or admonish a Public Service Commission. He is not a member of the commission and it was never intended that he should be. If we are going to get decisions dictated by Governors then we don't need Public Service Commissions. The proposition advanced by the Governor's spokesmen is preposterous.

Calls Detail Beyond Governor.

"On what information is a Governor going to act in dictating to or admonishing a commission? Governor Smith has time and again complained, and with great justice, of the amount of detailed work that is imposed upon the Executive of the State. What is the proposition now—to give him more detailed work? How is he to know whether a telephone decision is right or not? Is he going to take the time to read through the 18,000 pages of testimony that have been taken in these last cases? Are we going to subject him to the tollsome task of examining 722 different exhibits? He could not know what to dictate until he had done so.

"That any Governor could go over all the cases decided by a commission and understand their merits and demerits is simply out of the question. Then on what basis is he going to either dictate to or admonish a commission? Presumably upon what we are told by the Governor's spokesmen to be a deluge of letters protesting against commission orders. The people complaining have hardly the barest knowledge of the merits of these cases. It may be somebody has told them they are going to be disadvantaged. In some cases they have found they may have to pay more for their service. But who is going to decide whether increases or decreases are right? The people affected? The interested parties? No! Some unprejudiced commission authorized by law to hear the evidence and determine rates and charges upon that evidence.

"There is one statement coming from the Governor's spokesmen which is absolutely correct, and that is, in my conference with the Governor on last Saturday I defended the telephone rates. I did. They are right."

Mr. Prendergast said last night that he would send to the Governor today a letter containing the information the latter wants concerning the increased telephone rates and the reasons which induced the commission to change the system of charging telephone subscribers from the annual to the monthly basis. This was the information the Governor asked for, he explained, during the conference Saturday and is presumably the key to the widespread dissatisfaction expressed in the city over the new telephone rates.

WOULD CUT PHONE CHARGES

ALBANY, March 5.—Drastic changes in the operation of the New York Telephone Company in New York City are called for in a bill introduced tonight by Assemblyman Cuvillier. He has already introduced a bill providing for a yearly instead of a monthly contract in New York City and for a maximum charge of three cents a message.

Under the bill introduced tonight all existing contracts for local telephone service in a city of a million or more inhabitants would be canceled after July 1, 1923. Every new contract after that date would be subject to the following maximum charges: Two-party residence station, $1.50 per month, the payment of three months' maximum charge entitling the subscriber to 150 outgoing local calls or messages; $2 for an individual, one party residence station, the payment of a three months' maximum charge entitling the subscriber to 200 outgoing local calls and $3 for an individual business station, the payment of three months' maximum charge entitling the subscriber to 300 messages. The subscriber must pay three cents for every local message in excess of the number stipulated in his contract.

Restoration of the courtesy discontinued some time ago by the New York Telephone Company of telling the time, is provided for in the bill. It also would compel the company to act as a sort of an alarm clock and call a given number at a certain hour. In addition, the company would be compelled to give to a subscriber the name and address of any other listed subscriber.

In case of a dispute between the company and a subscriber as to the number of messages the company would be prohibited from suspending service pending a settlement.

cent. on its average outstanding capital stock. It is conservatively estimated that the equity in the business represented by the American Company's stock, including the recent issue, now equals approximately $190 per share. As a result of recent Bell System financing, the total Capital Stock outstanding exceeds the debt obligations and the amount of mortgage loans on the telephone plant is less than 25 per cent. of total capital obligations in the hands of the public.

Of all American corporations, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company has the largest number of stockholders and the widest distribution of ownership. On Dec. 31 the number of stockholders was 246,925, an increase during the year of 62,583, the largest increase in a year in the history of the company. The average number of shares held is 28. Approximately 46,700 of the stockholders of record are employes of the Bell System.

Assets and Liabilities.

The company's balance sheet as of Dec. 31 showed total assets and liabilities of $1,163,931,842. Among the assets were stocks of associated companies carried at $662,529,358; bonds and notes of and net advances to associated companies, $115,671,083; stocks and notes of and advances to other companies, $105,427,224; Long lines plant and equipment, $108,737,168; telephones, $29,666,204; real estate, $11,665,549; accounts receivable, $9,831,006; temporary cash investments, $93,162,767, and cash, $26,517,547. The liabilities consisted of total capital stock, $715,089,854; funded debt, $226,604,800; dividend payable Jan. 15, $15,719,733; accounts payable, $6,465,453; interest and taxes accrued, not due, $7,630,586; reserve for employes' benefit fund, $5,000,000; reserve for depreciation and contingencies, $68,514,833; surplus appropriated for dividends payable April 16 and July 16 next, $31,471,956; an unappropriated surplus of $87,440,600.

A continuing extension of the long-distance toll cables was shown. The use of cables has presented formidable scientific problems which have been so far overcome that whereas at first one-half mile of cable would seriously interfere with conversation, it is now scientifically possible to hold conversation through 3,000 miles of cable, which is equal in all respects to conversation from one room to another in the same building. Studies and experiments in wireless telephony have also been continued. The program of introducing machine switching in the larger centres is going on as planned with satisfactory results.

The report showed that there were 14,050,565 telephones in the Bell System at the end of the year, an increase of 670,000 during the year. The number of connections made daily was over 35,000,000. Miles of wire connecting the Bell-owned stations increased to over 30,000,000, of which nearly 20,000,000 miles are underground.

Sleep is more important than food

Scientists tell us that life can be sustained longer without food than without sleep—sleeplessness is starvation in the first degree.

Yet many who insist on clean, wholesome, nourishing food think but little about the quality of sleep they get. They are willing to spend their nights on a spring and mattress carelessly selected and hastily bought.

But there is a way to be assured of better sleep and the joy of physical fitness that follows it—Use Simmons sleep equipment.

Take ten minutes tonight to study the mattress and spring you sleep on. Then go to your furniture dealer's and examine the wide range of Simmons springs and mattresses at prices fitting any pocketbook. Compare them. Judge whether health, energy and success are not worth the cost of Simmons sleep comfort

PRAYER OPENS SALE OF CARUSO ANTIQUES

MRS. BARUCH A PURCHASER

Sale of the art treasures of the late Enrico Caruso, the famous tenor, opened yesterday at the American Art Galleries, with a fine collection of old glass dating to 200 B. C., in the afternoon, and coins in the evening.

There was an unusual feature in the evening session, and it is perhaps the first auction sale in this country ever opened by prayer. As the auctioneer, Hiram H. Parke, one of Mr. Kirby's assistants, was about to begin the sale, a tall, foreign-looking man stood up and said:

Immediately everyone in the room was standing, remaining so reverently and silently for a few moments, and then sat down.

Practically all the bidders for the glass were dealers. The most exciting sale of the afternoon was of No. 221, a millefiori bowl, Roman, first century, diameter five and a half inches, red its predominating tone, which was sold to B. Tabbagh for $1,625. Among other of the higher prices of the afternoon were $160, for No. 7, a pair of perfume bottles of the fourth century, A. D., Syrian, in the form of dates, which went to F. Berolzheimer. No. 26, a two and three-quarter inch bowl of deep brown glass, decorated with diagonal dragged inset lines, and with a fine iridescence, was sold to Tabbagh for $250. To the same buyer went No. 62, an Alexandrian drinking glass, three and a half inches high, second century, A. D., for $250; No. 69, a thick brown bowl, with blue and white dragged lines, three inches high, slight iridescence, went to Tabbagh for $270, and for No. 115, a light blue bottle, with pinched decorations, three and a half inches high, Alexandrian, second century, A. D., he paid $240.

A clear glass bowl, height and diameter each 4½ inches, decorated with spiral threads, brilliant iridescence, Roman Provincial, third century A. D., was bought by D. Z. Noorian for $250. J. Z. Noorian paid $200 for No. 231, a jar in greenish glass, iridescent, 11 inches high, Roman, first century A. D. To Kouchajki went No. 244, a dark blue balsam flask, the body molded as the head of a girl, Alexandrian, first century, A. D., for $610. One private buyer of the afternoon was Mrs. B. M. Baruch, who gave $125 for No. 61, a small flask, 5 inches high, shading brilliant red to purple, Roman Provincial, fourth century, A. D. The 258 numbers brought returns of $15,157. More of the glass, old faience, miniatures and bronzes will be sold this afternoon.

Prices for the evening coin collection were considered good by experts. The coins were ancient and modern gold coins of the United States and foreign countries. There was nothing of great rarity. The returns for the entire collection were $6,675, making a grand total for the day of $21,832.

No. 367, an 1804 Napoleon III. five-franc piece, was sold to Moritz Wormser for $100. To the same buyer went No. 369, a Dordrecht ducatoon, 1687, about $25 in weight, for $105, and for No. 390, a Polish coin, a ducat, 1649, John Casimer paid $102.50. C. W. E. Clarke paid $160 for No. 475, a United States 1915, Panama-Pacific United States 1915 $50. To Clarke went also No. 476, an uncirculated octagon $50 gold piece, 1915, same design as the former, for $170. No. 514, a United States quarter eagle, $2.50 gold piece, 1798, was sold to Thomas Elder for $120.

Henry Chapman, numismatist of Philadelphia, who catalogued the collection, guaranteeing each piece, made several purchases.

Plan New Australian Labor Party.

MELBOURNE, Australia, March 5.—A movement is afoot, according to The Melbourne Sun, to form a National Labor Party, under the leadership of former Premier W. M. Hughes. The group would comprise a large party which is reported to be ready to recede from the official Labor Party, the Labor group which formed the Hughes wing of the Nationalist Party, and the Moderates in and out of Parliament who have recently been alienated by the Extremist element.

TRAINED HER FAMILY IN ART OF STEALING

BERLIN, March 5.—The queen of German shoplifters, Dora Roeber, who stole 1,000,000,000 marks (about $45,000) worth of material and trained her whole family in the art of shoplifting, was sentenced tonight to five years in jail amid the hysterical sobs of the relatives on trial with her. Her accomplices were sentenced to two and three years in prison.

For the last eight years the woman had controlled the family's shoplifting, including that of her well-to-do daughters, her husband and her sisters.

The trial has attracted the widest attention, since Mrs. Roeber's son-in-law, Morvilius, is well known socially in Berlin. He is a former State official.

FINDS McCAFFERTY GUILTY.

Jury Returns Verdict of Second-Degree Murder in Syracuse Case.

SYRACUSE, March 5.—The jury in the case of Michael V. McCafferty, tried for the murder of Patrolman Pierson C. Near, returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the second degree at 9:45 o'clock tonight.

The penalty is from twenty years to life imprisonment. The jury deliberated less than five hours. McCafferty, a shipping clerk for a biscuit company, received the verdict stoically. The prosecution sought a conviction in the first degree, with the death penalty.

Near was shot early in the morning of Jan. 7 in an altercation in a lunch room. McCafferty's brother James, said to have been drinking, entered the lunch room and the patrolman followed. An argument ensued. Michael V. McCafferty then entered and saw the officer slap his brother. The latter challenged and proposed to fight the officer, whereupon the officer removed his hat and coat. Here the shipping clerk interfered and a shot was fired into the floor. It was asserted by the prosecution that the accused man fired the shot with the policeman's revolver. A second shot was fired, and the officer fell, mortally wounded.

At the hospital, confronted by McCafferty, Near said: "That's the man." The defense held that the sentence was unfinished and that the shooting was accidental. The prosecution charged that it was premeditated.

RALLY OF Y. M. C. A. BOYS.

Members of Seven Branches to Give Exhibition in Town Hall.

A thousand boys will take possession of the Town Hall on Thursday evening to give a demonstration of the Y. M. C. A. boys' activities in the city. Cleveland E. Dodge, Chairman of the Boys' Work Committee, and other officials of the organization will review the program.

The rally will be the first event of its kind in this city. The boys will come from seven different Y. M. C. A. branches and will occupy the entire main floor of the auditorium. Their parents and older friends will observe them from the galleries.

Indian club work, a calisthenic drill, marching exhibitions, tumbling, apparatus work and physical games will be part of the program put on by the boys. Boy soloists, an orchestra and quartette will furnish the music. A scene in a boys' camp, with camp fire, beans and songs will be a feature.

RUSSIAN PRINCE VANISHES.

Disappears From Hotel After Receiving Threatening Letters.

The whereabouts of Prince Michael Alexandrovitch Obolenski, whose mother was a Romanoff, became a mystery yesterday when inquiry at the Hotel Lafayette, where he had been stopping since December, revealed that he had left there last Saturday. The Prince received four letters and a telephone message several days ago warning him that unless he left the country by March 6 he would be killed.

The Prince came to America to find work. He delivered several lectures in which he predicted Russia's return to the pre-revolution régime. He turned the threatening letters, which were signed "Agents of Free Russia," over to Commissioner Enright, saying that he was not worried, as he knew of no one he should fear.

Valentino Wedding Off Until Mar. 9

CHICAGO, March 5.—Rodolph Valentino, motion picture actor, and his second wife, Winifred Hudnut, will not be remarried before March 9, his counsel announced today, as his divorce from his first wife, Jean Acker, will not be final until then. Rodolph and Winifred were married in Mexico soon after the divorce. Elaborate arrangements for a wedding dinner had been made in preparation for the second wedding, which was to have been held today.

AUTOS KILL 5 BOYS, TWO UNIDENTIFIED

of the West Forty-seventh Street Station placed the boy in a taxicab and took him to Roosevelt Hospital, where physicians said the boy was dead. Staack was arrested on a technical charge of homicide. The dead boy was about three feet in height, was blue-eyed, had brown hair, wore spectacles and was clad in a tiny pair of blue overalls topped by an overcoat of brown.

The mild weather, which appeared to have played an indirect part in the sudden increase of youthful deaths in the streets, brought out a group of Bayonne, N. J., boys for their first game of baseball. The boys picked a wide bit of Prospect Avenue, near Twenty-sixth Street, Bayonne, for their playing field. Sides were chosen and one of the first batters sent up a long fly that John Orlosky, 12 years old, of 187 Prospect Avenue, went after.

His eye on the soaring ball, Orlosky failed to heed the approach of an automobile truck driven by Daniel Murnane of 84 West Forty-second Street, Bayonne. Before Murnane could bring his vehicle to a stop it had hit the boy. He was hurried to the Bayonne General Hospital, where he was found to have received a fractured skull and internal injuries. Physicians said his condition was serious. Murnane was arrested, pending the outcome of the boy's injuries.

B. Labetta, 27 years old, of 19 East Fifty-third Street, Bayonne, was crossing Hudson Boulevard near his home when he was struck by an automobile driven by Carl W. Berr of 694 Clove Road, West New Brighton, Staten Island. The blow was but a glancing one and Labetta rolled to one side. His course, however, took him straight into the path of another machine, driven by Arthur W. Brown of 84 West Forty-fifth Street, Bayonne. Brown was directly back of the Berr car. Labetta was taken to the General Hospital, where his condition was said to be critical.

The city nurse of Bordentown, N. J., Miss Elsie Henderson, had her collarbone broken yesterday afternoon when her automobile collided with one operated my Joseph L. Culotta of 1,911 South Seventh Street, Camden.

Two motorists were dealt with severely yesterday in the Brooklyn Traffic Court. Magistrate Fish was on the bench. John J. Horowitz of 12 Sixth Avenue, Manhattan, received a ten-day jail sentence for speeding on Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn. William Bangard of 325 Twenty-first Street, Brooklyn, was placed under a $500 bail bond for a hearing on March 14. The charge against Bangard was driving an automobile while intoxicated.

Patrolmen O'Toole and Tawson were stationed at the corner of Fourteenth Street and Second Avenue at 2 o'clock when they saw a big truck approaching, the body of which was tied to the chassis with ropes. The policemen ordered the chauffeur to stop; but his brakes, it was said, were in such poor condition that the truck rolled nearly a hundred feet before it could be stopped. Upon closer examination it was found that the entire upper structure of the truck was loose, and that no horn or appliance of any kind for warning pedestrians was being used.

A summons was made out for the Racello Express Company, Sixtieth Street and Fort Hamilton Avenue, Brooklyn, the owners of the truck, and another van was sent over to remove the load of toys from the condemned vehicle. Upon the arrival of the other trucks, brakes were inspected and found to be in good condition; but Charles Russeo, the chauffeur, who lives at 1,318 Fifty-seventh Street, was unable to display his chauffeur's license and was handed a summons.

At Thirty-sixth Street and Madison Avenue, Louis Kirsch of 303 Hughes Street, Brooklyn, was ordered to stop by a traffic policeman. When his brakes failed to work and the machine narrowly avoided striking a number of pedestrians, Patrolman Caravetta of the brake squad, inspected the machine, ordered it to the shop and handed Kirsch a summons.

WILL HOLD SPEEDERS' CARS.

Cleveland Court Plans Temporary Seizure as Alternative to Jail.

CLEVELAND, March 5.—Speeders found guilty of driving faster than thirty miles an hour in Cleveland beginning tomorrow will have the alternative of serving minimum sentences of ten days in the workhouse or forfeiting the right to use their cars for from thirty days to six months, Municipal Judge Samuel H. Silbert announced late today.

Declaring that merely sending speeders to jail had not broken up the speed menace and that some new device had to be used, Judge Silbert asked the Cleveland Safety Council to prepare a list of garages and warehouses for use as "pounds." There were fifteen deaths from traffic accidents so far this year, as compared with ten in the same period last year, it was pointed out.

Another innovation planned by Judge Silbert is sentences by hours instead of days. Under the present system a prisoner sentenced for two days who arrives at the workhouse at 3 o'clock in the afternoon is released early the next morning. "If they get forty-eight hours' sentences, they will stay in two actual days," Police Prosecutor Lee Bkeel said.

Admitting he had no right to demand that guilty motorists store their machines, Judge Silbert said he intends to inflict heavy sentences, which he will suspend if the motorists give up their cars.

Police will take charge of the cars and keep identification tags until the period of "imprisonment" has passed.

Formerly A. T. Stewart & Co.

A SPRING EXHIBITION

Probably the most complete showing of Good Pianos and Player-Pianos under one roof in any store in America; including the incomparable Ampico

HELPING those who are furnishing new homes, and all who want good music, to have it at the lowest prices consistent with worth-while quality.

The Chickering

THE guiding idea in making the famous Chickering Piano is to produce a perfect medium for the expression of music and to put it into a form that will always be a delight to the eye.

Chickering Upright, $875.
Chickering-Ampico Upright, $1,800.
Chickering-Ampico Grand, $2,850 up.

The Schomacker

THE first Schomacker Piano was made seventy-six years ago. For forty years, since Washington's time, it was given preference in the White House. A fine instrument, in Art Models.

Schomacker Upright, $725 up.

The Emerson

SINCE the Emerson was first made, in 1849, it has ranked as one of the leading pianos of its time. It is still one of the very best pianos obtainable today at these prices.

Emerson Upright, $550 up.

Marshall & Wendell

THE wonderful AMPICO re-enacting device is obtainable in the Marshall & Wendell piano. The AMPICO does not merely reproduce; it re-enacts the performance of the artist. This is the lowest price genuine AMPICO piano.

Marshall & Wendell AMPICO Upright, $985.
Marshall & Wendell AMPICO Grand, $1,975.

Our Idea

This is rather an unusual announcement about GOOD pianos. It also sounds a word of warning that seems quite apropos in the light of present-day events.

* * *

Hundreds of new homes are now being opened in Greater New York and the immediate vicinity. Most (perhaps all) of these homes will want some kind of a piano, because everybody in this age recognizes the uplifting influence and the positive need of good music in the home. So the Wanamaker Store has this to say:

* * *

We have made an iron-clad rule here that a piano must be a musical instrument — not a mere article of furniture. In other words, it must be the best piano at the price that is obtainable to-day, and it must conform to certain well defined standards that will insure the fullest measure of service and satisfaction.

Look Sharply

— at many piano announcements that are now going the rounds. Read the impossible claims, the exaggerations, the meagre details. Any picture of a piano can be made to look good, but only an expert can tell whether the instrument is really worth buying.

* * *

Here, as we say, there is a standard of quality. It never varies. It is, in truth, a guarantee that you will get all that you expect to get out of the piano. And in addition to that, you will have the largest variety of high-grade pianos, player-pianos and reproducing pianos to choose from in all New York.

The Terms

— of payment offered by the Wanamaker Store are always so fair, so reasonable and so convenient that we seldom emphasize them. If you now have an upright piano that you would like to exchange for a player or an AMPICO, a liberal allowance will be made.

* * *

If you cannot conveniently come in person, the coupon will bring detailed information without obligation on your part.

GREAT ART GALLERY WILL OPEN MARCH 21

TO BE A SOCIETY EVENT

Many Prominent People Are on the List of Lay Members—Will Push Art Sales.

More details were announced yesterday of the plan under which the most distinguished artists in the United States, backed by a long list of the most prominent men and women in the United States, will open the largest sales gallery in the world in the Grand Central Terminal on March 21.

John Singer Sargent will be one of the exhibitors. Others who stand in the first rank as American painters, sculptors and etchers will offer their work directly to the public.

Grand Central gallery will remain open permanently. The project is an effort to apply the principles of big business to the marketing of American art. The large group of wealthy and eminent Americans who are promoting and financing it expect to break even, but will take no profit. On the other hand, the most energetic commercialism will be applied to advertising and pushing the sale of the works of the American artists who take advantage of this plan for marketing their works.

About 120 paintings will be offered to the public on March 21. When the gallery is completed, an average of 300 paintings will be kept hanging. The organization has a total floor space of 15,000 square feet, which will be subdivided into twenty small galleries, several of which will be set aside for sculpture.

Prices Will Range Up to $10,000.

The paintings on exhibition at the opening will vary in price from $100 to $10,000. The high figure is that placed on a canvas by Charles W. Hawthorne. The Sargent painting, the subject of which is an artist painting a landscape, is to be offered for $5,000.

More than 600 paintings already have been received for the opening. Nearly 500 of these have been stored and will be shown in their turn.

The Grand Central Gallery will be the main selling headquarters, but traveling galleries will be sent out, accompanied by sales forces, which will take charge of exhibitions at which American art will be offered to the public in all of the large cities of the country. Men and women of prominence in society and in the art world in most of the large cities belong to the lay group, which is seeking to promote recognition of American art and to help the artist obtain a more liberal reward.

Among the other artists who will offer canvases for sale to the public at the opening are Frederick Ballard Williams, Chauncey F. Ryder, Frank W. Benson, Edwin H. Blashfield, W. Elmer Schofield, Gardner Symons, Irving R. Wiles, Daniel Garber, Elliott Daingerfield, Leopold Seyffert, John Sloan, Cecelia Beaux, Karl Anderson, Charles Hopkinson, Philip L. Hale, Lillian Westcott Hale, Walter Ufer, Jerome Myers, Jules Guerin, Charles H. Davis, F. C. Frieseke, Joseph Pennell, Henry O. Tanner, Horatio Walker, Wayman Adams.

Sculptors Who Will Exhibit.

The exact address of the gallery is 15 Vanderbilt Avenue, the entrance to the Grand Central Terminal being on the Forty-third Street side. The exhibition occupies most of the sixth floor. Through the interest of A. H. Smith, President of the New York Central, and others, this floor was turned over for the gallery purposes at a low rental.

The opening of the gallery is financed jointly by the artists and the lay members. Each of the lay members, now numbering 100, contributes $600 a year for the first three years. This is not a gift, but the purchase price of a picture, but for one year the gallery has the use of the money, so that it is insured a working capital of $60,000 for each of the first three years. The other side of this financial arrangement is the agreement of each artist to contribute one picture a year for three years. Twelve months after the artist turns over the picture, under this plan, he is to receive payment for it from the $600 posted by the lay members. In other words, the artists furnish pictures as collateral for a year for the sums advanced by the lay members or patrons as the capital for launching the enterprise.

The business management of the gallery is in the hands of Edwin S. Barrie of Chicago. He will select pictures for the exhibition and keep taking down canvases and hanging up new ones, in order to insure the exhibition of all offerings. The price on each work is fixed by the artist.

Manager Explains Project.

"We will take a commission to pay the expense of running the institution," said Mr. Barrie. "This will vary, according to the amount of business done and the expense of doing it.

"One of our leading purposes is to interest new buyers. Tens of thousands of Americans who ought to take an interest in American art do not do so. We want to reach the old art-buying public, but we want to develop a new one. It is a reproach to the country that the great artists who have been developed here have received comparatively little recognition and that the public of art buyers is so small in comparison with the number of persons of means in this country. The artist is much better off than he was fifteen years ago. But the average income is still very small. It was this condition that caused the big business men and other influential people on this committee to take an interest and try to apply vigorous modern methods to the selling of art.

Calls Location Ideal.

"The location in the Grand Central Terminal is ideal for this purpose. The New York Central and other lines will make a feature of this exhibition. We intend to advertise it widely in this city and throughout the country. We will make a campaign to get buyers, not only from the New York public, but from the visitors who flock here, especially in the Summer.

"In addition to this we will send galleries to other cities to be sold by expert salesmen. In the past exhibitions have been sent to other cities. They have come back usually damaged and unsold. People have come to admire and not to buy. Groups of pictures have never been sent out before, however, to be sold by competent salesmen.

"When this co-operative gallery was first talked of there was a good deal of opposition among art dealers, but today this does not exist, and nearly all dealers in American art are eager for the success of the undertaking. Its success would benefit not only the artists but the art dealers. It should enlarge the art-buying public and produce general benefit. There is no other sales gallery in the world conducted on a scale of equal magnitude.

"The opening will be an important social event. Many noted artists and society people will be present."

SKIN CANCER ATTACKS HOSPITAL WORKER

Propped up with pillows in a chair at his home at 4 Virginia Place, Brooklyn, Harry H. Shrope, X-ray machine expert at the Kings County Hospital for the last twenty-two years, is slowly recovering from an attack of cancer of the skin caused by X-ray burns received in his long service at the hospital. In addition to his sufferings from cancer Mr. Shrope has just recovered from an attack of pneumonia brought about by his weakened condition.

After the cancer of the skin developed the hospital authorities sent Mr. Shrope, who is 68 years old, to Dr. Chester Duryea, at 754 Carroll Street, for treatment. At the time, according to Dr. Duryea, the disease had made such progress that it had broken out on the hands, face, lip and forehead of the victim. Dr. Duryea gave him radium treatment and has succeeded in clearing up the conditions so that the hands are now the only part of the body affected.

Dr. Duryea said there was every reason to believe that the cancerous condition of the skin would be entirely cleared up with continued treatments of radium. He asserted that when taken in time cancer of the skin had yielded to radium treatment in 100 per cent. of the cases treated.

Mr. Shrope has a wife and two children. He is very cheerful despite his sufferings.

"I guess the main trouble was that I always thought I could go on just a bit longer," he said yesterday.

Mr. Shrope was graduated from Columbia Law School in 1875. After a brief career at the bar he took up the study of electricity. He worked under Thomas A. Edison many years ago. When the X-ray was discovered and applied to surgery he became enthusiastic over its development. He entered the Kings County Hospital as an electrician and finally became superintendent of the X-ray equipment at the institution.

The February Grand Jury recommended that Mr. Shrope be retired from the service of the city and receive a pension.

URGES KING ALFONSO TO BECOME DICTATOR

LONDON, March 5.—According to mail advices from Madrid to The Times, the repudiation by King Alfonso of the idea of abdicating was provoked by an article in the Accion, representing Alfonso as dispirited because of the intrigues of professional politicians and anxious to leave the throne.

The Accion called on all good Spaniards to rally round the King and urge him to become a Dictator.

The correspondent of The Times says the idea of a royal Mussolini is doubtless a mad idea, which Alfonso would be the last to consider, except as a desperate resort; but he adds that there is no doubt that the Accion's article is symptomatic of the general discontent in Spain, which is being fanned from several sides, while the elements of possible disturbance are multiplying.

Announcement is made by the correspondent of the existence of a military organization of 30,000 members, enrolled in Madrid and other large cities, known as "La Accion Ciudadana," which is devoted to combatting all political abuses and strikes by Socialists. He says, however, that this is not a movement comparable to that of the Fascisti and points out that a revolution along Fascist lines is hardly possible in Spain, where political unity is only paper unity, each province being a self-centered realm with autonomous interests, upon which it would be difficult for a Nationalist movement to get a grip.

BOY ACCUSES ANOTHER.

Says He Was Stabbed for Refusing 4 Cents for Movie.

Capuno is alleged to have jabbed Tritschler when the latter refused to let him have 4 cents to add to 1 cent he already had so that he could purchase admission to the theatre.

"I left home for the show with 25 cents and after spending 15 cents of that for my ticket I gave 5 cents to another boy so he could get in," Alfred told the police. "I had 5 cents left and when Anthony asked me for four of those cents I told him I could not give it to him. Then he jabbed me in the leg."

He found Patrolman Frawley of the West Thirtieth Street Station, whom he asked to arrest the Capuno boy, who was still standing in front of the theatre. After the boys had been taken to the station the police summoned Dr. Hickney of New York Hospital, who attended Alfred's wound and took him to his home in an ambulance.

The prisoner went at the station, saying that he had never had a real home, having but recently been taken from an orphanage.

STATE ELUCIDATES INCOME TAX POINTS

With the approach of the time limit for filing Federal income tax returns, officials of the State Income Tax Bureau are making preparations for the collection of the State tax, which is due by midnight April 15—a month later than the Federal tax. Blanks for the State tax have already been mailed to taxpayers and the instructions on them should be carefully read.

To clear up many of the points that perplex individual taxpayers in the preparation of their returns the State Tax Commission has prepared a series of "Questions and Answers" on the tax. The questions relate to specific problems presented by taxpayers and the answers are the official rulings of the commission on the points involved. Inquiries on the State tax will be answered through these "Questions and Answers."

"Butcher—I was employed until Nov. 1, 1922, when I took over the business with another partner. How do I file return?

"Answer—If the partnership keeps books on the fiscal year ended Oct. 30 no part of its income between Nov. 1 and Dec. 31, 1922, should be included in your 1922 return. All earnings of partnership for year ended Oct. 30, 1923, should be included in your 1923 return. All your income as employe from Jan. 1 to Oct. 30, 1922, should be reported in your 1922 return.

"Augustus—I am a special State fish and game protector. May I deduct amounts spent for oil, gas and other traveling expenses for my car?

"Answer—No. These amounts are expenses incurred personally and not in any business, as you do not receive salary for your services from the State.

"Thomas C. S.—I rent all rooms in my former residence to teachers. I live in another village and return weekly to collect rent and look after property. Are my traveling expenses deductible?

"Answer—No.

"Widower—My wife died March 30, 1922. Do I receive full exemption for her? If I include her income must I multiply it by twelve and divide by three as in the case of Federal returns for fractional periods?

"Answer—You are permitted the full $2,000 exemption and report her actual income without such computation.

"Answer—Yes.

"Trojan—I purchased ten shares of stock in 1919 in a corporation. Through financial difficulties it was succeeded by a new corporation resulting in the issuance to me of five shares of stock in the new corporation in exchange for my ten shares in the old one. These five shares are gone forever. Are they not a deductible loss?

"Answer—No. The State income tax law does not recognize gain or loss in a reorganization, consolidation or merger where securities of the old corporation are exchanged for securities in the new corporation.

"Manhattan—(a) Should I report payment of $1,800 during the year to sanitarium for care of my wife? (b) If not, should I record this amount on any part of my blank?

"Answer—(a) No. Returns of information are only required for payments to individuals. (b) No.

"Manager—I moved into New York State from Connecticut on Sept. 1, 1922. What tax do I owe New York?

"Answer—You are taxable only on your personal income during your period of residence and should take four-twelfths of your personal exemption against such income. Use Resident Form 200 if salaried person or 201 if you derived income from business carried on, the exchange of stocks, bonds or real property.

"Josephine L.—(1) Is Federal income tax exempt? (2) Are losses in trade or business for 1921 deductible in 1922? (3) Is my salary as appraiser in the Custom House taxable?

"Answer—No as to all three questions."

TWICE TRIES TO DROWN.

Despondent Soldier Is Rescued Each Time by Chicago Park Police.

CHICAGO, March 5.—Robert Wood, a former sergeant in the Army, who said he had had an unfortunate love affair, declared he never would have believed it was so hard to drown until he was twice rescued from the lagoon in Lincoln Park today by the park police.

He explained that he was a widower, and that he re-enlisted in the army on Lincoln's Birthday because he had "nothing else to do." He said he had a sister in Louisville.

FLOODS THREATEN FRANCE.

Paris Assembles Night Workers to Guard Seine Dikes.

PARIS, March 5.—The flooded rivers throughout France are rising so rapidly toward the danger point that the Government held a conference of engineers this afternoon.

It was believed there was no immediate danger, but gangs of workmen were ordered to be assembled tonight ready to proceed at once to any point with materials to reinforce weakening dikes, or carry out other emergency work in Paris, as the Seine flowing through the city will be further swollen soon by the waters of the Marne and other tributaries.

BURGLARS DESTROY SAFE.

Employes of Max's Busy Bee Lunch at 95 Park Row discovered what was left of the small office safe in the ice box when they opened the store for business yesterday. Burglars had apparently gained entrance through a side door, some time on Sunday, removed the safe, containing $450, to the ice chest and there had blown it open with explosives. Cash registers in plain sight of pedestrians on Park Row had been looted, but so far as is known no one had noticed the burglars at work.

Edison, Ill, Defers Florida Trip.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., March 5.—Thomas A. Edison was ill with a cold several days last week, and was confined to his home, it was learned today. The fact of his illness was concealed at his office until this morning. Mr. Edison was in bed for two days, but is up again and studying, although he is not yet permitted to go out. Mr. and Mrs. Edison were to have left last night for Florida.

FINDS PLANE CRASH DUE TO BROKEN ROD

A board of inquiry, appointed by Major W. R. Weaver, commandant at Mitchel Field, to investigate the cause of the airplane accident Sunday in which one officer was killed and another injured, held a formal hearing yesterday at the field. The findings will be forwarded to Washington.

Major Weaver issued a statement yesterday commending First Lieutenant Stanley Smith, Air Service, who was killed "in a gallant and successful effort to save the lives of others," and likewise praising Major Follette Bradley, who "gave first thought to the safety of people on the ground." The enlisted men, who "in spite of shock and minor injuries, immediately set about the work of rescue," were also praised, as was Patrolman Albert Douglas, who is credited with having probably saved the life of Major Bradley and facilitating the release of the enlisted men buried in the cockpit of the bomber.

"I am of the opinion that a connecting rod broke in the left motor and drove through the crank case," Major Weaver said. "If there had been fire, all of the men probably would have been killed."

Major Follette Bradley, pilot of the machine, who was injured, was said to be doing favorably at the Bushwick Hospital, where he was taken after the accident. Funeral services for Lieutenant Stanley Smith will be held today at Hempstead, following which the body will be taken under military escort to San Francisco where he lived with Mrs. Smith.

WIFE SUES J. A. MIDDLETON.

Seeks Divorce From Aged Lehigh Valley Vice President.

Papers filed in the Supreme Court yesterday show that John A. Middleton, Vice President of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, is being sued for a divorce by Mrs. Lillian Middleton, who for eleven years has been receiving $15,000 a year under a separation decree. Counsel for Mrs. Middleton asked that a question be submitted to a jury as to whether Middleton's conduct with a woman, not named, for a year and a half prior to Oct. 1 last, and particularly on Sept. 16 last, would entitle Mrs. Middleton to a divorce. His counsel contended that a jury would find no ground for a divorce.

Middleton, who is 70 years old, went to the Lehigh Valley from the Erie, where he was Vice President and Secretary. Mrs. Middleton is 55 years old and before her marriage to Middleton was the widow of Lieutenant Molyneux Seel of the British Royal Artillery. They have three children. Mrs. George Holmes is a daughter of Mr. Middleton by a previous marriage.

NOT IN WORLD RADIO, ENGINEERS TESTIFY

Three of the "big men" whom Mrs. Myra Cleveland Sims named as Directors of the World Radio Corporation when she was testifying in her defense several days ago at her trial in General Sessions on a grand larceny indictment told the jury yesterday that they were not Directors of the corporation. Mrs. Sims was accused of having defrauded Mrs. Emily Thompson, supervisor of the Turkish baths at the Hotel Ansonia, of $400 which Mrs. Thompson says she gave Mrs. Sims for the purchase of stock in the corporation.

Alexander Churchyard, an inventor and engineer, stopping at the Engineers' Club, denied that he was connected with the Directorate of the corporation when called to the witness stand by Miss Rose Rothenberg, Assistant District Attorney. He said that he had frequently been employed by Henry Ford and Thomas Edison as a consulting engineer and was the inventor of the self-starter used on the Ford automobile. He admitted having discussed the affairs of the World Radio Corporation with Mrs. Sims and said that when he first talked with Mrs. Sims in April, 1922, she told him that she expected that Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, would accept the Presidency of the corporation.

Didn't Hear Hoover's Name.

Edward O. Cutler, an engineer, also mentioned by Mrs. Sims as a Director who had agreed to help to finance the corporation, repudiated the defendant's testimony in that respect and denied that he had accepted a directorship. He added that he had never heard Mr. Hoover's name mentioned as the possible head of the corporation. Through his testimony it developed that the corporation had employed a broadcaster at $75 a week.

"Before they had a station or even a piece of copper wire?" asked Judge Talley.

"Yes," Mr. Cutler replied.

John P. Johnson of Valentine Avenue, the Bronx, testified that he was to be employed as general manager of the corporation, but denied that he was one of the Directors. Miss Rothenberg also called to the witness stand L. V. Darling, who, it was alleged, was one of the four district managers employed by the corporation, but the Court refused to permit him to testify when Theodoe L. Waugh, counsel for Mrs. Sims, called attention to the fact that he had heard the testimony of the preceding witnesses, although Judge Talley had ordered that all witnesses be excluded from the courtroom.

Snell Smith, who, according to Mrs. Sims, proposed that Mr. Hoover be asked to become President of the corporation, was recalled to the stand by Mr. Waugh and, after repeating his denial that he was the first to mention Mr. Hoover's name, identified letters and telegrams that passed between Mrs. Sims, the corporation and himself. He denied that he had received any money for his services from Mrs. Sims or the corporation. The case probably will be placed in the hands of the jury today.

CONVICTS LEAP FROM TRAIN

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., March 5.—Handcuffed together, James Cody and Damon Hardy, prisoners who were being taken from here to the Moundsville Penitentiary, escaped from their guard by leaping from a Baltimore & Ohio train while it was passing Blazer, east of Tunnelton, at 7:30 o'clock this morning. The men leaped through a window in the washroom.

Cody, Hardy and two other prisoners were in charge of one guard. It is believed the men who escaped had worked the handcuff loose before leaping. The authorities here, as well as Baltimore & Ohio police officials, were notified of the escape, and searching parties were sent out in pursuit of the fugitives. The men had violated paroles and were being taken back to serve unexpired terms.

GIVES BAIL FOR ALIMONY.

Cohan Director Is Put Under $1,000 in Separation Suit.

John Meehan, producing director for George M. Cohan, was arrested yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Murphy on an order of Supreme Court Justice Bijur granted to Mrs. Helen Scott Meehan, an actress, who is suing for separation. She alleged that he was out of the city much of the time and asked that he be compelled to give a bond to pay any alimony that may be awarded. Meehan gave a bond of $1,000 and was released.

Mrs. Meehan alleges that her husband abandoned her in December, 1920, after they had been married only two months. She says he gets more than $500 a week, and that he is $540 in arrears in paying her an allowance he agreed to give her. She is unable to get employment as an actress because managers fear that Meehan will use his influence against them if she is employed, she says.

KIDNAPS A THEATRE MAN.

Kansas City Bandit Takes Treasurer From Group and Gets $5,000.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 5.—Entering the business office of the Newman Theatre at 10:20 o'clock last night, a single bandit, well dressed and handsome, kidnapped the Treasurer from a group of six persons and got away with more than $5,000. The bandit had no accomplices so far as witnesses could see, and had no waiting motor car in which to escape.

The Treasurer was forced to walk from the Business office down a stairway to the theatre lobby, out on Main Street, and south to Twelfth Street, then west one block to Baltimore Avenue, where the bandit hired a taxicab and, still accompanied by the Treasurer, drove away.

LEIPSIC, March 5.—Heavy price reductions on standard commodities formed the chief feature of the second day of Leipsic's Spring Fair. The reductions in shoe and leather products ranged from 20 to 50 per cent., while textiles dropped from 40 to 50 per cent.

Huge crowds were on hand to view the displays of the approximately 14,000 exhibitors, of whom 700 are from foreign countries.

The chief feature of the first day, yesterday, was the formal opening of a building set apart solely for the display of electrical supplies. Government officials and other prominent persons took part in the ceremonies, which resolved themselves into a program formally opening the entire fair.

TO PRESS CRONKHITE CASE.

Senator Glass Plans Asking Next Congress for an Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—If the War Department fails to act in the case of Major General Cronkhite, retired, Senator Glass purposes to introduce a resolution when Congress reconvenes for a thorough inquiry by the Senate Military Committee.

A resolution of investigation was drafted last week by Senator Glass, but he was informed that it would meet with objection and he withheld it, convinced that the short time before adjournment made adoption impossible. The Senator said he prepared his resolution when informed that the War Department did not regard evidence of alleged tampering with official files bearing on the death at Camp Lewis in 1918 of Major A. P. Cronkhite, the General's son, as sufficient to warrant action by a board of inquiry.

"There should be a thorough investigation," said Mr. Glass today. "If the War Department does not act during the recess, I shall press my resolution as soon as the Senate reconvenes."

TO CHART SOUTHERN STARS.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 5.—Yale University is to erect a new telescope in the Southern Hemisphere as a branch of the Yale Observatory here, it was announced today. The telescope will be of the photographic refractor type, and will be located either in New Zealand or South Africa.

Fully 90 per cent. of the world's large telescopes are in the north temperate zone, and a large part of the sky cannot be seen from these observatories, the announcement said. The new Yale telescope will be placed on a southern site with a definite program outlined for it, consisting chiefly of the measurement of the distances of certain stars and the determination of their motions. No telescope suitable for the work planned is available in the Southern Hemisphere, it was stated, and it is hoped to have the new telescope in operation a year from now.

Two Widows

In December a well to do banker died and his Will came up in Brooklyn for probate the other day.

Two women, one with four children and one with six, appeared, each claiming that she was entitled to his property as his widow.

Family mixups of this kind are not uncommon and they mean a great deal of trouble and uncertainty in real estate transactions. It is always a question as to whether the right woman signed any deeds that were given by the man during his lifetime.

Title insurance protects against these things. We are not always able to get the facts but we are in a position to pay the loss if we decide wrongly.

PUT YOUR HEATING ON A BUSINESS BASIS

Don't buy heat without thought. Select the coal that gives you the most heat at the least cost. That's only sound business sense.

Then burn it so as to get the maximum heat with the least waste.

When Buckwheat Anthracite gives as much heat as egg, stove or nut, why insist on these larger sizes?

Buckwheat is the breakage when large sizes are manufactured.

It is the same coal, remember, from the same mines, of the same heating value.

Spencer Heaters for 25 years have been saving 30% to 40% fuel cost for their owners.

The magazine needs coaling once in 24 hours except in the worst of weather, when it is filled twice a day.

And you leave the fire to itself for 12 hours at a stretch—no night firemen duties.

In green houses, garages and big apartments this is a genuine saving in service cost.

Ask your heating contractor or engineer what he knows about Spencer Heaters—or ask the man who owns one. There are plenty of them.

Send For The Spencer Book and Information of Local Installations

THOUSANDS MOURN AT COCKRAN'S BIER

No Question of Christ's Divinity When He Can Create a Man Like Cockran, Says Father Wynne.

National, State and municipal officers, as well as thousands of admirers outside of officialdom, paid their last tributes of respect yesterday at the funeral of Representative W. Bourke Cockran, which crowded every inch of space in the Church of St. Jean Baptiste, Lexington Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street.

Fully fifteen minutes before the mahogany coffin was borne down the centre aisle, all the doors were ordered closed by the police. Eighteen hundred seats, including 400 emergency camp chairs, were occupied and the side aisle and galleries were jammed with friends of the late national figure. It was estimated that more than 3,000 men and women succeeded in entering the large edifice.

Inspector Thomas McDonald and 300 policemen exerted all their physical and mental power to keep the crowd that collected outside the church in order. Many attempted to enter, but were informed that was impossible. They lined the sidewalks—ten deep in some places—for two blocks on either side of the church. By the time the flower-banked coffin was removed from the church, a crowd estimated at almost 10,000 had gathered. Not only did they fill the streets, but many had vantage places at windows and on balconies within view of the procession.

It was noticed also that while socially and politically prominent persons attended the solemn high mass of requiem in large numbers, the majority of men and women present were those of only humble circumstances who had probably been moved by the orator at Irish meetings, for Mr. Cockran had addressed many such gatherings in New York.

The Most Rev. Patrick J. Hayes, Archbishop of New York, was the celebrant of the mass. The Rev. Patrick J. Manton was deacon and the Rev. Alfred Pauzé was subdeacon. Mgr. Michael J. Lavelle, rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral, was assistant priest, and the Rev. Dr. Stephen J. Donahue, secretary to the Archbishop, was master of ceremonies. Bishop John J. Dunn and Francis H. Wall were in the sanctuary during the mass.

In his eulogy the Rev. John J. Wynne, S.J., editor of Catholic America, spoke of Mr. Cockran's prominence not only in the political and social life of the country, but the religious life as well.

His oratory, said Father Wynne, was heard only when the cause was noble and holy. He was no fanatic and did not deal in commonplaces, but spoke with his soul. His power, instead of waning as he grew older, grew, the priest said.

"He was never known to refuse to aid a good cause," Father Wynne asserted. "Freedom was something divine in his eyes, and he was always ready to render his assistance, in a material way or otherwise, for the benefit of a downtrodden people. And he was always anxious to improve the relations between capital and labor."

Father Wynne said that Mr. Cockran always found time from his political, social and professional duties to attend church and worship the Christ he championed. He said there can be no question about Christ's divinity when He can create a man of Cockran's calibre.

Besides Governors Smith and Pinchot, the honorary pallbearers were Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, former Senator T. E. Burton of Ohio, Judge Martin T. Manton, Martin Keogh Jr., Nicholas Brady, Hamilton Fish Jr. and Daniel Riordan.

The Congressional Committee which accompanied the body from Washington for the funeral included Senators Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, James W. Wadsworth Jr., and William M. Calder of New York; Representatives L. W. Mott, J. J. Connolly, Isaac Siegel, W. B. Oliver, C. J. Sullivan, P. H. Dale, Meyer London, J. F. Carew, James C. McLoughlin, A. J. Griffin, J. M. Mead, W. A. Oldfield and W. M. Chandler.

Some of the societies represented were the New York Association of the Georgetown Alumni; Charles Carroll General Assembly, Fourth Degree, K. of C.; American Irish Historical Society, Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, Eucharistic Fraternity, New York Branch of the Catholic Converts League, Nocturnal Adoration Society, Third Order of the Blessed Sacrament, Marquette League of Catholic Indian Missions and the Osceola Democratic Club.

Floral tributes were heaped high in three automobiles. One, the tribute of his widow, lay on the coffin. It was a heart of red roses. Within the chancel rail were floral pieces from President Harding, who also sent a message of condolence, and Governor Smith. Interment was in the Gates of Heaven Cemetery, New York.

Plans to Raise Fund to Provide Yearly Tribute to American Dead Buried in Europe.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 5.—The American Legion announced plans at the national headquarters here today to raise before next Memorial Day an endowment fund of $100,000 to provide for the permanent annual decoration of the graves of all World War dead in Europe. This fund, together with a like sum already available from private contributions, will suffice, Legion officials say, beyond the lives of the Legion men who contributed to the fund, and will insure that on Memorial Day of each year all graves will be visited by Legion representatives and proper respect paid to those who gave their lives to their country.

American cemeteries in Europe are maintained by the Government, which, it was explained, has taken excellent care of the graves, but the Legion considers that it is its duty to pay a personal tribute to each grave on Memorial Day.

Three years ago Paris Post and other overseas organizations of the Legion, with the assistance of the American posts, raised a fund of 1,000,000 francs, the income from which was to be used for the decoration of overseas graves. The income from 1,000,000 francs, representing about $60,000 at present exchange rates, is considered insufficient, according to figures at Legion headquarters, there are approximately 32,500 graves of American veterans in Europe—21,409 in France and Belgium, 488 in England, 140 in Scotland, 40 in Ireland and 1 in Spain.

The fund will be raised by the Legion from the $5,000 posts in the United States and in foreign countries.

Steel—Plus Rivets, Equals Strength

Show us anything stronger than steel, hydraulically riveted, and we will build Kewanee Boilers of it. Do you know any material that is better? Do you know any material that is more dependable in a boiler? Do you know of any material half as good?

Kewanee Boilers must live long. They must be capable of standing exceptional overloads when necessary. Therefore, they are built of steel-plate and where the seams are joined they are put together by hydraulic riveting machines, each operating under a pressure of from 50 to 150 tons.

Kewanee Boilers are made and assembled in the factory in one piece. They are shipped in one piece and installed in your building in one piece. They are constructed of the same material and in precisely the same way as submarines, battleships, steamships and locomotives.

If you haven't a Kewanee Boiler in your building then you haven't the strongest and best boiler made in the world. Think it over.

Bridging The Ages

FROM the days of Tubal Cain, the sixth in descent from Adam, workers in iron and steel have built the bridge which bears mankind to successive stages of civilization. The imagination refuses to picture a world without iron. It is an essential of life itself, being a constituent of the blood and of vegetable fibre. It forms 5% of the earth's crust, a fact which explains why primitive peoples of the East discovered iron ore very early in their development.

The visible record of iron manufacture begins at least 4,500 years ago. Utensils made of that metal were found in the pyramids. Around 1250 B. C. a Hittite king left a memorandum in clay of a consignment of "pure iron" to Rameses II. Homer was so familiar with the hardening of steel in the ninth century B.C. that he used as a simile the hissing of hot metal quenched in water.

All that man knew for centuries was that certain black stones heated in a charcoal fire could be hammered into useful shapes. When cooled suddenly, the implements were found to be extremely hard. The fame of the Damascus sword indicates that tempering of steel was skilfully done in the Middle Ages, but the real chemistry of steel is the product of comparatively recent study.

With the invention in 1856 of Sir Henry Bessemer's converter, the steel industry entered a great new era. The hundreds of inventions and discoveries which followed bewilder the mind. The open hearth furnace in 1864 helped bring production costs down, and rapidly, the union of steel with alloys—nickel, manganese, carbon, vanadium, etc.—has brought an array of products which are beyond measurement in their value to the human race.

WHAT would we do without steel? Modern social life and the arts of commerce stand on a steel foundation. World-wide fluctuations of business are weighed in terms of the steel trade. The industrial power of nations is shaped by their control of iron and steel.

When we consider that more than $2,600,000,000 worth of steel products are made in the United States in a normal year, it is clear that banking has a vast and essential task in financing iron and steel production.

In its span of eighty-five years this bank has seen steel rise to massive proportions, and the ability of this bank to supply ample banking service to industry has increased in direct ratio to its long experience.

We are always pleased to send our representative to see anyone interested in discussing a banking relation.

In 1838 this Bank occupied one floor in a very inconspicuous building. Today, in its own building, the business of the Bank necessitates the use of eight entire floors—about 50,000 square feet of space.

Registrar Reports Majority of Students Are From New York —Jersey Second.

PRINCETON, N. J., March 5.—Statistics published by the registrar of Princeton here today show there are 2,373 students enrolled in the University for the second term of the scholastic year. Of these, 197 are members of the graduate school and the remainder are undergraduates. Forty-seven States and twenty foreign countries are represented.

The largest class in college is the freshman class, numbering 631. The sophomores have 522, but the juniors drop down to 453. There are 478 enrolled in the senior class. The bachelor of arts course is the most popular, with 1,198 enrolled. About one and a half times as large as the bachelor of science division, with 808. Only seventy-eight are taking the engineering course.

The class of 1923 is composed of about twice as many B. A. or B. S. or C. E. men, but the ratio in the class of 1924 is considerably less, about one-quarter. The ratio for the sophomore class is about one-third, while the scientific and academic courses of the freshman class are very nearly equal in numbers.

The majority of students in the university come from the State of New York, with New Jersey a close second in representation with 459 or 20 per cent. Pennsylvania is third with 377.

There are fifty-seven students from foreign countries, their homes being well distributed over the globe. Canada is represented by ten, China with nine and five men are from England, with four each from France, Japan and Korea. There are three each from Egypt, Philippine Islands and Mexico.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

Rub on Good Old Musterole

That cold may turn into "Flu", Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Colds are merely congestion. Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster, it does the work without the blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

PLANS AIR MAILS AT SEA.

British Firm Has Scheme for Relays of Planes and Liners.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 5.—One of the plans of a proposed £1,000,000 British Air Corporation is a scheme to expedite transatlantic mails. According to The Daily Chronicle's aeronautical correspondent, liners will carry a "ship plane which has folding wings and fits into a big steel tube, making it easy to stow away in a small space aboard ship. This ship plane will carry an 'urgent' mail bag and will overtake a liner hundreds of miles away from land on its voyage from, say, New York to Europe. The ship plane will alight on the water alongside the liner and be taken aboard.

"Then, when the vessel is nearing the completion of its journey, the ship plane will take flight again and speed ahead to shore with its bag of express mail. On reaching port the ship plane will be relieved of its cargo by a powerful, rapid airplane, which will continue overland this express transport of mail.

Mrs. Schoellkopf Will Testify Today After Confronting Biddulph.

Mrs. C. P. Hugo Schoellkopf of Buffalo, who was robbed of $500,000 in gems last New Year's morning following a card game in the apartment of Frank Barrett Carman on the top floor of 64 West Fifty-second Street, will appear before the Grand Jury today in connection with the effort of Acting District Attorney Pecora to obtain an indictment against Charles J. Hughes, a chauffeur.

Hughes is a brother-in-law of Eugene Moran, alias McGowan, one of three men indicted for the hold-up. He was arrested last week in connection with the escape from the city of Moran, Albert Horowitz, alias Lewis and Matthew D. Biddulph, alias Marshall, after they had stripped Mrs. Schoellkopf of her jewels in a suite they occupied below the Carman apartment.

Biddulph was arrested in Lancaster Street, Albany, about two weeks ago, and was alleged to have made a complete confession to Mr. Pecora within the last week. Biddulph, who is being held in the Tombs without bail, also will be a witness before the Grand Jury today. Mr. Pecora said there would be other witnesses, including Carman, a professional dancer, who accompanied Mrs. Schoellkopf to Europe last Summer as a dancing partner.

Mrs. Schoellkopf made a special trip to this city from her home to appear before the Grand Jury yesterday, but the body had adjourned before her arrival. Mr. Pecora said that Biddulph would be confronted by her before the Grand Jury proceeding begins.

Mr. Pecora said that the police were confident of capturing Moran and Horowitz, and intimated that the several interviews he had recently with Biddulph would aid in bringing about convictions in the case.

CANADIAN M. P.'S ASSAIL AMERICAN MAGAZINES

Call Them Trashy, Anti-British and Anti-Canadian and Propose Tax.

OTTAWA, March 5.—After a long debate in which American magazines were called "trashy," anti-British and anti-Canadian, the House of Commons tonight voted "it is desirable that measures should be adopted to encourage the publication of Canadian magazines and periodicals."

R. C. Hocken, Conservative from West Toronto, who offered the resolution, proposed additional legislation which would tax American periodicals 10 cents a pound or 15 cents a pound on pages where advertising was carried.

The House lopped from the Hocken resolution an amendment by John Evans, Progressive from Saskatoon, which proposed to encourage Canadian publications "by placing on the free list all material used in their production."

Besides being "trashy" and "anti," the imported American reading matter "featured opportunities South of the border; encouraged emigration from Canada and created a pro-American prejudice in the minds of young Canadians," several speakers contended.

Others doubted whether Canada could foster a national literature by shutting out the literature of another country or by cheapening print paper. The House should, it was held, "try to create a demand for something better than American magazines supplied."

Arthur Meighen, opposition leader, declared he was ready to vote for a 10 per cent. gross duty or a 15 per cent. duty on advertisements.

PASTOR AND DEACONS SCUFFLE IN CHURCH

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, March 5.—While the congregation of the Franlin Park Baptist Church, East St. Louis, waited for the morning service to begin yesterday their pastor, two deacons and the Sunday school superintendent were engaged in a scuffle in an ante-room, which resulted in the arrest of all combatants except the pastor.

Today the Rev. Grover C. Cross, 38 years old, pastor of the church; Luther Shelby, teacher in the Sunday school and deacon; Ira Perry, Sunday school superintendent, and Henry Ballard, deacon, gave their versions of the dispute. The last named three are held on bond charged with disturbing the peace.

The men entered his study while he was composing his thoughts for the morning service, the minister said, and questioned the manoeuvre by which Shelby recently was removed as teacher of a Sunday school class. He wanted them to leave the door open, Mr. Cross said, but Ballard shut it and braced himself to bar exit from the room. Then they pushed the pastor into a pile of chairs and hit him several times, he told the police.

The accused church members denied any act of violence against their pastor. Shelby said that Mr. Cross conspired to break up his Sunday school class of boys and girls. The pastor divided the class into a girls' class and a boys' class, and then had different teachers elected for each group.

"That left me out entirely," Shelby added.

Ballard and Perry said they went along with Shelby as peacemakers.

ROBBED TO AID HIS FAMILY.

Father's Plea to Be Investigated—Two Sons Helped by Court

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., March 5.—When arraigned before County Judge William F. Bleakley on the charge of burglary, Lewis Rose, aged and unkempt, pleaded guilty because he said that lack of food for his wife and seven children had driven him desperate and forced him to rob a bungalow at Croton-on-the-Hudson. Standing beside Rose in court were two of his sons, who confessed to acting as guard outside the bungalow while their father robbed it.

Judge Bleakley, struck by the pitiful appearance of the two boys, started a collection for them. He suspended sentence on them and said:

"You are going to get new clothes and tomorrow you both go to work, and if you lose your jobs you will go to the penitentiary. You will be under probation for the next two years. Depart from the influence of your father and make men of yourselves. Stick to your mother as she is sticking to you and your five little sisters and brothers."

Rose was remanded until tomorrow. Upon his wife's report will depend the action of the Court. Rose said that although his family was in need of fuel, he did not have the heart to take the things he had stolen.

OPPOSE REID HOSPITAL.

KENOSHA, Wis., March 5.—Launching for the mother, aunts and other relatives of Wallace Reid, a campaign against the plan of erecting a "dope sanitarium" to be named after the screen actor, who is said to have died fighting the drug habit, John Westbrook, Kenosha, made public today letters received from the actor's relatives in which they bitterly denounce the action of Dorothy Davenport Reid, wife of the actor, in lending her support to the venture.

The letters are from Miss Maude Westbrook and Mrs. Virginia Westbrook Backus, sisters of Mrs. Bertha Westbrook Reid, the mother of the dead actor, and they purport to present the attitude of the Reid family regarding the proposal. The letters also announce that the mother has written a biography of her son in an effort to emphasize other aspects of his life than the fight against the drug habit which is alleged to have caused his death.

DETROIT, March 5.—Detroit's $6,000,000 Ambassador Hotel project, announced ten days ago, was listed today as "one more castle in the air."

Nathan Silverman, alias Silver, promoter of the project, was in jail at Newark, N. J., ready to begin a three years' prison sentence on a charge of receiving money under false pretenses. The palatial office suite which he had maintained here was palatial no more after six men had called and carted the furnishings to a moving van. None of the furnishings had been paid for.

Silverman, the police said, used the hotel project as a "blind" to cover bootlegging operations. He is said to have contracted for four carloads of whisky. Silverman, it is also said, gave himself away because he boasted to associates that he had "put one over on the police and the Detroit public."

Appeal on Alien Preachers' Wives.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Whether the wife and minor children of a minister of the Gospel are excluded from the provisions of the immigration law regulating the quotas of aliens to be admitted will be determined by the Supreme Court. The court today granted an appeal sought by the Commissioner of Immigration at New York to have reviewed the cases of Gittel and Israel Gottlieb. The Government had contended that the exception in favor of ministers applied only to the ministers themselves.

TELLS OF WONDERS IN RUINS OF YUCATAN

MEXICO AIDS EXPLORATION

Visit by Tourists Made Easy by Good Roads, Asserts Official of Indian Museum.

Now is the time for American scientists to undertake investigations among the ancient Maya ruins of Yucatan, according to Dr. M. H. Saville of the Museum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation, 155th Street and Broadway, who returned yesterday from Yucatan.

With a party consisting of William Barclay Parsons, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Archaeological Institute of America; Dr. John C. Merriam, President of the Carnegie Institution, and Dr. Herbert J. Spinden of the Peabody Museum, Harvard, Dr. Saville set out for Yucatan more than a month ago to inspect the most famous of the Maya ruins at Chichen Itza and Uxmal and to be present at the formal opening of the Archaeological Institution of Yucatan.

"Yucatan offers an embarrassment of riches to the archaeologist," Dr. Saville said. "It is still a virgin field. In consideration of the work yet to be done, that so far accomplished amounts to hardly more than the turning of a spadeful of earth. The Maya ruins are the most remarkable of ancient America. The astonishing thing is that they have remained so long untouched.

"They appeal to me more strongly than ancient Egyptian remains. We have learned a great deal about ancient Egypt, but we know extremely little of these highly cultured Mayas. It is high time that we were waking up to the significance of these remains.

"Conditions are ripe for achaeological work in Yucatan by Americans. There is a great awakening of interest in Maya civilization among the citizens of Yucatan. The present Governor, Felipe Carillo, a descendent of the ancient Mayas, is enthusiastic about the exploration of the ruins, and the attitude of the Government of Mexico is friendly. The Achaeological Institution of Yucatan, to the best of my knowledge the first society of its kind in Latin America organized to preserve and explore monuments of ancient civilization, shows that Mexico is waking up to the fact that it has something worth looking after."

Dr. Saville said that on account of the great revival of road building in Mexico, tourists can visit the ruins quickly and comfortably.

BUDGE THINKS MENTU AND AMEN DIFFERENT

Declares One Is God of Generation and the Other Merely a Local War God.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 5.—Sir Ernest Budge, discussing today the possibility of deducing from the Bulak papyrus that the god Mentu was the same as Amen, admitted that "Amen" can men "Hidden," but thought that there was too great a difference between the two gods to make the theory feasible.

Amen, he pointed out, dates from prehistoric times and has as his symbol "the navel." He is the god of the power of generation and strength, which it implies, and traces of veneration of him are to be found among the Sudanese even to the present day. His properties were quite dissimilar from those of Mentu, whom Budge considers to have been merely a local war god.

In discussing the matter, however, Sir Ernest pointed out that there is very little known for certain about Egyptian gods and their attributes, and that it is very difficult to be dogmatic.

RAPS PHOTOGRAPHY TODAY.

No Progress Since the Daguerreotype, Says E. J. Steichen.

No progress has been made in photography since the daguerreotype, Eduard J. Steichen, widely known photographer and a former colonel in the photographic section of the A. E. F., said last night. He called the soft focus lens "the most perniciousinflue nce in the pictorial world, and bitterly criticized "the movement in fuzziness" now in vogue among supposedly artistic photographers. He spoke at a meeting of the Pictorial Photographers of America, at their exhibition at the Art center, 65 East Fifty-sixth Street.

According to Mr. Steichen, since photography is an objective art, a photographer is supposed to take things as they are, without injecting his personality into the picture. In the days of the daguerreotype so many difficulties surrounded camera artists, he said, that they were satisfied to get any kind of an exact reproduction. Mr. Steichen urged a return to sharp pictues and praised "the meticulous accuracy of the camera."

"I don't care about making photography an art," said Mr. Steichen. "I want to make good photographs. I'd like to know who first gotthinkhead that dreaminess and mist is art. Take things as they are; take good photographs and the art will take care of itself."

COLE Merchandising Plan Saves You $1000

The Cole Merchandising Plan is justly the talk of the automobile world. It gives you a quality car—a car that has been recognized as a leader among fine cars for sixteen years—a powerful car—8 cylinders, 80 horsepower, 127¼ inch wheel base—33x5 Cord tires—splendidly equipped—Waltham 8 Day Clock, Boyce MotoMeter, Delco Ignition and shock absorbers—a $2685 value—and under the Cole Merchandising Plan can be sold for

COLE Merchandising Plan

Judged by comparison of performance, finish, endurance, economy, beauty, or any other point, the Cole Aero EIGHT easily saves you $1,000. This saving is effected, not by a price reduction, but by a fundamentally sound selling plan that makes it impossible for any manufacturer to duplicate Cole quality at Cole's price without adopting the Cole Merchandising Plan or a similar one.

Standardizes Automobile Values

40 years ago Wanamaker's "One Price" plan set a new and fairer standard of merchandising to the public.

Today—Cole's Merchandising Plan has made automobile history, and is making it with every tick of the clock. The plan is so fundamentally sound, so simple and so obviously fair that it is sweeping the country.

It is readily recognized that the chief cost of getting any manufactured product to the public lies in distribution. Added to this ordinary business cost has been the terrific expense of the "Trade-in" practice in the automotive industry.

It is estimated by unbiased economic experts that the cost of the "Trade-in" practice on a quality car is several hundred dollars, which represents from 17 to 20 per cent of the list price of the new car. This percentage covers interest, insurance, sales expense and the maintenance of a used car department, such as heat, light, rent and general overhead expense.

But Cole purchasers no longer have to pay for this unsound, economic waste. The Cole Merchandising Plan saves the 20 per cent and passes it on to the public, where it belongs. In addition to this 20 per cent it saves you the usual inflation of list price that allows dealers to take "trade-in."

The Cole Plan does three things for you—it gives you a quality car at what has heretofore been a wholesale price—it saves you $1,000 on comparative value, and it makes you money by maintaining the value of your car, as your first year's depreciation is more than cut in half by the elimination of the long discount and the "trade-in" allowances. In a word, it standardizes automobile values.

What You Save—and How You Save It

Production engineers agree that the Cole plant is a model of scientific and economical management. Here quality cars are produced with painstaking care at as low a manufacturing cost as is possible by any manufacturer.

The big saving is effected in distribution. The Cole Merchandising Plan eliminates the "Trade-in" loss for which the public has had to pay, and the saving is passed on to the purchaser.

It is said by various automobile authorities and officials that list prices have been increased so that allowances of from $200 to $600 (See Example) could be made in order to take care of "Trade-ins." It was simply another cost which the public had to pay, and doubly unfair to the man who bought a new car with no old one to "Trade-in."

The Cole Aero EIGHT sold for $2,685 at the factory just prior to the adoption of the Cole Merchandising Plan, and is the price it would have to sell for today under the old "Trade-in" practice.

Here is what you save by the Cole Merchandising Plan—20 per cent on the former list price, plus the usual increase in list price of quality cars that has been made to take care of "trade-ins," bringing the price of the $2,685 Cole down to $1,885. In other words, we have cut our commissions to distributors and have eliminated the "Trade-in" allowance by adopting the Cole Merchandising Plan.

Less $263 (Average amount added to list price to take care of "trade ins")

Always remember the Cole Aero EIGHT is a $2685 Automobile

The new price is made possible only by the plan, and no manufacturer can duplicate Cole quality at Cole's price without adopting Cole's Merchandising Plan or a similar one.

For sixteen years the Cole has been recognized the world over as a fine car. Every Cole car has always been finished with as much care as though the reputation of the organization rested on it alone. Back of these years of quality is Cole's thirty-four years of successful experience in manufacturing and merchandising.

The Cole Aero EIGHT is a powerful car of such striking beauty that it commands instant admiration in any company.

Make the Test that Tells

Regardless of your preference or what car you are considering, you owe it to yourself to investigate the Cole Aero EIGHT and the Cole Merchandising Plan.

Put the Cole to any conceivable test. Gauge it by any standard—speed, power, hill climbing, comfort, economy, finish, beauty, safety, durability, or any other point you can think of.

Look at it from every angle—make The Test That Tells—figure what you save, and what you make on Cole quality at Cole's price—then you will really be in a position to know what car to buy, and we will gladly abide by your judgment.

For your own satisfaction call or telephone for "The Test That Tells."

If you have an old car to trade we can show you a plan of disposing of it that will actually make you money.

SMITH ASKS JERSEY TO MERGE ON TUBE

POINTS OUT ADVANTAGES

Tells Governor Silzer That New York Body Could Issue Bonds for Financing River Tunnel.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 5.—Suggesting a closer union between the Port of New York Authority Commission and the Vehicular Tunnel Commission, Governor Smith has written a letter to Governor Silzer of New Jersey, asking him to join in considering a plan to bring about a consolidation of the two agencies.

Governor Smith, in his letter, sets forth that when the vehicular tunnel is completed it will logically be a part of the general plan to improve the Port of New York. There would be many advantages, he thinks, if the vehicular tunnel project were transferred to the jurisdiction of the Port Authority. Under such a merger the Port Authority could issue its own bonds for financing the tunnel project from now on and thus relieve the taxpayers in both States from further burdens.

"The revenues from the tunnel," Governor Smith wrote, "would amortize these bonds and eventually the tunnel would become the property of the States, just as now contemplated. We would set an example for fostering consolidation of public works projects and financing such a one as this which will readily carry its own cost of construction, maintenance and operation without recourse to the public purse."

The Governor states that to consolidate the two commissions it will be necessary to amend the compact between the two States under which the vehicular tunnel is being built. "These are details," he wrote to Governor Silzer, "which can be discussed and adjusted."

The purpose of establishing the Port Authority the Governor wrote, was to bring about a development of the great port facilities possessed by both States. The vehicular tunnel, he said, was one of those individual projects of great value to the completed plan for improved transportation and distribution within the port district.

Under the present plan the vehicular tunnel, when completed, would be operated under an agency known as the New York and New Jersey Bridge and Tunnel Commission, composed in New York of three members appointed by the Governor, one by the Mayor of New York and two ex-officio members. It would be financed out of current revenues.

The Governor told the Chief Executive of New Jersey that if he would join in considering the consolidation of the two projects, he would arrange the necessary conferences to bring about the adjustment of details and the formal making of the necessary changes in the present law.

KILLS HIMSELF IN OFFICE.

Joseph M. De Hart shot and killed himself in the office of his motor corporation, 11,912 Jamaica Avenue, Richmond Hill, yesterday morning. De Hart left his home, 9,513 120th Street, Richmond Hill, at the usual hour and proceeded to his office. He reached there at 9 o'clock. Ten minutes later an employe heard a shot. He rushed into De Hart's private office and found his employer lying on the floor, with a bullet wound, from a .38 calibre revolver, in his right temple.

The employe telephoned to the Richmond Hill Police Station. The desk lieutenant there notified St. Mary's Hospital, Jamaica, and a surgeon later pronounced De Hart dead, saying that death had been instantaneous. A business associate of the dead man told Police Lieutenant Ward, at the Richmond Hill Station House, that De Hart had been worrying over financial matters.

The dead man was President of the De Hart Motors Corporation, dealers in Ford and Lincoln cars.

OLD HOTEL TO BE RAZED.

Brighton Beach Property Sold for Site of $3,000,000 Improvement.

The Brighton Beach Hotel and Music Hall adjoining it have passed from the hands of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company to Brighton-by-the-Sea, Inc., a subsidiary of the Realty Associates. The new owners plan to raze the famous old structures on May 1, when they take title to the property. Although the price paid for the property could not be learned, it was said that, with the cost of the improvements to be made, the outlay to the Realty Associates will be close to $3,000,000.

"Our plans are not in shape just now," said Frank Fox of the Realty Associates. "The company now owns the entire stretch of beach from Ocean Parkway to Coney Island Avenue, and when the old buildings are torn down we can tell what our plans for the improvements will be."

The Brighton Beach Hotel was built in 1868 and was one of the finest along the Atlantic coast at that time. Ten years after the hotel was built the ocean had encroached on the beach to such an extent that it was necessary to move the hotel back several hundred feet.

OLD COUPLE BAR HUGGING.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Demarest of Spring Lake Farm, Bergen County, who celebrated their seventy-third wedding anniversary on Saturday, yesterday recalled memories of the days of their courtship. Mr. Demarest is 95 years old and his wife is 91. They live with a daughter, Mrs. Peter Pullis. Mrs. Demarest still does all her own washing, and her husband spends his time in the garden and doing odd work around the house.

KARDOS & BURKE MEETING.

At a special meeting yesterday of the creditors of Kardos & Burke, stock brokerage firm, which failed in February, 1922, with liabilities in excess of $2,000,000, in the office of Referee Peter B. Olney, at 68 William Street, L. Barton Case, an attorney of 41 East Forty-second Street, was made trustee of the bankrupts' estate.

The selection of Mr. Case was not opposed, as attorneys representing various groups of creditors, after conferring, agreed to the selection. His appointment was confirmed by Referee Olney, who at the same time fixed his bond at $30,000.

The next hearing was set for March 12 at 11 A. M., at which time the trustee's report will be submitted.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—That phase of the Ponzi case involving the question whether persons to whom Charles Ponzi returned money on the eve of the collapse of his project can be compelled to return it to the trustee in charge of the settlement of the insolvent estate will be reviewed by the Supreme Court. Edward A. Thurston, the surviving trustee appointed by the court to settle Ponzi's affairs, brought the test case. The Supreme Court today granted a review.

HEWITT FIGHTS TO JOIN COOPER UNION BOARD

Sets Up Contention That He Is Oldest Male Descendant of Founder.

A controversy between Edward R. Hewitt, son of the late Mayor Abram S. Hewitt, and the trustees of Cooper Union, as to whether he should be named as trustee of Cooper Union, as the oldest lineal male descendant of Peter Cooper, founder of the institution, was submitted to the Appellate Division yesterday under the law permitting the Appellate Division to decide a case in the first instance in which the facts are agreed upon.

The agreed statement of facts declares that the deed of trust of the block of land and the building presented for the use of Cooper Union by the founder provides that his oldest lineal male descendant shall be a trustee. The present trustees are R. Fulton Cutting, J. P. Morgan, Charles W. Gould, Peter Cooper Bryce and Thomas Snell. The latter was chosen to succeed Peter Cooper Hewitt when the latter resigned May 11, 1921, not long before his death. Edward R. Hewitt, brother of Peter Cooper Hewitt, states that he and his brother Erskine are the only surviving sons of Mrs. Sarah A. Hewitt, who died in 1912. She and Edward Hewitt were the only children of Peter Cooper. Edward Hewitt left only one child, Edith Cooper Bryce, who died in 1910, leaving two daughters and one son, Peter Cooper Bryce.

The papers state that Peter Cooper Bryce was born Nov. 20, 1889, and is 34 years old, while Mr. Hewitt's age is 56, making him the oldest living male descendant. Peter Cooper Bryce was chosen trustee of Cooper Union on Dec. 13, 1917. It is stated that the trustees of Cooper Union refuse to make Mr. Hewitt a trustee because they "have been advised that Peter Cooper Bryce is now the oldest living male descendant of Peter Cooper."

Peter Cooper Bryce, is a son of the late Lloyd S. Bryce, one time American Minister to The Hague, and was married to Angelica Schuyler Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Brown, in April, 1917, the marriage having been hastened because Mr. Bryce, as a member of Squadron A, expected to be called for military duty.

DRIVES AT CHICAGO VICE.

CHICAGO, March 5.—A general order for the closing of vice resorts in Chicago was issued tonight by Charles Fitzmorris, General Superintendent of Police, who directed commanding officers to see that every resort in their precincts was closed.

The order followed action by Chief Justice Michael McKinley last week, when the special Grand Jury investigating vice failed to return indictments. Judge McKinley directed the attorney for the Juvenile Protective Association to furnish the Chief and other law enforcement officers with lists of all known resorts, and if they were not closed within a reasonable time to obtain warrants for the arrest of the Chief and others for neglecting their duty.

Chief Fitzmorris declined to comment on the issuance of his order tonight. One south side precinct alone has from 100 to 200 resorts, according to statements of members of the special vice Grand Jury.

PRAISE EX-JUSTICE PITNEY.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Correspondence between the Supreme Court and ex-Justice Mahlon Pitney, made public today, shows the high esteem in which the retired Justice is held by his associates. Pointing out that for ten years he had "given unremitting labor to the work of the court," the Justices stated in their joint letter that they were forced to the conclusion that he had sacrificed his health "in the earnest effort to do everything possible to further the work of the court."

The retired Justice replied that the appreciation of his work by his associates fully repaid his efforts to serve the court, even though overwork had undermined his health.

BRAIN INJURY AS EXCUSE.

He said that pressure on the brain resulting from an injury received five years ago caused him to have "spells of depression when I don't know what I'm doing."

Watches, rings and other jewelry were found in Watts's possession.

WOMAN IS FOUND HANGED.

PORT WASHINGTON, L. I., March 5.—The body of a woman identified as Madeline Penowski, 30, employed at Amityville at the sanitarium of Dr. C. L. Markham, was found hanging from the limb of a tree on Beacon Hill, near here, yesterday. Several boys had discovered the body on Thursday but did not report to the police.

Chief of Police F. J. Snow found the body hanging from a noose made of an apron string. A pocketbook with some change was found near by and $190 was found tucked in the waist. Physicians said the woman had been dead about five weeks. Dr. Markham said she had disappeared on Jan. 20.

A Woman's Smile

Have you noted how many smiles now show prettier teeth, in pictures and in persons? And how much they add to beauty and to charm?

Such teeth were seen less often in old days. The change has come with a new method of teeth cleaning. People are fighting film. Millions have gained in the past few years a new conception of clean teeth.

You will use this method when you know it. The results are resistless. So we urge you to make this test.

Dingy, dangerous film

Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats it. So, under old methods, beautiful teeth were more rare than now. Nearly everybody left some film to dim and destroy the teeth.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Tooth troubles were constantly increasing. Very few escaped. So dental science saw the need of finding ways to fight film.

Two ways discovered

After long research, two film combatants were discovered. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research, and these two great film destroyers were embodied in it.

Aids Nature's fights

Nature makes saliva alkaline to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay. It puts a starch digestant in saliva, to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Old-time tooth pastes, it was found, decreased those protective agents. That's one reason why they failed. Pepsodent multiplies that alkalinity, multiplies that starch digestant. It gives to both a manifold effect.

Compare the old ways with the new and you will realize the difference in effects.

Avoid Harmful Grit

Dentists of some 50 nations now advise its use

The use of Pepsodent has spread the world over, largely through dental advice. Its principles are recognized everywhere.

To careful people of some 50 nations it is bringing a new dental era. Not to use it means to disregard authoritative dental opinion.

As a result of great riding the team of Oscar Egg and Peter Van Kempen led the field in the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden after the evening sprints last night with a score of 109 points. Their nearest contender, the Goulett-Grenda pair totaled 60 points.

As a result of a jam started by Sam Gastman of the Jewish-American team, the team of Kockler and Stockholm lost a lap. Gastman sprinted out in front at 10:50 P. M., with Taylor and Lorenz hanging to the pace. Dave Lands relieved Gastman and dashed still further in the lead. The Spencer-Fitzsimmons and Kockler-Stockholm teams were too far behind and the other riders sped a lap ahead. Spencer and Fitzsimmons also lost a lap early yesterday morning.

At midnight the fifteen teams were far behind the record for the first twenty-four hours of racing, having covered only 473 miles and 7 laps. The record of 537 miles and 9 laps was made by the Fogler-Hill team in 1914.

The riders settled down to a steady pace, with an occasional spurt of a lap or so, but the teams remained well grouped. The crowd increased shortly before the 2:30 o'clock sprints this morning.

Henry Wynsdau won a special one-mile sprint at 12:30 this morning for a prize of $20, offered by the Garden management. Lucien Buysse of the Belgian team was second, with Harry Fitzsimmons third.

Spills Excite Crowd.

The sprints last night afforded the large crowd a full measure of excitement, as several spills occurred, the most serious a fall by Brocco. He was able to continue in the race, however, after receiving medical attention. Willy Lorenz, the German rider, took a nasty fall when his front wheel buckled under him. He, too, after his partner Karl Saldow relieved him for a short period, was able to return.

Egg captured four first places in the 9 o'clock sprints, while his partner Van Kempen took two first place honors. Van Kempen also took a third place in the fourth sprint.

In the first dash of the evening, Egg spurted in the lead, but had a tussle with Karl Saldow who outrode Horan for second position.

Just after the riders had slowed up after the first sprint of the evening Willie Hanley, with a burst of speed, shot away from the field and started another jam. His partner, Jake Magin, relieved him and increased the steal to a third of a lap. The field had a hard time keeping up with the terrific pace. The gap increased until it looked like the Jersey team might lap the field. The Coburn-Brocco team was trailing. Great sprinting by Harry Kaiser and McNamara and Lorenz pulled the field up, and then Alf Goullet, ripping off a brace of fast laps, closed the gap.

Brocco Hurt in Spill.

The first spill of the evening occurred near the finish of this jam, Brocco being thrown to the track when he was squeezed to the flat of the saucer by Van Kempen, who was but a few feet ahead of him.

4—Goullet, Eaton, Van Kempen, Horan.
7—Van Kempen, Horan, Hanley, Taylor.
9—T. Wynsdau, Kopsky, Saldow, Buysse.
10—Egg, Grenda, Coburn, Lands.

The points score after the evening sprints follows: Egg-Van Kempen, 109; Goullet-Grenda, 60; McNamara-Horan, 47; T. Wynsdau-H. Wynsdau, 31; Hanley-Magin, 31; M. Buysse-L. Buysse, 26; Lorenz-Saldow, 19; Kaiser-Eaton, 15; Gastman-Landa, 14; Brocco-Coburn, 13; Kockler-Stockholm, 11; Kopsky-Osterritter, 10; Fitzsimmons-Spencer, 5; Thomas-Taylor, 3; one lap behind, Oliveri-Drobach, 2.

Jam During Third Sprint.

In the second sprint Van Kempen had to ride hard to hold off Carl Stockholm of the Chicago team, but he won by a length. It was during this time that the big jam was at its height. The crowd, numbering more than 6,500, applauded generously.

Hanley pulled away in the third sprint and captured it without effort, with Grenda second. Goullet came through with a burst of speech in the fourth event and beat out Eaton.

It was then that the Egg-Van Kempen combination began to show form. The sixth sprint went to Egg with Grenda second. Egg came back in the eighth, leading Lands by a comfortable margin.

Egg spurted and won the tenth sprint, Grenda was second, Coburn third and Lands fourth.

Prize for Egg and Van Kempen.

The series of afternoon sprints kept the fair-sized crowd on the alert, with many of the riders spurting along less than a wheel length apart. Egg and Van Kempen received the $50 for the highest score with 31 points.

Horan, teamed with McNamara, captured the first afternoon sprint after a thrilling dash, and Egg, Horan's rival on the final lap, failed by inches. Coburn finished third and Eaton fourth.

In another thrilling finish, McNamara took first in the second sprint, with Van Kempen, Egg's partner, a close second. Jake Magin and Henry Wynsdau came in third and fourth. Without any apparent effort Horan took the third sprint, Hanley beat Egg for second position after a hard fight.

The German entrant, Karl Saldow, flashed up from behind in the fourth sprint, taking first place, with Henry Wynsdau second. The Goullet-Grenda team scored and captured honors in the fifth, seventh and eighth sprints, Goullet winning the seventh. The ninth sprint went to Egg after a brush with Dave Lands. In the last afternoon event Van Kempen retained the lead, despite the tremendous effort of Kaiser, the Newark rider.

While riding early yesterday morning, Brocco of the Brocco-Coburn team received a cablegram announcing the death of his mother in Italy. He withdrew for a short time. He appeared at his post again at 8 o'clock yesterday morning to continue the grind.

Goullet had the crowd with him yesterday afternoon, his ability to stick with the pacemaker winning for him new friends.

Theodore Wynsdau of the team of Theodore and Henry Wynsdau started a jam at 4:40 o'clock yesterday morning which cost the team of Thomas Fitzsimmons and Fred Spencer a lap. The jam occurred during a sprint for a twenty-dollar cash prize. Spencer was leading and riding wide. Wynsdau came through on the pole and kept right on going. Spencer apparently was tired and could not give chase. Wynsdau won the prize and took the lead. His brother Henry then relieved him. Spencer soon dropped far in the rear, with Coburn leading in the chase of the Wynsdau brothers. Fitzsimmons relieved Spencer, who by this time was more than half a lap behind. On the next relief of the Wynsdau pair, Fitzsimmons and Spencer were lapped. The field had drawn up close to the leaders when this took place.

McNamara and Magin, by teaming against Van Kempen during the final sprint, were jeered by the crowd and disqualified in the sprint by Frank Kramer, chief referee. McNamara is alleged to have teamed with Magin, who rode high and blocked Van Kempen.

Until tonight's contest, the final game of Iowa's Western Conference schedule, the Hawkeye team had to its credit eleven straight victories and no defeats. Nyikos, Indiana forward, was the individual star of the game, scoring 11 of his team's 23 points.

After the contest college officials declared the game to have been the best ever witnessed on the local floor. Iowa tried desperately to overcome the lead Indiana held throughout most of the contest and scored many sensational shots from the centre of the floor.

Nyikos, Indiana forward, a sophomore, who is playing his first season with Indiana, shot five field goals and scored eleven free throws for twenty-one of his team's points. His remarkable offensive and defensive work was an outstanding feature of the game.

BRITISH TENNIS BODY BANS TITLE TOURNEY

U. S. OFFICIALS PLEASED

Believe Decision Opens Way for American Association to Join International Federation.

LONDON, March 5 (Associated Press).—The Lawn Tennis Association at a general meet today unanimously voted to abandon the practice of awarding the world's title to the winner of the Wimbledon tournament. It also voted to hand over to the International Rules Board the right to make and amend the laws of the game.

These decisions are believed to remove the last obstacles to America's entry into the International Federation.

In surrendering their cake the English tennis rulers took measures to prevent others from eating it. In a resolution which is being placed before the national tennis governing bodies providing that the world's title for grass-covered and hard courts shall not be restored save by consent of the International Federation, the meeting voted to insert the word "unanimous" before the word "consent."

Some of the speakers voiced a warning that after clearing up all troubles with America this eleventh-hour insertion might prove a snag objectionable to America, and the resolution was so amended that the British delegation to the international meeting soon to be held in Paris was empowered to withdraw the word "unanimous" if the others objected to it.

Speakers favoring unanimous consent to revise the title declared that thus if England alone did not want the title to exist she could prevent it. Feltz Horner, a former member of the council of the Tennis Association, said in opposition: "Let us give it up without reservation. We have never, to my mind, been frank, friendly and fair to America in this matter."

Shouts of "No" revealed that his opinion was not shared by some of the others present.

Say Last Obstacle Is Removed.

Immediate action toward affiliation of America with the International Lawn Tennis Federation was forecast yesterday by officials of the United States Lawn Tennis Association when informed that the British authorities had voted to abandon the award of the world's grass court championship in perpetuity to Wimbledon.

The British decision in removing the last obstacle to this country's entry into the Federation was declared to pave the way for the first step toward American affiliation at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the U. S. L. T. A. here on March 17. This step, it was said, probably would take the form of an application for membership in the international organization.

The last annual convention of the U. S. L. T. A., held a month ago, left the question of affiliation in the hands of the Executive Committee after going on record as opposed to joining the Federation until the award of the world's title event in perpetuity to Wimbledon was abandoned.

The International Federation, it was pointed out, yet must act on the British decision, which will take the form of a recommendation to the Federation, but this is looked upon as only a formality.

PLANS TENNIS PLAY FOR JUNIOR TEAMS

U. S. L. T. A. to Arrange Series of Intercity Matches for Boys of This State

Intercity team matches between junior lawn tennis players of the leading cities of New York State will be a feature of the coming season, according to plans announced yesterday by the United States Lawn Tennis Association. Teams will be formed from the winners and runners-up in the various tennis centre tournaments within the State, and the boys forming such teams will play a series of intercity matches against similar winners from other localities.

Definite arrangements for the conduct of these intercity tournaments have not been completed as yet, but it is expected that they will be conducted along the lines of the Davis Cup matches, although it is not expected that the youthful contestants will be called upon to play more than the best two out of three sets. Under these conditions the intercity maches will consist of four singles and one doubles; the play probably covering a period of two or three days. Among the cities which are expected to be represented are Albany, Syracuse, Utica, Buffalo and Greater New York.

Kinsella Will Meet Covey For Court Tennis Crown

Walter A. Kinsella of this city, American professional court tennis champion, announced yesterday that his challenge to George S. Covey of England, holder of the world's professional title, has been accepted and that the two players will meet at the Prince's Club in London for the second time on May 7, 9 and 12. Four sets will be played each day, the winner being the player who first wins seven sets. If the players tie at six sets each, a thirteenth set will be played on the final day to decide the world's title. Kinsella and Covey will play for the gate receipts, two-thirds of which will go to the winner and one-third to the loser and for a side bet of £1,000 each. Before the championship contest Kinsella will play exhibition matches at the Queen's Club, the Prince's Club, Lord's and at the courts at Manchester, Eng. Kinsella will sail on March 20, which will give him ample time to become acclimated and get into condition. The players met last May at the Prince's Club in a series for the world's title, Covey defeating Kinsella by 7 sets to 3.

WILLIAMS BEATEN BY HAWK AT NETS

Elimination of Davis Cup Player by 9-7, 6-3 Is Big Upset in Florida Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 5.—Dr. Phillip B. Hawk, veteran Philadelphia player, caused a big upset today in the thirteenth annual tournament for the Florida State lawn tennis championship in singles when, on the clay courts of the Royal Poinciana Hotel, he defeated Richard Norris Williams 2d, veteran Davis Cup expert, in the semi-final round. Hawk won in straight sets by scores of 9—7, 6—3.

Hawk played an almost errorless game, having perfect control of his ground strokes and also being certain of his aim on the few occasions when he moved in for a volley. He played his game from the base lines and by his almost uncanny ability to return every shot made by Williams, no matter how fast it was, he kept Williams guessing as to how to break through his deadly accuracy.

Williams tried every shot in his repertoire, but he was unfortunate in driving the majority of his returns into the net or out of the court. Rarely did he go to the net to finish a point. Instead, he was content to remain on the base line and exchange volleys with the veteran Philadelphian. This, in the opinion of the critics, cost him the match.

Hawk won the last game by love score. As he shot his final point, which nicked the side-line, Williams shouted, "Beauty, Doc!" Williams was favorite to win the tournament.

Francis T. Hunter, national indoor champion, won easily from S. Howard Voshell in the other semi-final match by scores of 6—4, 6—1, and will play Hawk for the State title Wednesday afternoon. Hunter's terrific forehand drives and placement of his returns were too much for the former indoor titleholder.

Williams was again on the losing side in the men's doubles match when, with George W. Wightman as his partner, he lost in straight sets to Francis T. Hunter and Beals C. Wright by scores of 2—6, 3—6. Hunter and Wright will play Voshell and Samuel Hardy tomorrow afternoon for the doubles State title. Mr. and Mrs. George W. Wightman won their third round of the mixed doubles tournament by defeating Mr. and Mrs. S. Jarvis Adams Jr. in straight sets 6—2, 6—3.

WILDE IS MATCHED WITH PANCHO VILLA

Jimmy Wilde of England, world's flyweight champion, and Pancho Villa, the spectacular Filipino boxer who lost the American title to Frankie Genaro in Madison Square Garden last Thursday night, have been matched by Tom O'Rourke to engage in a fifteen-round bout under the auspices of the Republic A. C. at the Polo Grounds on June 16. This announcement was made yesterday by O'Rourke, who is matchmaker for the Republic A. C. The bout is to be one of several big battles which he expects to hold at the home of the Giants.

The contest between Wilde and Villa will be held on a Saturday when the Giants are playing in the West. The Yankees, however, will have a counter-attraction at their new stadium just across the river from the Polo Grounds, as they will play the St. Louis Browns on June 16.

O'Rourke made the announcement that the match between Wilde and Villa had been clinched following a conference with Frank Churchill, manager of the Filipino boxer. The matchmaker of the Republic A. C. signed Wilde some time ago with the expectation that Villa would defeat Genaro. The defeat of Villa somewhat upset matters and O'Rourke delayed arranging a match for Wilde until he had time to see how the newspaper critics treated the decision which took the title away from Villa.

In making his announcement of the match O'Rourke said that it would be for the world's flyweight championship. Wilde is to receive 37½ per cent. of the gate receipts and Villa 12½ per cent., O'Rourke stated. He added that no guarantees had been made to the boxers.

PIONEER S. C. SEEKS TO ENJOIN FIRPO

Summonses were issued yesterday to Louis Firpo, the South American heavyweight, and the Garden Sporting Club, in behalf of the Pioneer Sporting Club, through its attorney, Frank Harris, calling upon them to appear today in Part 2 of Special Sessions to show cause why an injunction should not be issued preventing Firpo from boxing Bill Brennan in the Garden next Monday night. The Pioneer Sporting Club insists that Firpo signed a contract last Fall to appear in its ring against Jack Herman, but returned to Argentina without fulfilling his contract.

An appeal was made a few days ago to the State Athletic Commission to prevent the Firpo-Brennan bout in the Garden, but Chairman Muldoon said that he would not interfere.

Tickets for the bout between Firpo and Brennan were placed on sale yesterday. There was a large demand for the tickets.

Firpo engaged in some lively work in the Garden gymnasium yesterday under the watchful eye of Jimmy De Forest, who is in charge of his training. The South American boxed two rounds with Jack Johnson and two with Jamaica Kid, formerly sparring partner of Jack Dempsey. Dudey Johnson is another new sparring partner.

Brennan also had a lively session in the gym yesterday. He boxed a dozen rounds, going four each with three sparring partners.

PHILADELPHIA, March 5.—Jimmy Mendo, Philadelphia, outpointed Joe Lynch, bantamweight champion, in an eight-round bout tonight. BYDOLEK IS LEADER ON PINEHURST LINKS

Has Card of 77 for First 18 Holes of Qualifying Round in Spring Tourney.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 5.—A field of 333 golfers disposed of the first eighteen holes of the thirty-six-hole qualifying round in the annual Spring tournament at Pinehurst today and was led at the finish by Joseph Bydolek of Buffalo, who played on the No. 2 or championship course and turned in a card of 37, 40—77.

The half of the field which played its first eighteen holes on the more difficult No. 3 course today was led by Chick Fownes of the Oakmont Club, who went around in seventy-eight and who tied for second place with Frank T. Keating of New York.

Bydolek began his round auspiciously with a birdie four on the first hole. He gathered in another birdie on the fifth and finished the first lap of the journey with a fine two on the ninth.

His card:

In .....5 4 5 4 6 4 5 4 3—40—77

B. P. Merriman of Waterbury and F. C. Newton of Brookline, two of the favorites for the qualifying medal, covered the No. 3 circuit in 79 strokes.

T. Russell Brown of Montclair and Lake Champlain, who played the No. 3 in 81; John D. Chapman of Greenwich and Donald Parson of Youngstown, who tied at 82, and James D. MISS COLLETT FIRST IN QUALIFYING PLAY

BELLEAIR HEIGHTS, Fla., March 5.—Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, women's national golf champion, more than lived up to her reputation when she led a field of fifty in the qualifying round of the women's championship of Belleair today. She covered the difficult No. 4 course in 79 strokes. The best part of her score today was the way she played the incoming nine, which she did in 36 strokes.

The next best score to that turned in by Miss Collett was made by Mrs. Caleb Fox of Huntingdon Valley, who defeated Miss Collett in the first tournament of the season. Mrs. Fox has not been playing so well during the past two weeks. She was out in 42, beating Miss Collett by a stroke, but coming home she required a 48, which ran her total up to 90.

Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, who was picked as the one most likely to beat Miss Collett in this tournament, if any were equal to that task, required two more strokes than Mrs. Fox. She tied with Mrs. Alex Smith of Shenanoseett with 92. Only those who were able to break the hundred got into the championship flight.

DILLARD DALLIES AS GIANTS DRILL

Tierney Will Try to Serve Notice on Rookie at Mealtime—Notes About the Squad.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 5.—This is the story of a promising youngster who wouldn't play major league baseball. If it has any moral, it is that you may lead a rookie to training camp, but you can't make him play.

The young man in question is Joseph B. Dillard, an infielder from Southwestern University, in Texas. He is tall and rangy, fast on his feet and a hard hitter. Four major league clubs bid for his services last year, and the Giants finally landed him with a great air of triumph, for he had been touted to the skies as a sure-fire comer. Dillard was with the New York Giants, the most famous ball team in baseball history, and on reading the news several thousand youths over the country sighed in deep envy.

But was the said Joe Dillard teeming with eagerness to show his wares to John J. McGraw? He was not. Did he jump into a uniform, tear out on the field and burn up the grass with his youthful enthusiasm? Again the answer is, "No."

What Dillard did was this:

He reported to the Giants' camp here last Wednesday, registered at the hotel and picked out a locker at the field. One day he went so far as to put on a uniform, but Joseph got no further than the bench in centre field, where he lolled in the sunlight the rest of the afternoon. Since that day he has not been seen near the park. He eats regularly, and with some gusto, at the club's expense, sleeps in the room provided for him at the hotel, but as far as vulgar practicing is concerned—well, Joseph seems to be above that.

Tierney on the Lookout.

So today he was suspended for ten days by McGraw. That is, he will be suspended if Secretary Jim Tierney can find him some day at meal time to serve the official papers. Dillard is one of those mystery men of fiction. He can never be found. He gets up at 6 or 7 o'clock, eats breakfast and then disappears. At regular intervals he shows up to consume more food, but nobody ever sees him. "Where is Dillard?" they ask at the ball park, and the same query goes through the foyer of the hotel without result.

True, they did corner him long enough on Saturday for McGraw to interview this man of mystery. "What kind of fellow are you?" demanded John J. Murray and Catcher Al Walters, all former Yankees, reported to Manager Frank Chance of the Red Sox today.

SQUAD OF YANKEES REACHES ATLANTA

Seven Players Complete First Leg of Trip and Will Reach New Orleans Today.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 5.—The Yankee's special, bearing seven members of the squad, passed through here early this evening on the journey to the Spring training camp in New Orleans. The party in charge of Traffic Manager Mark Roth, consists of three regulars, four recruits and a number of newspaper men.

The veterans in the party are Joe Dugan, Waite Hoyt and Whitey Witt. The rookies are George Anderson, formerly of Fort Monroe, Va., George Artus, who was plucked from the New Jersey semi-pro ranks, Henry La Vallie, an outfielder from Worcester and Fred Spates, former Brown University pitcher. Anderson joined the squad at Washington last night.

The regulars have renewed acquaintances with other big league players, past and present, who boarded the train on its infrequent stops on the journey south. Bill Lamar, former Yankee and Brooklyn outfielder, who is now with the Toledo Club of the American Association, was a passenger to this city where he will visit relatives. Eddie Foster and Frank Ellerbee of the St. Louis Browns are also on the train on their way to their training camp at Mobile.

The party will reach New Orleans at 9.25 tomorrow morning, according to schedule. Manager Huggins is expected at the training ground in advance of the New York delegation. The rest of the widely scattered team has been ordered at New Orleans by tomorrow.

ROBINS' BATTERY MEN HAVE LONG WORKOUT

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 5.—The temperature hit the 85 mark here this afternoon, and the seventeen pitchers and catchers in the Robins' Spring training camp were put through a hard practice session by Manager Wilbert Robinson. The workout lasted about two hours.

Robbie kept every one of his players on the jump while they were in uniform. During the strenuous session Al Mamaux, Art Decatur, Dazzy Vance, Burleigh Grimes and Clarence Ollinger took turns on the mound and pitched to batters.

Mamaux was the first pitcher to perform, and he worked about fifteen minutes. While Al was in the box, Grimes stationed himself at third base and fielded grounders. While Ollinger was on the mound Grimes made what was the longest hit of the afternoon. He lifted a fly over the right-field wall.

It was the first time this year that Grimes and Vance put on their uniforms, and the two pitchers appeared to be in good shape. They have an edge on the other twirlers, as they spent two weeks in Hot Springs before reporting here.

Charlie Hargreaves, the catcher obtained from the Pittsfield Club of the Eastern League, spent most of his time behind the plate, and he looks like a promising athlete. He handled the deliveries of the pitchers in good style.

The only members of the battery department still absent from the camp are Pitchers Cadore, Harper and Ruether. The first two named are on their way here and Robbie expects to have them out in uniform tomorrow. Ruether, however, is still a holdout, but may be here soon. The southpaw is in San Antonio and this afternoon Robbie received a wire from him. Dutch asked for transportation to the camp and the money may be sent to him. The pitcher wants to come here and talk his case over with President Ebbets.

Scott and Ryan Surrender; Will Report at Giants' Camp

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 5.—Jack Scott and Bill Ryan, two Giant pitchers, who have been holding out, waved the white flag of surrender today and wired John McGraw that they have decided to leave for San Antonio at once. Ryan's telegram contained the definite statement that he has accepted terms, but Scott merely announced that he will come here. However, this is taken to mean that the big right-hander has capitulated, else he would not be flying in the face of the Giants' rule against hold-outs reporting at the training camp. With the surrender of Scott and Ryan, only Dave Bancroft and Jack Bentley remain in the hold-out brigade. Bancroft has given signs of weakening, and Bentley's quarrel is with the Baltimore club, from which he has demanded $5,000 of the purchase price paid for him.

BABE RUTH STAYS AT ARKANSAS SPA

Special to The New York Times.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 5.—Chaperoned by Manager Miller Huggins, who arrived here this morning and lingered only long enough to have a chat with Babe Ruth and a talk with Colonel Huston, three members of the Yankees left for New Orleans today. There were to have been four players in the party, but Infielder Mike McNally has a light attack of influenza, and Wallie Schang, Carl Mays and Everett Scott departed without him.

McNally and Babe Ruth remain here in charge of Colonel Huston and Dr. W. T. Wootton. The Babe, though still quite weak, was able to be up and around his room and might have started for New Orleans if the weather had been fair. The doctor would not permit him to be moved in the rain, however, and also cautioned McNally against taking the trip at this time. Colonel Huston will remain with the Yankee invalids until they are strong enough to leave and then escort them to the training camp at New Orleans.

Joe Bush and Bob Shawkey also remained in Hot Springs. Both pitchers feel that they are deriving great benefit from the baths and their daily activities at the Country Club and plan to stay here for at least another week.

Scott, Schang and Mays are scheduled to arrive at New Orleans at 11 A. M. tomorrow, and Colonel Huston hopes to have his invalids at the Cresent City by Thursday at the latest.

ABLAZE IS FIRST IN THE IRON MASK

Daughter of Tony Bonero Causes Upset by Winning Handicap at New Orleans.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, March 5.—The goodthing players came into their own at Jefferson Park this afternoon. Since the racing scene was shifted from the Fair Grounds form has been reasonably well observed here, but the long shots had their inning today.

The feature race, the Iron Mask Handicap, was no exception to this general form reversal. Six starters went to the post and the rank outsider of the sextet was the Riverdale Stable's six-year-old brown mare Ablaze. But just to add one more surprise to a day of surprises, the daughter of Tony Bonero outraced her field over the entire five and one-half furlongs and won with much in reserve. The winner paid 12 to 1.

Wolf's Cry and Translate were equally supported by the form players and the latter might have won had he not been forced back in the first quarter. As it was he beat Mavourneen for the place by half a length. Translate broke slowly, but once he struck his stride closed a big gap.

Long Shots Show in Front.

Favorites scored in the opening dashes of the day, but that was to be all the nutriment for the form players in the afternoon's sport. A 15-to-1 shot scored by a head in the fifth contest over an entry which was held at 12 to 1. This was an excellent illustration of about how prominently the favorites figured.

Doughnut was the lucrative-priced one which took the fifth race. Jockey Doyle bustled him into a lead the minute the mile and a sixteenth journey got under way, and, saving much ground with him all the way, just managed to bring him home ahead of Attorney. The latter was going strongest at the end and would have won had he not been taken wide in the final half mile. With this handicap, however, he just nosed Ettahe out of the place. Tody, the favorite, was never a factor.

Blue Brush, also a 12-to-1 proposition, made something of a show of the big field in the closing contest and got home a winner by three lengths. Bravo and Chateaugay trailed the Leigh gelding across the line in the order named.

Two accidents occurred during the afternoon, but neither one was serious, although Jockey Thomas suffered a fractured leg as the result of a fall from his mount, William of Corotoman, in the second race. William of Corotoman's owners are thinking of making a steeplechaser out of him, and it may be that he was just getting in trim for the jumps. At any rate, he went down in the first quarter of the six-furlong dash and Thomas had a lively time getting free of him.

Jockey Wallace Escapes Unhurt.

ENGLISH AND U. S. TO CLASH AT POLO

First Game of International Indoor Tournament Will Be Played Tonight.

TONIGHT'S POLO PROGRAM.

Teams representing England and the United States will line up tonight in the opening game of the first international indoor polo tournament ever held, when Captain F. W. Egan and Captain R. A. Grannis, respectively, will lead their trios onto the tanbark of the Squadron A Armory at 9:15 o'clock. The series will be for the John R. Townsend International Challenge Cup and the conditions call for the best three in five games. The second match will be played on Thursday evening and the third on Saturday. If the series runs the full five games, the other games will be contested on March 13 and 15.

All games will be played in the big armory of Squadron A, Park Avenue and Ninety-fourth Street, which is also the scene of the national and intercollegiate indoor championships. All except two of the boxes have been sold for the season, while few of the more than 1,500 seats available for tonight remain unsold.

In connection with the international match, two national championship contests will be played. In the first, which will be started at 8:15 o'clock, the Riding Club of this city will oppose the First Philadelphia City Troop in Class B. After the preliminary game the Seventh Regiment Band will head a parade onto the tanbark, followed by the ponies, which will be ridden by the British and American teams. There are seven in the British string, six the property of Captain Holman and one owned by Captain Walford. Several are pony bred and all have played in leading outdoor polo tournaments in England. Following the international match, a Class C championship game will be played between the Squadron A "Y" team and the Essex Troop of Newark.

English Team Confident.

"We are fit and ready for the test," said F. W. Egan, field captain of the English team, last evening. "We would have liked a little more practice at the indoor game, which we never played as a team before our first practice game in this country. But we are not worrying, and our ponies seem to be very fit. We expect to do well, and we will be greatly disappointed if we do not lift the Challenge Cup."

America's representatives will be mounted on the pick of the ponies of the indoor polo world. Archer W. Kinny, No. 1 will have the mount in the first period on Cyclone, the property of George C. Sherman, President of the Indoor Polo Association. He also will ride his own Dynamite and will have another mount in reserve. Dr. H. B. Blackwell, No. 2 on the defending team, will be on Hollyhock, another from the Sherman stable, and also will ride his own ponies, Sammie and Steve.

R. A. Grannis, field captain of the American team, who will play at back, will use three of his own ponies, Jollity, Jerico and Jupiter, big and heavy, well trained and fast. Captain Grannis expressed confidence last evening.

"Our ponies are in splendid shape," he said. "We are all well mounted. Though the English players have brought over some very fine ponies, I think that we shall be more than able to hold our own."

Both Teams Take Rest.

There was no practice yesterday, both captains preferring to rest their men and mounts.

Many prominent players of polo indoors and outdoors will attend. The list of boxholders for the opening event follows:

Schooner Mayflower Lost To Racing, Motor Installed

GLOUCESTER, Mass., March 5.—The Mayflower, smartest schooner of the American fisheries under sail, having found no vessel to match speed with her in two years of international fishermen's racing, is to be cut down and equipped with a motor. Sporting considerations have been set aside by the Boston syndicate that owns her, and they have written off a loss of $14,000 incurred in the two-year effort to have the Mayflower recognized as a fisherman eligible to compete for The Halifax Herald Championship Cup. The speed built into the schooner, which caused her to be declared more nearly yacht than fisherman, will never be tested as planned, although she may be raced in her revised form with the engine sealed. This decision became known today when the schooner was towed here.

GOVERNOR VETOES MEMORIAL DAY BILL

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 5.—The Memorial Day Observance bill passed by the Indiana General Assembly was vetoed by Governor McCray tonight. The measure as passed would have prohibited the running of the annual international 500-mile automobile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway on May 30.

Governor McCray's action on the measure followed an opinion by State Attorney General U. S. Lesh, in which he held the bill to be unconstitutional. The measure now goes back to the Assembly, which may pass it over the Executive's veto, but as the Indiana Legislature ends its session at midnight tonight, opponents of the bill say such action is hardly probable.

The Memorial Day bill, as passed, declared "it shall be unlawful for any person or persons, firm or corporation, the thirtieth day of May, known as 'Memorial Day' to engage in or to promote racing of any character, whether of vehicles or animals, or aircraft, or watercraft, or to engage in or to promote any game or sport of any character whatsoever, where a fee is charged for admission to such races, games or sports, or where such races, games or sports are engaged in for prizes." And provided a fine of not more than $500 and imprisonment in a county jail or the State penal farm for not more than six months for violation.

The Memorial Day bill, known as Senate bill 31, was introduced by Senator Robert Moorhead of Indianapolis. Strongly supported and as bitterly fought, it developed into one of the most widely discussed measures before the Assembly.

The bill was passed by the Senate early in the session with practically no opposition. So much business preceded it in the House, however, that final action there was delayed until last week. Motions to postpone indefinitely and numerous proposed amendments in the House alike were defeated and the measure was passed by the House, 58 to 38, in the same form in which it went through the Senate. The vote was only two more than the constitutional majority required for passage in the House.

Duluth Wins Exhibition.

BOSTON, March 5.—The Duluth Hockey Club defeated the Victorias of Boston, 7 goals to 0, in an exhibition games here tonight. Seaborn, at centre for Duluth, scored four goals.

FIRST RIVER SPIN FOR YALE OARSMEN

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 5.—Yale's outdoor rowing was started this afternoon, Coach Ed Leader taking three varsity eights and one 150-pound crew upon the Quinnipiack River, which was not free from ice. The workout consisted of a four-mile paddle, rough water confining the crews to the slack water above the bridges. A stroke averaging 22 was used. The crews showed results of their Winter in the tank.

Coach Leader has eliminated many of the minor defects and is well pleased with the progress. The first race, the triangular regatta between the Yale, Columbia and Penn first and second crews will be held on the Housatonic on May 5. The crews probably will be moved to their Spring quarters at Derby within two weeks.

Whites—Bow, Isham; 2, Captain Pelly; 3, Ellis; 4, Jackson; 5, Miller; 6, Brooks; 7, Haines; stroke, Ewing, and coxswain, Preston.

Blues—Bow, Davidson; 2, Shew; 3, Carpenter; 4, Sheffield; 5, Wilson; 6, Rockefeller; 7, Goodwin; stroke, Rider, and coxswain, White.

Coach Leader at the Y Club tonight discussed plans for the Easter vacation. The oarsmen will be allowed a brief visit home, but a picked squad will be asked to return early.

COLUMBIA TO MAKE CHILDS CUP TRIP

1,000 Students Will Accompany Crew for First Time in History of College Rowing.

Plans for a student trip to Philadelphia for the Childs Cup Race on April 28 were announced by the Columbia University Student Board yesterday afternoon. A special train will be chartered and it is expected that 1,000 students will make the trip.

In order to key enthusiasm up to a climax a crew rally has been arranged for the night of April 26 in the Columbia University commons. Practically all of Columbia's famous crew men of the past generation will be asked to speak. The speaker's list will be augmented by President Nicolas Murray Butler, prominent university officials and undergraduates.

This trip will mark an introduction in Columbia's attempts to support athletic teams away from home. Trips of students in a body to uphold the football, baseball and track teams have been common in the history of Blue and White athletics, but never before has a representative body of students taken a special trip to cheer the crew.

Two years ago nearly 300 made the trip to Dartmouth in following the work of the football team, and last year a larger squad journeyed to Ithaca to witness the Columbia-Cornell football game. The annual West Point trip, which is becoming a tradition on Morningside Heights, was introduced with the purpose of lending support to the Blue and White in its yearly track meet and baseball game with the Army.

The Columbia delegation will leave for Philadelphia in the morning of the day of the race. Arrangements for the Columbia exodus are in charge of a committee of undergraduates headed by Ferris Booth, the assistant manager of the crew.

Today's Games.

Fortune smiled on Edgar T. Appleby, New York Athletic Club star, when he began the defense of his title as national amateur Class A 18.2 balkline billiard champion at the Crescent Athletic Club last night. The youthful cue wizard, whose star has been somewhat dimmed this season by the exploits of his brother, Francis, was in nowhere near top form, but managed to draw Emil A. Renner of Youngstown, Ohio, in the opening game of the final round robin, and the Ohioan was likewise off his game. The result was a battle that was drawn out to thirty-three innings, Appleby being the winner, 300 to 165.

In the other two games played during the day, winding up the preliminary series, the winners were John A. Clinton Jr. of the Pittsburgh Athletic Association and Francis S. Appleby of the N. Y. A. C. Clinton took the measure of T. Henry Clarkson of the Amateur Billiard Club, 300 to 83, giving him first place in Section A, with four consecutive victories. Francis S. Appleby won from E. W. Gardner, Montclair Athletic Club veteran, 300 to 235.

At the conclusion of the preliminary round robin yesterday Francis Appleby, who holds the high run and high average figures for the present tourney, his high average mark of 27 3-11 equaling the national tournament record, was far ahead of the other contestants with a grand average of 18.18. Clinton was second with 13.13, closely followed by Collins and Renner with 12.29 and 10.10, respectively. Other grand average marks were: Dr. Roscow 9.07, Jacob Klinger 8.91, Clarkson 7.05, Gardner 6.9, John M. Lord 6.16 and Julian Rice 4.13.

Champion Runs 95.

Edgar Appleby went scoreless for the first two innings against Renner in the opening game of the championship proper in the evening. The defender appeared slightly nervous and at the conclusion of the third inning the Youngstown player had gathered a total of 48 carroms, while Appleby's total was only 1. Taking the table for the fourth session, however, the champion proceeded to take the lead with a brilliant run of 95, missing on a one-cushion shot, which failed by a slight margin. He followed with a run of 23 for a total of 119, a kiss-off spoiling what looked like the beginning of another good cluster.

For the next twelve innings Renner held the scoring honors with a run of 8. During that entire session Appleby collected only 30 carroms, twice losing points by failing to hit either object ball. Renner's total for the same period was only 38.

Renner enlivened things somewhat with his run of 25 in the eighteenth inning, but he was still trailing by 47 carroms when Appleby responded with 10 in his half. The latter's cluster of 48 in the twenty-third gave him a lead of more than a hundred points, with a total of 237, but it took him ten more innings to run out.

The score by innings:

Edgar T. Appleby—0 0 1 95 23 6 2 0 —1 0 5 2 2 5 1 7 0 1 10 1 26 2 2 46 3 8 2 17 0 6 23 7 0 1 5 2. Total, 300; average, 9.2-33; high runs, 95, 48, 26.

Emil A. Renner—1 18 29 3 0 9 0 0 0 0 1 8 2 1 6 4 0 2 5 8 7 2 11 0 0 0 2 2 0 4 1 3 5 10. Total, 165; average, 5; high runs 29, 25.

Gardner Takes Early Lead.

With two fine runs of 49 in the fifth and sixth innings, Gardner opened up a wide gap on Francis S. Appleby in the nineteenth game of the preliminary series. His first was made at the lower end of the table and in the centre space and was brought to a halt when he missed a single cushion. His second, in which his forty-ninth carom was a wonderfully executed time kiss, was ended when he failed on a three-cushion effort. The two runs, both of which topped his best previous performance, gave him a lead of 83 points, the score being 116 to 33.

Up to this time Appleby's best collection was a cluster of 12. The latter aided his cause by a run of 38 in the seventh session, but Gardner responded with 36. Appleby then clicked off 26 caroms, but in the tenth inning Gardner ran off 20, leaving his total at 177. Appleby's was now 110. With runs of 23 and 18 later on, Appleby lagged only 46 points behind in the fourteenth session. He forged ahead of the Montclair player in the seventeenth inning, when he ran 58, bringing his total up to 212.

For the next five innings they went along on practically even terms, but Appleby opened up a 28-point lead with his run of 22 in the twenty-third inning. Getting the ivories together when Gardner missed in the twenty-fifth inning, Appleby ran out his required 39 in short order.

The score by innings:

Francis S. Appleby—7 2 3 12 8 1 58 26 10 1 23 1 18 1 0 58 0 1 0 0 25 23 1 38. Total—300. Average, 12; high runs, 58, 38, 36.

Edward W. Gardner—2 1 7 8 40 49 3 36 2 20 9 10 2 3 7 0 3 0 2 1 0 20 0 1 2. Total—235. Average, 9 10-25; high runs, 49, 40, 36.

Clinton Is Easy Victor.

Clinton took only sixteen innings to defeat Clarkson in the final match of the preliminary series, thus clinching a place in the finals. His average was 18 12-16. After making 8 caroms in his opening inning, Clinton gathered 95 on his second stand. It was a brilliant exhibition of billiards, in which he brought into execution every shot in his kit. The run gave him a lead of 79 points, and he was never headed thereafter.

Clarkson, following his string of 24 with one of 18, reached double figures only twice during the remaining innings, while Clinton had subsequent runs of 52, 30 and 26. The last two, coming in the fifteenth and sixteenth innings, respectively, ended the game.

The score by innings:

John A. Clinton Jr.—9 95 3 10 4 8 52 11 14 4 0 17 6 3 30 35. Total 300, average 18 12-16, high runs 95, 52, 35.

T. Henry Clarkson—0 24 18 1 3 0 1 5 1 1 6 3 0 13 13 5. Total 83, average 5 2-16, high runs 24 13.

Two matches were contested. In the first Louis Servatius defeated J. Clemens by a score of 150 to 57. The victor averaged 5 and had a high run of 27, while Clemens averaged 1 28-29 and had a high run of 8. J. Clemens was defeated again in the second contest by Swenarton, 150 to 130, but had the high run of the game, 14. Swenarton's best cluster was 13.

Five games were played last night in the Tri-State Pocket Billiard Championship Tournament at Lawler Brothers' Billiard Academy in Brooklyn. In Class A, P. Gill defeated L. Ford, 75 to 55; and H. Caposella defeated S. Friedberg, 75 to 17. In Class B, P. Steiger defeated E. Boston, 75 to 52, and S. Eldrege defeated C. Gonzales, 75 to 60. In the one Class C contest W. Hutchison defeated G. Livingston, 80 to 59 and R. Meyers defeated M. Buchacker, 80 to 78. H. Klessman defeated R. Blair in the three-cushion handicap final by a score of 25 to 21.

Three games were played last night in the Manhattan three-cushion billiard championship at the Nassau and John Street Recreation Billiard Academy. J. Van Gelder was the victor in the first match, defeating F. Barnett by a score of 30 to 18. Van Gelder had a high run of 6 and Barnett had a 3. The game lasted fifty-three innings. R. Brussel defeated J. W. Polk in the second contest by a score of 30 to 9, after fifty-nine innings. Brussel had the high run, a 5, while Polk's best cluster was a 2. H. O. Grant took the measure of L. Leeker in the third game, 30 to 27, in seventy innings. Each had a high run of three.

Willie Hoppe continued in his winning stride at the Hoppe-Peterson Billiard Club last night, where the champion is tuning up for the world's championship match with Jake Schaefer at the Hotel Pennsylvania on March 12-14. Playing for 300 points against Peterson, he easily ran up the total in five innings, averaging 60, while Peterson's total was 16.

Peterson	3	0	5	8	..	—16

Ninety-six innings were required in the amateur handicap three-cushion tournament game played at Thumis's Billiard Academy last night when A. Isaacs, a scratch man, defeated H. Brown, playing for 31, by a score of 35 to 27. Isaacs had the high run, a 3, while Brown's best cluster was a 2.

H. Van Tassel was the victor in the only game played last night in the New York State three-cushion amateur billiard championship at Cranfield's 145th Street Billiard Academy, defeating J. Van Gelder by a score of 35 to 27. The match lasted fifty-three innings and each man had a high run of 3.

In the continuation of play in the New York State three-cushion championship tournament Morgan Hughes defeated Martin Akerman at Cranfield's 181st Street Billiard Academy last night by a score of 35 to 26. Hughes had a high run of five while Akerman ran up a cluster of 4. The game lasted seventy innings.

TO INVADE WEST AGAIN.

Norwich Indoor Polo Team Will Make Long Trip.

NORTHFIELD, Vt., March 5.—The Norwich indoor polo team, the only college malletmen in the East to invade the Middle West last year, will play in that section again this year. Games are being arranged in Detroit, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Dayton and Buffalo, and there is a possibility that other cities along the route may be included.

Last year's trip is considered to be the longest ever made by any college polo team. This year the tour will be even more extensive. Definite dates have not been selected, but it is likely that the trip will be made the latter part of this month.

TO SEND WRESTLING TEAM.

Canadian Matmen as Well as Boxers to Meet Navy Next Year.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 5.—A picked team of wrestlers as well as boxers will be sent to the Naval Academy to represent the Canadian colleges next year. The arrangement was made during the visit of the Canadian boxers to the Academy last Friday and Saturday. The combined boxing team has been sent here for two seasons.

The Naval Academy has defeated the combined boxing teams in both contests in the last two years.

American Stars Again Score In Oxford University Games

OXFORD, England, March 5 (Associated Press).—The American athletes gave another fine performance today in the concluding section of the Oxford University sports, held preliminary to the Oxford-Cambridge meet. T. Huhn of Princeton and University College won the 120-yard hurdles in 15 3-5 seconds, which equals the Oxford record, and also the running broad jump, with 22 feet 4 inches, which is the best record for some years. W. E. Stevenson, of Princeton and Balliol won the quarter-mile easily by six yards in 51 2-5 seconds. The Americans took the first three places in the pole vault. W. R. Michener of Alberta University won the event with 10 feet 8 inches; E. M. Dunbar of Worcester, second, with 10 feet, and A. K. Davis, University of Virginia, third, with 9 feet 9 inches.

PEROY CAPTURES FENCING LAURELS

Rene Peroy of the Fencers' Club and holder of the national foils and sabre championships, added the national individual three-weapon title to his laurels last night at the New York Athletic Club by defeating his teammate, Herbert Van Buskirk, in the finals of the foils, after having captured the honors in the epee final from Van Buskirk earlier in the evening. The scores of these matches were 5 to 2 and 1 to 0 respectively.

Twelve men were entered in the tournament, all from local fencing organizations, and the winner was to be determined as the man who won the most bouts in two of three weapons, the foils, epee and sabre. Lots were drawn for the first pairs of opponents in each weapon and the winners of these bouts were pitted against each other until a final was reached. Peroy had little trouble in reaching the top of the ladder in each division, although there were several bouts unplayed in the sabre after it became certain that Peroy would be the victor in the other two divisions.

Peroy won all four of his bouts in the foils in easy fashion with the exception of the match with Dennis Bencoe, which the champion finally won by a score of 5 touches to 4. In the epee Peroy again defeated his teammate H. Van Buskirk in the finals with the customary one touch. In his match with Paul Bencoe in this weapon he was tied, both men having touched at the same time. In the sabre Peroy captured both of the matches that he entered, but the latter two were called off as the championship had already been decided by his victories in the other two weapons.

Those competing and their clubs were L. M. Schoonmaker, H. Van Buskirk, A. P. Walker Jr., and Rene Peroy of the Fencers' Club, Herbert Tweyffort and Arthur Muray of the J. Sanford Saltus Fencing Club, C. C. Shears, L. H. Weld, Denis Bencoe and Paul Bencoe of the New York Athletic Club, and Nicholas Muray and Peter Mijer of the Washington Square Fencers' Club.

SCHAEFER SUBMITS NAMES FOR REFEREE

Will Meet Hoppe Today to Settle Dispute Over Selection of Levis as Arbiter.

A meeting of the players and C. P. Miller, Vice President of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, will be held at the company's offices in this city this afternoon at 3 o'clock to straighten out the tangle that has developed over the selection of J. Herbert Levis as referee for the Willie Hoppe-Jake Schaefer match for the world's professional 18.2 balkline billiard championship, to be held at the Hotel Pennsylvania beginning next Monday night and continuing through March 14.

Schaefer filed a formal protest against Levis on Saturday afternoon, and yesterday he submitted a list of names of men who would be acceptable to him. He suggested George Moore, former national three-cushion champion; Murray Milen and T. Henry Clarkson of the Amateur Billiard Club of New York; Harry Cline of Philadelphia, and Morris Brown, former national amateur champion.

When confronted with the list and be acceptable to him, Hoppe smilingly declined to commit himself, saying, "I will not discuss the matter until the meeting." Hoppe's attitude, however, gave the impression that he was not overenthusiastic regarding the list. The champion is perfectly satisfied with Levis, and it is not beyond the bounds of possibility that he will insist upon the Chicagoan officiating.

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, which donated the medal emblematic of the championship, has the right, under the deed of gift, to name the referee, but, as C. P. Miller explained, the company is anxious to satisfy both players in this connection, and if they agree to a change it will be effected. On the other hand, if the players are unable to agree upon a choice the company will exercise its prerogative and name the official.

JOE MOORE TAKES MET. SKATING TITLE

In the first of the series of indoor skating meets to determine the Metropolitan champions at the 181st Street Ice Palace last night one title changed hands while another champion successfully defended her title. Joe Moore, of the 181st Street Ice Palace, captured the three-quarter mile metropolitan championship in easy fashion, Samuel Goldberg, the former champion, finishing a poor second. In the 220-yard women's title event Elsie Muller, 181st Street Ice Palace, had little trouble in retaining her title.

Two heats in the 440-yard championship, which will be decided next Monday night, were run off and the first three men in the first heat which made the best time and the first two in the second heat were selected to compete in the finals. Paul Forsman of the Iceland team was the victor in the first, while Samuel Goldberg, Tremont Skating Club, captured the second. The other men to qualify were: Joe Moore, 181st Street Ice Palace; Bobby Hearn, Melrose A. A., and William Murphy, 181st Street Ice Palace.

In the three-quarter-mile race Moore jumped into the lead at the fourth lap from the end, after allowing the rest of the pack to set the pace for the greater part of the route. Goldberg made a game show at defending his title, but was no match for Moore, who gradually drew away from him and was leading at the finish by ten yards. Forsman nipped Will Murphy at the tape for third place, finishing close behind Goldberg.

Miss Elsie Muller had the woman's event from the start and maintained a fairly comfortable lead throughout, to win by seven yards. Miss Hattie Dear, the woman's outdoor champion, who was scheduled to start, was taken sick and announced that she would be out of the rest of the competition.

Last night's races were the first of a series of weekly meets, the last of which will be conducted next week, 12 days' game. The metropolitan individual indoor champion. The titleholder will be judged on the point system, with 50 points to the winner of each event in this week's and next week's races, 30, 20 and 10 points to those who finish second and third respectively.

BOWLING LEAD UNCHANGED.

Score of 1,182 in Doubles Is Best in State Tourney.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 5.—Ten leaders in each event of the New York State championship bowling tournament stood up against an attack by Rochester, Cortland, Seneca Falls, Hornell, Olean, Newark and local bowlers today without a change in the standing for the first time since the opening of the tournament.

A score of 1,182 pins by F. Seward and G. Ferduyan of Rochester was the high mark of the day in the doubles, and a 640 set by James Welcher of Newark was the best in the singles. A 2,563 by the Schwartz brothers of this city was the best five-man score.

LONDON, March 5.—An international soccer match here today between England and Wales ended in a draw, the score being 1 to 2.

ESCAPING A BAD APPOINTMENT.

After the failure of the Senate to confirm the nomination of Mr. JAMES G. MCNARY of Texas and New Mexico as Controller of the Currency, President HARDING offered him a recess appointment to that office. But Mr. MCNARY had the good sense to decline it. He doubtless was fully aware, even if the President was not, that he could not be confirmed by the next Senate. Consequently his tenure of the office, if he accepted it, would have been "a fleeting and precarious luxury." It has been reported that the facts were laid before President HARDING by members of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency, with the request that the nomination be withdrawn. This Mr. HARDING refused to do, though he must have failed to take in the significance of the charges brought to his attention. In giving them to the public Senator COUZENS of Michigan has done what was doubtless to him a disagreeable duty, but what is unmistakably a public service. He must have been prepared for Mr. MCNARY's denials yesterday afternoon and for meeting the issue of personal veracity raised by the banker.

It is urged in excuse for Mr. MCNARY that he was "a frontier banker," and as such had to indulge in practices which would be thought highly irregular in settled communities. But it appears that as President of a bank he was not simply on the frontier, but well over the border of banking customs and laws. To have been, as he often was, the chief borrower from his own bank; to have speculated with its funds; to have allowed companies in which he was personally interested to overdraw their accounts with his bank in large amounts—these things certainly do not make up the sort of credentials which should be demanded in the case of the Controller of the Currency, who has official oversight of the soundness of the banking methods of more than 8,000 banks.

It is charitable to believe that President HARDING was imposed upon in this case, the guilty man being indicated again as Secretary FALL. However this may be, the nomination of Mr. MCNARY was indefensible, and the country is lucky to have escaped his appointment to an office where, it is now plain, he would have been ludicrously out of place.

OLD FAMILIAR FACES.

By choice or compulsion an unusual number of trusty and well-beloved ancients of the Sixty-seventh Congress won't ornament the Sixty-eighth. "JOE" FORDNEY, whose name goes thundering down the ages with that of Senator MCCUMBER, joint titular author of the immortal Tariff law, made in "the worst of times" for tariff-making, goes back to Saginaw. He has been in the House nearly a quarter of a century. He loves the trackless woods for their lumber; the lumber for the nuties stuck on it. He is going to raise blooded cattle on his Wolverine farm. That is a much more pleasant and useful occupation than raising tariff rates. Health to him and his comate, Mr. MCCUMBER, that sturdy little brother of the bonus!

Whom next of the departing shall we salute? KELLOGG of Minnesota and trust-busting, PAGE, the hearty Green Mountain octogenarian; HITCHCOCK of Nebraska and POMERENE of Ohio, two stout Democratic champions who may yet "come back;" CULBERSON, a clear-minded and high-minded Senator from Texas since 1899, whose health has not been equal to his talent; MYERS of Montana, a trained legal mind; TOWNSEND of Michigan and the railroads, a victim of "Newberryism"—but the procession grows too long. MILES POINDEXTER of Washington is not dead, but translated to Peru. HARRY NEW is translated likewise; though he, like our own CALDER, is no senior, but a freshman.

From the House disappear two commanding figures. FRANK MONDELL, floor leader in the last and in the preceding Congress. His first service was in the Fifty-fourth Congress and he served uninterruptedly from 1899 to 1923; a man of brains and force, a skilled parliamentary manager, whose calibre can't be judged fairly by the so largely ineffective and neurotic proceedings of the last two Congresses. Also goes PHILIP PITT CAMPBELL of Kansas and the omnipotent Rules Committee. The great loss of the House is, of course, Uncle JOE CANNON, who began to qualify as a veteran in the Forty-third Congress before "NICK" LONGWORTH was four years old, and has missed but one Congress since.

Good old "Czar," who has given and taken so many hard knocks in fifty years! He will dance a jig on his hundredth birthday. He has done the State long service. He has survived partisanship. He is an original, salient, national character. The Senate is poorer for the voluntary retirement of Mr. CANNON's old friend and foe, JOHN SHARP WILLIAMS—"JOHN SHARP," as Mr. CANNON and General GROSVENOR and JOHN DALZELL and all the Washington world and Mississippi loved to call him. He has been in one house or the other most of the last thirty years. For six of them he had the thorny post of leader of the Democratic minority—a tough herd to lead. According to "SAM" MCCALL of Massachusetts, "JOHN SHARP" was "the ablest catch-as-catch-can debater the House has had for fifty years;" and Senator SPOONER, a mighty competent judge, said substantially the same thing. His wit, his satire, his ample scholarship are as well known as the Capitol.

In the Senate, more and more, he has taken a perfectly independent position. He has talked and voted exactly as he felt and without any regard for consequences. In his political habit and attitude he seemed a revival of an eighteenth century or early nineteenth century type. He was frank and fearless. But he got sick of the show. He has gone back to his books and his plantation.

THE RUSSIAN OPPOSITION.

Mr. BASIL MAKLAKOFF, appointed by KERENSKY as Ambassador to Paris and since then one of the leaders of the Russian republican exiles opposed to Bolshevism, has just made a statement which is interpreted as implying a "significant shifting in the attitude of non-Bolshevist elements" and "the definite abandonment of "the hope of crushing Bolshevism "from without." He says that if certain things are done by the present rulers of Russia the opposition abroad—the opposition at home being either in jail or muzzled by the fear of jail—will forget the past and cooperate with the existing Government. This is the first frank admission by a prominent leader of the Cadet-Social Revolutionary bloc that the overturn of the Communist Government is not an essential to the reconstruction of Russia; but it is hard to regard it as highly important.

In reality "the hope of crushing Bolshevism from without" has been dead ever since General WRANGEL's army was driven out of the Crimea in November, 1920. The monarchists may still have their pretenders and their great imaginings, but that defeat ended the chances of the republican parties which, with greater or less enthusiasm, lent their support to KOLCHAK and WRANGEL. So MAKLAKOFF now lays down the conditions on which the opposition will bury the hatchet and collaborate with the Bolsheviki:

> When the Moscow Government renounces governing by the domination of the Communist Party alone, when it recognizes private property as the basis of the economic régime, recognizes the existence of the civil and political rights of all citizens, and guarantees the participation in government of representatives of other parties and other social classes, then reconstruction will be possible.

This is very much like saying that the Ku Klux Klan is willing to ally itself with the Roman hierarchy whenever the Pope turns Presbyterian. MAKLAKOFF'S list includes everything that the Communist oligarchs will never do and can never do so long as they live up to the extremely fanatical religion which they profess. The demand is for democracy and equality, something difficult to harmonize with the Communist doctrine that only true believers have any rights in the State. The Communist faith, if not hope, is that eventually the mass of Russians will become true believers. In the meantime Russia is governed by a Communist Party numbering some 410,000 at the latest census, a highly disciplined body of fanatics. Admission to it is conditioned on a long and arduous probation, and every now and then it is "purified" by the expulsion of the more lukewarm members. Mr. LOUIS FISCHER, writing in The Evening Post on its present organization, says that while membership in the party brings numerous political and economic advantages, so that it is eagerly sought, the terms are so severe that it is almost impossible for a Communist for revenue only to hold his job.

What prospect is there that this close oligarchy of religious zealots will surrender its hold on the machinery of government? MAKLAKOFF no doubt thinks he is making a considerable concession when he says that "the Soviet institution as a local authority can continue," and "the "Soviet system under which the central power would be a congress of "the representatives of local Soviets "probably will go on for a considerable time." This means the abandonment of the demand for a Constituent Assembly like the one dispersed by Communist bayonets at the end of 1917. Yet MAKLAKOFF contends that the Soviet representative system can be continued only if "modified by the inauguration of a "new method of elections, guaranteed by liberty and equality in suffrage." Also the participation of all parties and social classes. This last is a negation of the whole Soviet system.

The other condition—free elections and equal suffrage—would imply giving up the methods by which the Communists "make the elections." Without them, even under the highly gerrymandered representation in the Soviet Congress, they would probably be unable to maintain their hold. They introduced the Soviet system, in place of the parliamentary, because it was a good talking point in 1917 and was easier to control; but the control by the Communist Party is the thing; the system, Soviet or parliamentary, is secondary. What MAKLAKOFF demands, under one form or another, is democracy. It is the last thing the Russian opposition will get. One of the political curiosities of our time is this spectacle of a Russian democrat trying to defend the Soviet form of government against the oligarchy which miscalls itself the Soviet Republic and governs by secret police and machine guns.

THE CITY.

It is significant that the place of eternal happiness toward which people have looked is not an idyllic country abode but a city—a celestial place "of many mansions" or, as one has translated it, "of many tenements." Even in terrestrial life, people seem to be driven toward urban life by what BRAND WHITLOCK has called a "divine if obscure instinct." Some cities have sprung up on hillside, shore and plain, blossomed for a time, drooped, withered, died and slept in their own dust, or climbed again from the ruins of their own walls and towers, but the generic city persists and grows more populous. The problem is to make the cities in which men congregated, at first for defense, then for comfort or social intercourse or material advantage, as healthful, convenient and beautiful places as man's art, engineering skill and mechanical ingenuity can plan, build, furnish and adorn.

That New York City needs to give more serious attention to this problem, especially on the aesthetic side, a walk through the city at this season suggests. The problem was approached by Commissioner GALLATIN, in an address on Saturday last. It is being further considered by the Committee on Plan of New York and Its Environs, whose initial report has just been made public. It begins with a survey of existing conditions in an area of 5,533 square miles; the distribution of population therein; facilities for movement by public or private conveyance, and for the delivering of food supplies; commercial, industrial, educational, social and living conditions; and parks and recreation provision. This study is made with a view to answering the question, "Why is New York?" and so to helping this great metropolitan community deliberately to exercise control over what New York is physically to become.

Commissioner GALLATIN dwelt upon the importance of getting all classes interested in the beautifying of the city. He put broad avenues and open spaces first, not for their traffic uses but for their aesthetic effects. The multitude must have breathing spaces, but it is hard to make them and keep them. "How bitter is the struggle," he said, "to keep even our Central Park from encroachments." We ought not to contract these spaces which bring the country into the midst of the city. They should be multiplied and tied together. His suggestion of adding the islands in the East River to our park system is one that must eventually be carried out. And there are spaces in outlying boroughs that ought to be taken over by the city while they can be had for but a fraction of what they will cost when the necessity comes to take them, as, for example, a tract in Queens as large as Central Park. The lower end of Manhattan has some of the most thickly congested spots in the world, but one who tries to make one's way around the island will find a wood at the upper end threaded by a trail. There is the "fierce beauty of the skyscrapers" at one end of the island, but there is also the quiet beauty of the trees at the other. Between the two stretch waterfronts that have possibilities of development for general social and recreational use beyond almost any other city in the world, not excepting Budapest, to which the Commissioner referred.

Even in the occupied areas, a co-operation on the part of architects and a little consideration for the public taste would add greatly to the beauty of the city without expense, and, as Mr. HOPPIN suggests, a little floral adornment in front of each house would change the atmosphere of a whole street. Moreover, in projecting new streets through built-up sections, expense might be spared and their attractiveness enhanced by making them winding streets, even if this slowed down traffic a bit. After all, mobility should not be the sole consideration in making a street along which people are to live and work as well as to travel. Just now, with the Spring coming on, the best thing that can be done to make the city approach what the Commissioner visions is to clean up the parks and the streets, especially the by-streets.

THE STANDARD OIL CHARGES.

Officials of the various Standard Oil companies are well advised to give prompt attention to the charges contained in Senator LA FOLLETTE'S report of the special investigation by the Senate Committee on Manufactures. It will not do to attempt to pass the matter off as simply one more reckless blast from the Wisconsin Senator. He may be accused of prejudice—even of a personal animus; but the fact to be reckoned with is that he has got his report before the country. It will have to be taken up in detail and answered point by point. His arraignment may be unfair and misleading, but the duty of those whom he attacks is to show conclusively that it is so.

That he is not incapable of pushing his zeal beyond the evidence which he has got is shown in one passage of his report, where he asserts that despite the decree of the Supreme Court forbidding even an "implied" agreement to fix prices or restrain trade, the facts "tend" to show the existence of such an agreement; and where he expresses his belief that a more complete investigation "will reveal additional evidence tending to "support such a charge." This lets in light upon what in Senator LA FOLLETTE'S mind constitutes legal proof. On this point the President of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey lost no time in declaring that the findings of the La Follette committee were "wholly without foundation in truth and without support "in the record."

More of this kind of follow-up work should be done. Where the report makes allegations, the persons involved should produce facts. Senator LA FOLLETTE'S main charges fall into a few groups. They relate to violations of the law, to disregard of the decision of the Supreme Court, to monopolistic control of the whole oil industry, to the earning of excessive profits through excessive prices exacted from the public. All these assertions are capable of disproof, if they are false or wildly exaggerated. It will doubtless be a difficult process to attempt to overtake the La Follette report, which has got so good a start in the newspapers which have freely published it, and to correct its errors one by one. But it is a duty which the Standard Oil people owe to themselves and to the general public.

MONEY MARKET RATIONALE.

The Federal Reserve Board's report for March is most optimistic. Rarely has an outlook been more flattering in any country. The board has nothing to say about the security markets. It confines itself to supply and demand for basic goods. Finding the demand better than the supply, it simply says so, and lends its authority to encouragement of production and distribution, just as it issued its warning when supply was exceeding demand. It is all the same to practical bankers whether prices are rising or falling. As the Governor of this Federal Reserve district testified when the system was under attack: "We contend that prices regulate "themselves, that our job is the regu-"lation of credits."

It is not to be supposed that the lid is now to be taken off the credit market. There is no general invitation to all borrowers to help themselves simply because the potential credits are huge beyond anything in world experience. At one of the last meetings before the then Federal Reserve Governor retired there was discussed a formula for the regulation of rediscounts when the gold reserves were abnormal. There was a difference of opinion whether under such conditions the state of trade should not be the standard for rediscounts. The other day there came from Boston an increase of rate on a strong and improving reserve situation. The explanation seems to be that the board was thinking more of the interstate movement of gold than the international movement. It was desirable that there should be an internal redistribution of credits, a reduction where the unwanted funds had congested and were slipping into speculation, and an increase in the districts where the demand for funds for productive uses was rising.

Secretary HOOVER and others have predicted that an international redistribution is impending. The just-issued analysis of our foreign trade for November shows that we are increasing our imports in all groups. Textiles increased by nearly half to $81,462,000. Silk imports increased from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000, or more than half. Foreigners are bidding for our gold with goods. They will take our goods in payment if the prices of our goods are cheaper than the price of our gold. That depends on which we prefer to keep.

"THE MEN OF '92."

Tonight the Mural Painters give a dinner in celebration of The Men of '92—the group of painters who were concerned, a young aspiring band, with mural decoration at the time of organizing the World's Fair. Although other works by them still exist, what they did for the White City at Chicago, though evanescent by the nature of the occasion, is most enduring in effect. The White City vanished with the close of the World's Fair like a Cinderella fleeing from the stroke of midnight. But, like her, it left its shining slipper—a quickened taste for beauty in the public mind.

The mural decorations in America following this period would seem, could they be gathered within the boundaries of one State, an amazingly important contribution to our monumental art. Court houses, State capitols, libraries, railway stations, hotels, theatres, churches, museums, have yielded their walls to art of widely varying merit. The Men of '92 are still pre-eminent in their field. Among their leaders, EDWIN E. BLASHFIELD has flung their banner furthest and made their influence most widely felt. His mural paintings are held together, from the earliest to the latest, by a strong unity of aim and method. His friends the painters will find many happy and true things to say to him and about him tonight. They know, as the rest of the public cannot, how much of a life's labor has gone to the perfecting of a technical equipment that shall carry its message honestly into the future, betraying to no later critic a scamped effort of preparation. They know also the adequacy of the intellectual experience entering into the conception of the work, and serving America in a way to help carry her through her present hour of unbridled "self-expression."

There is, however, another quality in Mr. BLASHFIELD'S decorations that is altogether for the public: the mental attitude toward his country that makes his writing on her walls a glowing prophecy of greatness. Whether he addresses himself to farmers of Wisconsin or lawyers of Baltimore or lawmakers of Minnesota, he shows them their America in terms of beauty. Her pioneers appear as the men and women of the time, but moving Westward in an atmosphere irradiated by patriotic fervor. The painter has seen the great procession in relation to his country's increase. The heroes he celebrates are the heroes she has bred, but, to use his own words, "removed by their generalization into something more "beautiful, more robust, more simple "than is the daily habit of humanity."

It has seemed to his consistent spirit better worth while to paint the proud history of America than those other proud histories of Greece and Rome. He might do no more than cry, with LOWELL, "O, Beautiful My Country!" and still be a patriot; but he does much more. He makes that beauty visible. The generations following may look at his portraits of America and rejoice that their Mother was so fair in her youth. If idealism has not died in them, they even may resolve more wisely and finely because of that fair symbolic presence.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

His Argument Lacks All Weight.

It would be almost impossible to condemn with sufficient severity the reply made by M. THEUNIS, the Premier of Belgium, when he was asked what he had to say about the charge that in the part of Germany now occupied by the Belgian Army the inhabitants have been treated harshly.

Did he disprove or even deny this terrible accusation? Not at all! Instead he raked up from memory and history what the Germans did to the Belgians when the former were invaders and the latter invaded—700 civilians, including 73 women and 39 children, shot one afternoon at Dinan, 600 shot at Tamines, 243 at Louvain, at Ardenne 300, at Arschot 150, at Ethe 350, including 30 mothers of families and 20 children, at Tintigenes 128, at Rossignol 112. He was even unfeeling enough to recall the fact that at present the Belgian Government is supporting, besides 9,700 children of Belgian soldiers killed in battle, 8,900 children of Belgian civilians put to death by the Germans, in most cases for evading or resisting the orders of Germans.

What did M. THEUNIS think to prove by this—that the Belgian Army is under no obligation to treat Germans with kindness and respect? He forgot that what Germans do is one thing and what others do is very different, even when it is the same thing.

In his more thoughtful moments M. THEUNIS must realize the irrelevance of his reminiscences to the present situation in the Ruhr. There it is Germans who are seriously inconvenienced, and it is a comparison of incomparables to bring up in explanation of Belgian and French actions now what the Germans did in Belgium and France from 1914 on to 1918. Not thus can the cruelty of making Germans salute the invading officers be palliated or interference with German business be made anything except the work of fiends.

Not Wholly Dependent on Gasoline.

Before, and some time before, the price of gasoline goes to the $1 prophesied by Senator LA FOLLETTE'S committee, most operators of mechanically driven vehicles will have resorted to the use of one or another of the several available substitutes. None of them is likely to be either quite as efficient or quite as convenient as gasoline, but any of them will do for lack of better, and it is more than possible that under the urge of an insistent demand the inventors will devise means for removing, if not all the faults of the other fuels, at least enough of them much to improve their present utility.

Already not a few cars are run by alcohol, and it can be done economically in places such as Hawaii, where there is a cheap source of alcohol supply. Kerosene, too, can be used, even in internal combustion engines constructed in accordance with its gentler and slower nature, and as a heater for cars propelled by steam, as a good many were in the earlier automobile days. Kerosene is a fuel about as good as could be desired.

Then there is electricity, of course, its worth as a power producer a matter of daily proof by many heavy cars and more than a few light ones. So long as there is coal, and after that so long as there is water running down hill, the automobilist will be able to get electricity, and while at present he will not have it except for short runs and special uses, he would not have to stay at home even though he could get nothing else.

He Was Funny Without Intending It.

Somebody in the Shipping Board's Bureau of Research must be lacking in the sense of humor. If that were not the case, its just issued report would not have added to the reproachful declaration that American ship owners have given up as hopeless the attempt to do business on the high seas, the further statement that now they are turning in larger numbers to traffic in our coastal waters, "where the basis of operation cost is equal and the opportunity is presented of making a profit through increased efficiency in fair competition."

Almost anybody not a subsidy-hunter would be unable to say that seriously—would see that it was funny to talk about fair "competition" where all competition, or at least all competition by foreigners, had been excluded.

That our ships cannot be operated as cheaply as are those of nations less interested than ours in the way sailors are quartered, fed and paid is lamentable from some points of view, but from others it is a fact to be contemplated with equanimity or even with pride.

Their Activity Belated But Commendable.

Following the very human fashion of waiting to take action until after the need of it has been demonstrated by a great disaster or a bad accident, the Philadelphia police have begun a really energetic attempt to enforce the automobile laws of the State in the matter of automobile licenses. It was Friday's killing of two women and a man at once by a particularly reckless driver that prompted the doing of what should have been done long ago, and in a single day several hundred motorists were caught doing one thing or another that was illegal.

Especial attention, naturally, was paid to the drivers who ignored the law as to the passing of stopped street cars.

That is an offense by no means confined to Philadelphia or Pennsylvania; it is done many, many times every day here in New York City, and even oftener out in the suburbs. Of course not all automobilists, or even a majority of them, are guilty of this outrageous indifference to the lives of other people, but enough of them are to add materially to the total of highway dangers and of highway fatalities.

The men who do it are those in whom the possession of an automobile creates a sense of superiority to everybody not thus privileged. It is an irritable sense, well flavored with contempt and a feeling that the pedestrian has no rights except that of getting out of the way if he doesn't want to be run down. These motorists are they who sound their horns so insolently when they are usurping privileges that belong only to people on foot—who snarl at them when they narrowly escape death or injury.

South's Industrial Boom.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent issue of your paper there was a splendid article with reference to the South's great industrial boom in which reference was made to the 1,146 textile plants in the South; to the fact that High Point, North Carolina, is the second greatest furniture manufacturing city in the country, and that 50 per cent. of the country's iron resources are in Alabama.

This city, which is a distributing point for five lines of the Alabama Power Company's development, is also interested in the statement that 2,300,000 horsepower has been developed from the streams of Alabama, but Anniston felt slighted in view of the fact that no reference was made in this article to the stupendous pipe industry which has been developed here. The fact is that Anniston is manufacturing more soil and cast iron pipe than any other city in the world. Only last month, for instance, 1,200 solid car loads of cast iron pipe and fittings were shipped out of this city, this being an increase of 40 per cent. over January last year. During the same month forty solid car loads, or approximately 800,000 pounds, of finished textile products were shipped out of Anniston. As a further indication of the fact that your article on the industrial growth of the South is timely and correct, the Federal Phosphorus Company of this city shipped eighty car loads of ferro-phosphorous and phosphoric acid from its local plant, and an article was carried today in The Anniston Star, the local daily paper, stating that this plant has just perfected the manufacture of calcium arsenate from arseno-pyrites ore that is found in the Anniston mining district.

Thanking you in advance for publishing this letter in your public opinion column, I am,

Blow hard, March Wind,
Fling yourself high;
Shipwreck the white clouds that sail in the sky.
Scatter them, shatter them, tatter their wings,
Break them, forsake them, they're only playthings.

Pull at the kite;

Bend low the trees;
Start their pulse beating and call forth the leaves.
Shake them, awake them from out their long sleep,

All day, all night;
Carelessly, restlessly, ceaselessly blow,

Blow hard, Life Wind,
Heedless your aim;
Scatter ships, shatter ships, on Time's rough wave;
Care not to spare one and care not to save.

WHERE TREES ARE NEEDED.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Commissioner Gallatin's noble project for the city beautiful, his testimony to the appreciation and love of green growing things by plain folk, his recognition of the need of these for the tired city worker would have met with unqualified pleasure and satisfaction were it not for the unfortunate neglected reality of the "Schiff Parkway."

The most frequented road in the city, probably traveled by more workers than any area of equal length in the world, is the Delancey Street approach to the Williamsburg Bridge. Struggles there were to keep the broad avenue from the "L" encumbrance! Many people must recall the efforts that were finally rewarded with success so that the people coming and going to work from Brooklyn and the east side would have at least one broad highway. THE TIMES, with its honored tradition of joining in battles to secure and hold such park space as the city vouchsafes, encouraged and aided at the time. Later the narrow strip of ground was named "Schiff Parkway" as a memorial tribute to a distinguished and generous citizen, Jacob H. Schiff.

But behold the "Parkway"!

Hundreds of thousands of people daily walk or drive past a hideous travesty of a park. The soil could not be distinguished from asphalt, so hard and untended is it. A few sad-looking trees, despite the unfavorable conditions, continue to live where they have been protected by fences. Commissioner Gallatin has, it is doubtless true, planted trees that were immediately destroyed, but where would trees planted on a thoroughfare without protection of any kind have been safe? I sympathize greatly with the Commissioner's lofty purposes, and my colleagues and I subscribe heartily to every project he may inaugurate for beautifying Central Park, Riverside Drive and the entire park system. Surely New York cries out for public recognition of the city's starved parks, but before these splendid plans are started may be petition (a) that soil be brought to the little strip of parkway which is all we have in this neighborhood; (b) that trees be planted generously, to give comfort and refreshment to the multitudes who would sit under their shade and who would rejoice in going and coming in the morning and evening of their workdays; (c) that when the soil has been brought and the trees have been planted, the usual protection of guards and fences surround the trees; and, finally (d), when all these have been done, that the part time of a park attendant be assigned to this little open space, that care be assured, without which neither trees nor fence nor soil would avail.

A NEEDLESS SHOCK.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

According to THE NEW YORK TIMES of Feb. 25, "one of the things that produce the greatest indignation," at a meeting held for the suppression of indecent books, "was a newspaper clipping which Justice Ford drew from his pocket. This said that the seniors of the College of the City of New York had voted the 'Decameron' their favorite classic and 'Jurgen' their most esteemed modern work."

As a member of the senior class of City College I can throw some light upon the circumstances under which the "preference" for these books was expressed.

The Microcosm, the college annual, recently sent out a questionnaire to the members of the graduating class largely for the purpose of getting amusing "information" concerning the class. As indicated by the following queries, the questionnaire was intended to be facetious:

"What did you drink before prohibition?"

"What did you drink after prohibition?"

"Which do you prefer, blonds or brunettes?"

"Have you ever kissed a girl?"

"Do you object to petting?"

Shall the majority of students in the graduating class be placed under Federal surveillance for answering that before the passage of the Volstead act their favorite beverages were water and tea, whereas now they indulge in beer and whisky?

The answers to the questions regarding preference of books throws just as much light upon the morals of the students as their answers to the question regarding prohibition.

As a matter of fact, the voting on book preference was so scattered that although the "Decameron" was given the vote by less than 20 per cent. of the students and "Jurgen" by less than 10 per cent., the vote was nevertheless sufficient to bring these books to the front. As one who is acquainted with many members of the class, I would venture to state that it is highly probable that less than twenty students have read both of these books.

I shall not attempt to discuss whether the students should or should not have indulged in the type of humor evoked by the questionnaire.

I am confident that Justice Ford's criticism would not have been leveled at the students had he been aware that their answers were given in a spirit of facetiousness.

Not "to Save Their Skins," Anyway

Ambassador Harvey in his speech to the Pilgrims, as recorded in this morning's TIMES, says: "Probably 90 per cent. of the 60,000,000 who purchased bonds were descended from the people of the United Kingdom." The subscriber, who was a volunteer worker on all the loan drives, found that general desire existed on the part of all to participate in the purchase of bonds. This condition, to my knowledge, existed in this city and the outlying cities and towns which apparently contained a much greater percentage of descendants of people of other countries than England and Scotland.

They all purchased, not asking why, nor "to save their skins," but from motives of patriotism. Further, the larger portion of the various issues was purchased through this Federal Reserve district. How does he arrive at his many conclusions?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Passing the New York Public Library today on the Forty-second Street side, I noticed volumes of the blackest kind of smoke issuing from below the sidewalk, enveloping visitors as they went up and down the improvised stairway, blowing into the windows of the library and blotting from view most of the Forty-second Street side of the building. Evidently soft coal is being used to operate the machinery necessary for the subway construction work being done at this point. It seems a pity that the stone work of the library should be ruined in appearance, as it inevitably must be, if the practice is continued. I wonder if something cannot be done to stop the use of soft coal in this instance.

BURDEN OF $10 VISAS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The practice of the American Government in charging $10 for a passport visa is working a grave hardship on hundreds of American students in Europe. To see if something could not be done to relieve the situation, at a recent meeting of the Oxford University American Club a committee was appointed. It is as Chairman of that committee that I now venture to call your attention as briefly as I can to this matter.

Briefly, the problem is this. There are approximately 250 American students in Oxford. In addition, there are numbers in many other European universities, so that the total number of American students in Europe is, we believe, well over 1,000. Under the present system, as of course you are well aware, Americans are compelled to pay $10 for a visa for almost every European country they wish to stop in for even one day. On the average, every American student here finds it necessary to buy at least five visas a year. That means that every one of these more than 1,000 students in Europe pays on the average $50 a year to the Governments of Europe for visas alone. I need hardly add that most of these students find this burden a very heavy one indeed. Not a few find it quite impossible.

One need not look far for the cause of this problem. It is common knowledge that (1) no country charged more than nominal sums for visas until America began the practice by charging foreigners wishing to come to America $10 each for visas; (2) America at the present time is practically the only country whose citizens are charged by European Governments more than nominal sums for visas. The practice is purely a retaliatory measure directed against the American law; it had its origin in, and owes its continued existence to, retaliation.

What, then, can be done? In our humble opinion, the best solution would be to induce the Government to reduce the price for visas for all foreigners to a nominal sum. The purpose of the Ten-Dollar Visa act was to control immigration. In that it has failed, and been superseded by the percentage law. We therefore believe that the continued existence of the former act is not only useless, but a dangerous source of irritation. But at the same time, although the Government might not be willing to reduce the price for all foreigners, they still might be willing to reduce it for foreign students. That alone, we believe, would be sufficient to solve the problem for the American students abroad. Perhaps the opulence of the tourists prevents the practice bothering them.

Our reasons for believing that the reduction of student visas alone would be sufficient are, in part, as follows: Experience has proved that whatever reform is granted by the American Government will be readily granted in return by foreign Governments. For instance (1), when somewhat over a year ago the United States granted $1 transit visas for continuous voyages across America, the countries of Europe responded at once and granted the same to American citizens. (2) American students have frequently asked for foreign consulates for reduced or free student visas. In many instances they have been told to go to the nearest American Consul and get letters asking for such favors. At first the American consuls were inclined to grant these letters. They were always effective. But the American consuls very soon discovered that the foreign consuls would send an equal number of their nationals to them for return favors. These could not be granted under existing orders. Hence the American consuls have had to discontinue granting these letters. But this only shows that if these orders were only changed so as to allow the American consuls to grant reduced student visas, the problem of the American students would be solved.

We cannot in any view of the matter see how the granting of free or reduced visas to foreign students could occasion any inconvenience to our Government. The loss of revenue would not be noticeable. Indeed, there would be a gain to the country, for as it now is every American student in Europe spends an average of $50 a year, as compared with $10 a year paid by every European student in America! The same ratio, of course, holds true of all other persons who go abroad.

We are not sure whether free or reduced visas could be granted to foreign students by the Department of State or whether it would have to be left to Congress, but we believe the former to be probably possible. In either case, we believe that if only enough pressure can be brought to bear on the Government from enough different places they will realize the extent and uselessness of the problem. With that realization they cannot fail to take the appropriate action, whether it be Executive or Congressional, to relieve it.

Censors of Morals.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your excellent editorial article in today's TIMES headed "Censoring Books Again," you say: "His theory that all of [illegible] objectionable is stated so baldly that it is amusing, yet it is the principle the vice society has worked for a long time." As. And this is also the principle on which the prohibitionists have worked for a long time. Their theory that all of us must be forbidden to drink beverages, that they find objectionable is stated baldly and it has been enacted in law.

The prohibitionists get away with it, so why should other reformers not take a whack at us?

The decision by a group of reformers that certain books are to be prohibited for the benefit of our morals is in no real sense different from the decision of another group of reformers that certain beverages are to be prohibited for the benefit of our morals.

The real animus behind these compulsory reformers is the same in practically all cases. It can be expressed thus: "You are not capable of making your own moral decisions, but we are capable of making them for you. If you do not accept our decisions willingly we will have them submitted to law and then jam them down your throat by force."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On the editorial page of a New York morning newspaper about a month ago appeared an article from a poetic soul in the New England States to the effect that a cricket had moved into his cellar for the Winter. I don't care to have my State (New Jersey) outdone by any Northeastern State for the mere matter of a cricket. Not only has a cricket moved into my cellar, but he chirps merrily each time I shovel coal into the furnace in an obvious effort to remind us that despite the cold and cold and the fact that most of coal, a beautiful vision is ahead when Mr. Cricket will be singing with his mates outdoors.

C. V. WHITNEY WEDS MISS NORTON ABROAD

PARIS, March 5 (Associated Press).—The civil marriage of Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney of New York, and Miss Marie Norton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sheridan S. Norton, also of New York, took place in the City Hall of the First Arrondissement of Paris today.

The ceremony was of the usual informality, the couple and their witnesses merely signing the book. The witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney and Miss Beulah Norton.

The religious ceremony took place this afternoon in the Church of the Holy Trinity, Dean Frederick W. Beekman officiating. Miss Frances Norton acted as maid of honor and Miss Barbara Whitney as bridesmaid. Harold Kingsland was an usher.

The bride's gown was of white tulle. She wore orange blossoms in her hair and a wedding veil. Her cloak was a splendid ermine mantle. The bridegroom wore the customary top hat and morning dress.

The bride was given away by her mother, and the bridegroom's father acted as best man. The wedding party was small, being restricted to members of the two families and about a score of guests. Invitation cards were rigidly exacted at the church door, the newspaper writers and photographers and motion picture camera men being forced to wait outside until the ceremony was over.

At the close the wedding party left quietly. The members of the families and a few friends attended a wedding breakfast at the Hotel Brighton, after which the bride and bridegroom slipped away to Versailles, although Mrs. Norton smilingly said when asked where they were: "Somewhere in Paris. They are lost in Paris. However, they are leaving for Venice tomorrow, I am sure."

The newly wedded pair do not expect to return to the United States for many months. It is thought that they will go to Egypt and thence make a tour around the world before their honeymoon is finished. Mrs. Norton and her daughter, Miss Frances, will go shortly to Monte Carlo and thence to Spain and other places in Europe.

Among those present at the church wedding and breakfast were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Prince Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fell, Count de Jumilhac, Mr. and Mrs. Pierpont Morgan Hamilton and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Crosby.

Among the wedding gifts was a complete set of family jewels, the gift of the bridegroom's father and Mrs. Whitney to the bride. The jewels consisted in part of a ruby and diamond necklace and a pearl and diamond pendant.

F. W. AYER, PIONEER IN ADVERTISING, DIES

LEADER IN BAPTIST CHURCH

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 5.—Francis Wayland Ayer, pioneer of the methods which have made advertising one of the greatest businesses in this country, died this afternoon at his country home, Ayrmont, Meridale Farms, Meredith, N. Y., in his seventy-fifth year. On the advice of his physician Mr. Ayer left his home in Camden, N. J., and went to Meridale. A cold developed into influenza and pneumonia followed. He died at 1:45 o'clock today. At his bedside were his wife and his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred W. Fry.

In recent years Mr. Ayer's activities have been devoted to philanthropic endeavor. He was a leader in State and national affairs of the Baptist Church, and held important State and national offices for the Young Men's Christian Association. Meridale Farms, where he died, have made history in the dairy business since he founded them several years ago. As a financier he was largely responsible for building up the Merchants' National Bank, until it was merged with the First National Bank of Philadelphia, which he served as Chairman of the Board of Directors.

Mr. Ayer, with his father, founded the advertising firm of N. W. Ayer & Son of Philadelphia in 1869. On the occasion of the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the beginning of his business ex-President Taft paid this tribute to Mr. Ayer: "We are honoring a man who has made advertising a science, and who has robbed it of its many evil tendencies, and who has the right to be proud of the record he has made."

Francis Wayland Ayer was born of pioneer New England stock, Feb. 4, 1848, at Lee, Mass., a son of Nathan Wheeler Ayer, a native of Preston, Conn. His father, who directed his son's early education, was a scholar and teacher. It was as a teacher in a New York State district that Mr. Ayer began his career. He spent a year in the Rochester University and then, in 1869, he joined his father in Philadelphia. He came into the advertising field as solicitor for advertisements for a number of religious weeklies. He said the first money he ever made in the advertising business was a profit of $50 on a $200 order for the National Baptist.

The thoroughness with which information was gathered by the firm led to the early creation of the American Newspaper Annual and Directory, now a standard conference book among newspaper proprietors and advertisers.

Mr. Ayer joined the North Baptist Church when he moved to Camden in 1869 and soon after became Superintendent of the Sunday school, a position he held to the time of his death. He was for many years President of the New Jersey State Convention of the Baptist Church, which under his leadership first employed a paid executive. Later Mr. Ayer was elected President of the Northern Baptist Convention, and furnished with his death active in its national plans and activities.

Mr. Ayer on May 5, 1875, married Miss Rhandena Gilman. There were two daughters of this marriage, Miss Alice Biddle Ayer, who was married to Hardin H. Wheat and who died in 1904, and Miss Anna Gilman Ayer, now Mrs. Wilfred W. Fry, who survives. Mrs. Ayer died on Oct. 3, 1914. On April 21, 1919, Mr. Ayer married Miss Martha K. Lawson.

$1,150,000 TAPESTRY MIXUP LAID TO CLERK

ONLY TECHNICAL BARRIER

Papers in England, Place of Purchase, Showed "Nominal Figure" as Price Paid.

An error by a clerk in London is responsible for the holding up of the six Rochefoucauld tapestries, purchased for $1,150,000 by John D. Rockefeller Jr., it was learned yesterday. It also was established that the Government will not admit the famous hangings until the technical barrier is cleared away by proof put forward by Mr. Rockefeller's agents.

The investigation into the matter will be conducted in Washington by officials of the Treasury Department and will be based in part on reports submitted by customs agents at New York and by the report of appraisal made by Frederick J. H. Kracke, United States Appraiser of Merchandise here. Appended to Appraiser Kracke's report were the findings of two experts on antiques who made a careful examination of the six pieces in the set.

In the course of the inquiry into the career of the vividly colored and skilfully woven "Hunt for the Unicorn" Federal agents will delve into the original importation of the tapestries, their exhibition at the Anderson Galleries and their sudden withdrawal to London, where, at a later date, they were acquired by agents for Mr. Rockefeller.

It was said yesterday on good authority, that the sale of the tapestries in London was handled by the English branch office of the Equitable Trust Company. The tapestries are now in the vaults of the trust company here. According to this authority, the price paid was $1,150,000 instead of $1,100,000, as previously reported.

After the negotiations had been consummated, the papers for the importation were made out by a clerk. The man who discussed the deal did not know whether this clerk was employed by the Equitable Trust Company. It was explained that this clerk, knowing that the tapestries as antiques of more than 100 years old would be admitted free of duty here, did not think it necessary to write in the actual sale price, and for this reason picked a "nominal figure. The sum he chose was $11,500, and he proceeded to write this in, without, of course, consulting Mr. Rockefeller's agents.

When the tapestries and the erroneously made out papers arrived here, there arose in the mind of the custom men a doubt whether tapestries, supposed to date from the middle fifteenth century could be genuine at $11,500 for six of them. They soon found that the price paid had been $1,500,000, and their examination of the tapestries themselves left no doubt of their authenticity.

In view of the free-duty clause of the law, the tapestries ordinarily would have been released at once, but the "blunder" of the London clerk had placed a technical barrier in their way, and the Government decided to hold the hangings. One Federal official predicted that attorneys for Mr. Rockefeller would speedily adjust the incorrect appraisal papers and thus free the tapestries.

Had the sale been consummated in this country the Government would have been entitled to $337,000 in taxes, but the statement that the trust company had handled the deal in London removes the Government's claim to taxes. It was not known here what attitude the British officials would take with regard to taxes which they might collect on the sale in London.

PAPAL GOLDEN ROSE FOR QUEEN OF SPAIN

Pius XI. Will Revive an Ancient Custom, Neglected by His Two Predecessors.

ROME, March 5 (Associated Press).—Pope Pius in May will revive one of the oldest customs of the Holy See, which fell into disuse more than twenty years ago, when he sends the golden rose to the Queen of Spain.

The golden rose, made up of a cluster of roses and buds on one stem, all of solid gold, in times gone by was given each year by the Pope to the queen who during the year had performed the most pious deeds for the church.

Neither Pius X. nor Benedict XV. sent the golden rose to any queen. The last time it was bestowed was by Leo XIII., who conferred it upon Queen Amelia of Portugal. Previously he had given it to the then Queen of Spain, Maria Christina.

Count Soderini was the last personage of the papal court appointed as the bearer of the golden rose, but he resigned this post when he was elected a member of the Italian Parliament. Recently he was appointed a Senator by Premier Mussolini. It is expected that Pope Pius will entrust the Marquis Sarchetti, his equerry, with the honor of taking the rose to the Queen of Spain. According to tradition, the pontiff will bless the rose next Sunday, the fourth Sunday in Lent.

Cork, Linseed Oil, Burlap— that's Linoleum

ARE you sure you know what linoleum is—this material which so many people have learned is good for floors? Linoleum is a combination of cork, oil, and burlap. It is a union of substances that blend together naturally to form a floor that, point by point, is superior to any kind of floor that man has devised. To appreciate the advantages of a linoleum floor, you must understand the qualities of the natural products from which linoleum is made.

What the cork gives

You have probably handled hundreds of ordinary cork stoppers, but have you ever really examined a piece of cork to study what its special properties are?

Cork is the outer bark of the cork oak. It is light. It will float in water. Cork is elastic. You can compress it and when released it will spring back to its original shape. Throw it on the floor and it will rebound.

After cork stoppers have been punched from strips of cork bark, the remainder of the cork strips is ground up and used in making linoleum

Cork is nonabsorbent and moisture-proof. You can use it to stop a full bottle; lay the bottle on its side for years and the cork will hold the contents. Cork resists decay. It is a good heat-insulator, which makes it warm to the touch, summer or winter.

Cork is tough. It does not scratch or abrade easily, nor will it scratch or mar other surfaces.

These are the qualities that cork gives to linoleum.

Linoleum gets its name from linseed oil, which is pressed from flaxseed. Linseed oil is the same oil used in paint, which, when exposed to air, turns to a tough, solid film of skin. This film is smooth and rubbery and practically waterproof. When mixed with powdered cork these two substances unite perfectly. The tough oil skin, combined with the cork, becomes remarkably durable. The daily tread of thousands of feet makes little impression upon it. Also, it can be printed with patterns or designs that do not fade; or it can be colored throughout its entire thickness with colors that are as permanent as the linoleum itself. This is what is known as inlaid linoleum.

You have seen the film that forms on an open can of paint. This is oxidized linseed oil

These are the qualities that linseed oil gives to linoleum.

What the burlap gives

This mixture of cork and oxidized linseed oil is not truly linoleum until it has been pressed or "keyed" into a fabric of tough, strong burlap. This burlap back provides a solid foundation and prevents tearing. There is no surer way to identify genuine linoleum than by this woven burlap back. The Armstrong trademark, a Circle "A," appears clearly on the back of all Armstrong's Linoleum. It is this sturdy, flexible, non-tearing quality that burlap gives to linoleum.

Burlap is made from jute which grows in the marshy districts of Bengal in India

Linoleum has every quality that a modern floor should have. The linoleum floor is smooth, resilient, and enduring. It is waterproof and the easiest of all floors to clean and keep clean. It can be kept looking new year after year by an occasional waxing and polishing. It is extremely quiet and, because cork is a nonconductor of heat, is never cold to the touch. The linoleum floor is comfortable, beautiful, sanitary, and yet inexpensive because it never requires costly refinishing. It does not splinter and does not absorb grease, dust, or stains.

That is the kind of floor linoleum offers to either the new or the old home.

Linoleum in interior decoration

The wealth of colors and patterns in which Armstrong's Linoleum is made has given architects and interior decorators an opportunity to suggest permanent linoleum floors that are artistically a part of the room itself. Well-chosen floors of linoleum blend with the color schemes of walls, furniture and draperies. Rugs are placed on these floors as on any permanent floor.

Armstrong's Linoleum is sold in good furniture and department stores in rich plain colors, beautiful two-tone Jaspé effects, parquetry inlaids, tile inlaids, carpet inlaids and pleasing printed designs. Estimates furnished by linoleum contractors or house furnishers will surprise you at the low cost of replacing worn wooden floors or installing Armstrong's Linoleum floors in a new home. The Armstrong Cork Company maintains a Bureau of Interior Decoration for the purpose of giving advice on this subject, without charge.

Laying linoleum for permanency

In summer wood floors expand. In winter they dry out and contract, with a tendency to open up the cracks between the boards. Your linoleum floor, therefore, should be cemented (not tacked) over a lining of builder's deadening felt which has been previously glued to the bare floor boards. The felt takes up expansion and contraction and gives you a permanent, waterproof, good-looking floor. The added service and wear this method gives are well worth the extra cost.

Write for free sample and booklet

Let us send you a sample of Armstrong's Linoleum and our 24-page booklet, "New Floors for Old." The booklet contains a score of colorplates of distinctive designs in Armstrong's Linoleum that you can see at good stores; also, information on laying linoleum and how to care for your linoleum floors.

Take the sample in your hands. Note how the cork mix is keyed to the burlap back. Feel how warm, resilient, yet tough and durable good linoleum is

PRICE MAY NOT GO UP AT ALL.

With Chairman Bedford, Teagle Attacks La Follette Report as Unfair and Political.

NO OIL TRUST, THEY SAY

J. D. Rockefeller Sr. Out of Standard Since 1920—Competition Rules Business.

Gasoline is no more likely to reach the figure of $1 a gallon in the near future than it is likely to reach the price of $10 a gallon, according to W. C. Teagle, President of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, who answered a series of questions which were put to him by reporters last night at his apartment in the Vanderbilt Hotel. With him was A. C. Bedford, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, who also answered questions and denied in detail the statements of the La Follette report.

"It is not likely that the price of gasoline will go up at all," Mr. Teagle said. "The statement that it would go up to a dollar is absurd. I do not mean any disrespect to a Government body, but this committee simply reached up into the air and brought down the figure of $1. They might just as well have brought down the figure of $5 or $10. They did not say $5 or $10, because they could see that it would have no effect on the public, because anybody could see that such a suggestion would be absurd.

"Alcohol and other substitutes can be produced at thirty cents a gallon and are being produced to compete with oil. Supply and demand fluctuate so in this business that no man can say exactly what will happen, but in all probability the price will not go up at all."

Mr. Teagle asserted that the La Follette report was inspired by politics. Discussing the provisions of the report that called for closer Government supervision and Washington bureaucratic control over the oil business ,he said:

"The idea seems to be to do to the oil business what has been done to the railroads."

Says Account Was Untrue.

Mr. Teagle asserted that the Senate Committee had failed to make an intelligent analysis of the growth of the oil business; that information which he had tendered the committee had been refused acceptance, and that the committee had been inspired by prejudice and politics to give an entirely untrue account of the present position of the oil industry.

He said that competition had grown fiercely and that, instead of having a monopoly today, the various Standard Oil companies did less than 45 per cent. of the oil business as against 75 per cent. done by them in 1911 when the decree of dissolution was put into effect. The Standard Oil group, he said, produced about 25 per cent. of the oil produced today by American companies; did 45 per cent. of the refining and nearly 50 per cent. of the marketing.

Mr. Teagle was first asked to comment on the charge that the Standard Oil Company was today as much of a trust as it was in 1911, when it was dissolved by order of the Supreme Court.

"That is an absolutely unfair statement," he said. "There is absolutely no co-operation in the management of any of the different Standard Oil companies. There were 6,000 stockholders at the time of the dissolution. There are 60,000 stockholders today. The stock is broadly scattered. There is no control exercised by a few men. The decree of the Supreme Court has been scrupulously observed. Let me call your attention to my statement on this subject to the Senate committee, which the committee refused to receive. On that point of control I said:

"'There has been much talk about the Standard Oil companies being owned by a "body of stockholders" exercising common control. There exists no form of common control to which the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) is subject, nor any supervision nor direction of its affairs other than that exercised by its own board. Prior to 1911 the stocks of all the companies were held together through their ownership by the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey), which prevented separate ownership from coming about through natural processes of disintegration. The decree, to do away with this condition, directed that the stocks of the subsidiary companies be distributed pro rata among the stockholders of the holding company. While, at the moment of distribution, all the companies had identical stock lists, these processes of disintegration began immediately to operate and have been operating ever since.

Rockefeller Sr. Out.

"'As illustrative of this, at the time of distribution the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) had 6,078 stockholders. Twelve of these held more than 1 per cent. each of the company's outstanding stock and a total of just over 50 per cent. of the entire stock. On Oct. 31, 1922, there were 11,013 holders of common stock and nearly 46,000 holders of preferred stock. As of June 30, 1922, only six shareholders held 1 per cent. or more of the company's common stock. These six shareholders own a total of 28.4 per cent. of the company's common stock. The largest individual owner of common stock is John D. Rockefeller Jr., with 11.4 per cent. Three of the remaining five common stockholders on the list, owning together 10 per cent. of the common stock, are philanthropic institutions.

"'It may be of interest to the committee to know that Mr. John D. Rockefeller Sr. has not been a shareholder in the company since 1920, and that the late Mr. William Rockefeller owned only 700 shares at the time of his death.

"'Furthermore, the company made effective about a year and a half ago a stock acquisition plan under which its employes are becoming stockholders. The number of subscribers under this plan is 11,339 and the number of shares of common stock already allotted to them is 44,634. Before the end of 1923 when this stock is issued in the names of the individual employes there will be added to the company's stock list on the basis of the position today, at least 12,000 to 15,000 common stockholders.'"

Although a percentage of the nation's oil business done by the Standard Oil Company has been cut nearly in half in the last ten or twelve years, the absolute value of the business of the various companies has increased 600 or 800 per cent., according to the figures of the two Standard Oil chiefs last night. Mr. Teagle, called the oil industry an eight-billion-dollar business. Mr. Bedford called it a ten-billion-dollar business. The Standard Oil share of nearly 45 per cent. would thus be three and a half or four billion dollars today.

About half of the questions were answered last night by President Teagle and the other half by Chairman Bedford. In a prepared statement Mr. Bedford arraigned the Senate committee.

A "Political Document."

"The report of the sub-committee of the Senate named to investigate the oil industry," he said, "is frankly a political document and will be used as such.

"Its conclusions are such as no competent tribunal nor fair-minded individual would draw from the evidence, and no evidence was welcomed by the sub-committee but that which would tend to uphold a preconceived bias. The report ignores the patent facts of the petroleum situation in this country in order to perpetuate a prejudice and as a service to the public it is valueless.

"The prediction that the country must be prepared before long to pay at least a dollar a gallon for gasoline is particularly misleading. Incalculable harm may result from such a false and mischievous impression should become prevalent that there was any possibility of gasoline costing $1 per gallon. Any such suggestion is an absurdity. Industrial alcohol alone, which can be produced for 30 cents per gallon, would, apart from any competition within the industry itself prove a competitive factor which would prevent any such prediction being realized.

"The statement that there still exists among the former constituents of what was known as the Standard Oil group any common understanding whatever of any secret relationship was denied upon oath by the President of the Standard Oil Company of N. J., and it is now as emphatically and with no less qualification denied by me.

A Free Industry.

"The oil industry in the United States is essentially a free industry. Its very nature prevents monopolization or group control. The industry has flourished because conditions of free competition have obtained. The very nature of the industry precludes any artificial price-fixing agency.

"As illustrative of the competitive conditions in the industry, it may be mentioned than on Jan. 1 of this year there were operating in the Mid-Continent area 126 refineries, which were turning out, together with producers of natural gasoline, 32 per cent., or one-third of the total gasoline requirements of the entire United States. Of 85,000 barrels of gasoline now being produced every day in the Mid-Continent territory, approximately 60,000 barrels are being thrown into the markets that offer the best returns. The combined production of refineries of the Standard Oil Company (N. J.) is 32,000 barrels daily.

"It is a fact too patent to require elaboration that the refiner on the Atlantic seaboard or elsewhere cannot hold up an arbitrary price for gasoline or other petroleum products when any jobber can draw upon this big surplus in the Mid-Continent area at prices lower than those asked by the Eastern refiner."

It is not true that the Standard Oil Company alone or in co-operation with other companies, fixes the price of oil, as charged in the report."

SENATOR EDGE ENTERS HIGHWAY CONTROVERSY

Arrives in Trenton With Suggestion That Single Commissioner Be Appointed.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., March 5.—United States Senator Walter E. Edge came here from Washington tonight and took a hand in the deadlock between Governor Silzer and the Legislature over the new Highway Commission.

Before leaving Washington Senator Edge gave out a statement, saying that he believed a single Highway Commissioner would be the proper solution of the question, declaring that a man of the calibre of General Goethals should be chosen. On his arrival at the State House he reiterated his stand for a single Commissioner. He would not say who he had in mind for the place, but did intimate that the Legislature should make the selection, either by naming the Commissioner in a "ripper" bill or by electing him in joint session.

The Senator conferred throughout the evening with Republican legislators known to be against taking from the Governor the right to name the Highway Commissioners. Eleven votes are needed in the upper house to pass a "ripper" bill, stripping the Executive of the appointive power, and whether Senator Edge will be able to persuade this many legislators to line up for such a measure is still uncertain. It is believed that the bill could be passed in the Assembly, where there is an overwhelming Republican majority, and where sentiment to take the entire matter out of Governor Silzer's hands is very strong.

Senator Edge will remain in Trenton tomorrow. At noon he will address a luncheon conference of Republican women.

Surrogate Foley took testimony yesterday in a contest of the will of Mrs. Ellen Corcoran, who sold newspapers on Park Row in front of Perry's pharmacy, and left her $80,000 estate to her daughter, Katherine Malone, with whom she lived in the tenement house she owned at 83 Catherine Street, and her son, Michael J. Corcoran. The will is being contested by Ellen Ryan and Rose Droge, grandchildren, who charge undue influence. Mrs. Malone is the wife of a patrolman.

The attorney who drew the will stated that Mrs. Corcoran told him she wanted to leave her property to her next of kin, and named her son and daughter, but said nothing about the contestants, who are the children of a deceased daughter. Mrs. Corcoran signed the document with a cross. Madeline Droge, 13 years old, great-granddaughter of the decedent, said that Mrs. Corcoran told her she should have a good education.

Held Man for Trying to Call The Police With a Revolver

Philip Guido, 40 years old, a contractor, living at 5,751 Fifth Avenue, Bensonhurst, was released in $500 bail for examination Friday by Magistrate Dale, in the Coney Island Court, yesterday, when he was arraigned on a charge of violating the Sullivan law.

Guido said he was returning home late Sunday night when he was accosted by a negro, who fired a shot at him. When he ran into his home Guido took his own revolver and fired several shots out of a window to attract the attention of police. The police did not respond, however, and he then summoned them by telephone. Patrolman Edward Bollman, who was sent to investigate, arrested Guido on a charge of having a revolver in his possession without a permit.

SUBWAY TRAIN BILL OPPOSED BY I. R. T.

Serious Delays Predicted If Halts Are Made to Exchange Passengers.

SHORT HEADWAY IS CITED

Chairman Murphy Argues That Whole Public Is Best Served by Independent Schedules.

The Interborough Rapid Transit Company, through Grayson M. P. Murphy, Chairman of the Executive Committee, last night issued the following statement to the newspapers:

"Apropos the Higgins-Kiernan bill, just introduced in Albany, to compel conductors and guards to hold subway trains until all local or express passengers desiring to change from one class of train to the other have done so, a word should be said:

"It is, of course, annoying when the train one desires to board, pulls out. But the reason for it is that only by local and express trains running on independent time tables can the highest number of trains be sent through in a given time and the greatest service to the public be rendered.

"Suppose a train were held at a station for one minute only. In one minute hundreds of passengers would have entered the stations beyond the one where the train is delayed, and the next delay due to the longer time needed for passengers to board or leave the train would have increased.

"This process would continue at each station, delays increasing all the time. The accumulated delays would soon amount to many minutes, and would affect all the trains following.

"In a short time the entire system would be off its time table, running at loose ends, with delays everywhere.

"Such little delays would not matter if as on a steam railroad trains were hours apart; but in rush hours one express train is often directly on the heels of another waiting for it to pull out of the station.

"In preparing time tables every effort is made to minimize this cause of complaint. It can be said is accomplished to a certain extent in non-rush hours, but cannot be wholly accomplished in rush hours.

"I think every one will appreciate that with the heavy congestion of travel, the frequency of train movement, the great number of local stations as compared to express stations, as well as other differences affecting the operation of the two classes of trains that they must be operated on independent time tables to secure the greatest efficiency and serve the most people in a given length of time.

DRUG STORE HELD UP NEAR POLICE STATION

Two armed men shortly after 11 o'clock last night held up three men and robbed them of money and jewelry totaling about $400 in the drug store at the corner of Third Avenue and Forty-third Street, Brooklyn, one block from the Fourth Avenue Police Station. The victims of the robbery were Abraham Lush, the proprietor; Joseph Schepis, a clerk in the store, and Isadore Goldhar, a friend of the proprietor.

Lush and Goldhar were seated in the rear room when the robbers entered. One of them covered Schepis with a pistol and his confederate walked to the rear room and held up Lush and Goldhar. He relieved Lush of a diamond ring, a signet ring and $60, and took a diamond ring and $45 from Goldhar.

Then he joined his confederate and robbed Schepis of money and jewelry, after which he ordered the proprietor to open the safe and got $78. The men then backed to the street, warning their victims that they would shoot if they attempted to follow them, and escaped.

The robbery took place when dozens of policemen were reporting to the station for duty. None of the policemen knew anything about it until Lush and the other two men ran to the street five minutes after the robbers had fled and gave the alarm. Policemen scoured the vicinity in automobiles but could find no trace of the thieves.

SAYS HE BORROWED TAXI.

Accused of the larceny of a yellow taxicab, Randolph McDougal, 30 years old, who gave his address as the Prince George Hotel, was yesterday held for the Grand Jury in $1,000 bail by Magistrate W. Bruce Cobb in Yorkville Court.

McDougal was alleged to have taken the taxi in front of the Ambassador Hotel at 12:01 A. M., Feb. 28. He said that he had been dining with a young woman at the Ambassador and on coming out had looked in vain for his own automobile. He went to a line of yellow taxicabs and, being peeved at not finding one with a chauffeur, got into one turned it around and started for the hotel entrance where the lady was awaiting him, thinking that the chauffeur of the car would put in an appearance.

Patrolman Hartwell of the East Fifty-first Street Station noticing the wrong taxicab being taken out of line reached McDougal ahead of the chauffeur and arrested McDougal. The complainant, Edward Du Bois, of 2,280 Aqueduct Avenue, Bronx, said he was not anxious to press the charge but Magistrate Cobb held that the evidence against McDougal was sufficient and that the law should take its course.

McDougal said it all might not have happened had it not been a very cold night, and said he was willing to pay the 90 cents fare registered on the taximeter between the time he turned the flag down and the time he reached the hotel entrance.

OFFERED $30,000 FOR BUST.

FORT DEPOSIT, Md., March 5.—Fred T. Torrey, when 5 years old, was taken in 1870 by his parents to visit Italy. There he became the favorite of an obscure sculptor. This sculptor made a head and bust of his little playmate, and on the family's return to America the bust came as a present to the child.

For years it has been kept in the Torrey family, carted here and there. A few weeks ago Mr. Torrey crated the bust and sent it to a relative in New York, asking that a valuation be placed upon it. The relative visited an expert and told him that the bust was made by Augustus Saint-Gaudens in 1870. The expert laughed and said: "If that be so, without looking at it, I will give $20,000 for it and will make $5,000 for myself."

It is reported that the deal is about to be closed for $30,000. It was one of the earliest pieces of work that Saint-Gaudens did. He went to Italy in 1869 to study and returned to the United States in 1874.

Boy Wedged Under Trolley Car Rescued Unhurt by Firemen as Mother Prays

Joseph Golfone, nearly 5 years old, yesterday ran from behind a wagon in Liberty Avenue, between New Jersey Avenue and Vermont Street, East New York, just as a Bergen Street trolley car, in charge of Motorman Jess Hagin, came along. Hagin's brakes worked only after the small boy had fallen under the car and had become wedged between the axle of the forward truck and the fender.

After Policeman William Hussey of the Liberty Avenue station and volunteers had found themselves unable to get near the boy Fire Truck 107 was summoned. Firemen jacked up the superstructure of the car, but even then it was impossible to dislodge the boy.

Word of the accident spreading through the neighborhood brought the mother, Mrs. Anna Golfone, from 223 Vermont Street. She became hysterical when she saw her son's form under the car. Reassured by a wail from "Joe," who recovered his voice when he heard his mother, Mrs. Golfone fell on her knees beside the trolley car and prayed.

After firemen had found themselves hindered by the fact that the boy's coat was caught between the fender and the axle, the firemen sent to a nearby tailor's and obtained a large pair of shears. With these Lieutenant Thomas Flannagan cut the coat and young Golfone was lifted out, uninjured. He cried, however, because he had lost a cent, given him by his aunt, Mrs. Vito Golfone, of 417 Liberty Avenue. He had been visiting her.

BANTON CALLS FOR LICENSED BROKERS

Declares Financial Thieves Have Stolen $800,000,000 Since the War.

ATTACKS STOCK EXCHANGE

District Attorney Joab H. Banton, who has been ill at his home since the latter part of January, issued a statement yesterday in which he attacked the Stock Exchange, which last Friday filed a brief with a Legislative Committee in Albany opposing the Lockwood Committee's bills to license brokers and supervise their firms through the State Superintendent of Banks.

"The brief filed by the attorneys for the New York Stock Exchange in opposition to legislation proposed by the Lockwood Committee, and transcripts of which appeared in the morning papers of Saturday, convinced me beyond any question that the fight for legislation that will be beneficial to the people is a fight on behalf of the people against the New York Stock Exchange," he declared.

"This brief indicates that the Stock Exchange will be opposed to any legislation. It opposes the Lockwood Committee bill which will protect the public against larcenies through false representations. Just why the New York Stock Exchange wishes to align itself on the side of this crowd of thieves who have stolen over $800,000,000 since the war is hard to conceive.

"The methods of operation of thieves of this kind are set forth in the story appearing in Saturday morning's papers telling of the arrest by the police of a crowd of brokers on the complaint of Mrs. Edith Reynolds. Is it not ridiculous to think of an organization like the New York Stock Exchange opposing legislation which will prevent such transactions?

Says 134 Firms Failed for $100,000,000.

"The brief also opposes the licensing of brokers and supervision of their business by the State Superintendent of Banks, and says 'it is an amazing plan.' If I should state all the occupations that are now under supervision and license it would require at least a column of any daily newspaper to print the list.

"It is enough to state that this 'amazing plan' applies to bankers, banks, trust companies, savings banks, insurance companies and like business of a high character. One hundred and fifty-four brokers have failed in the last fourteen months in New York County, and their liabilities exceed $100,000,000, their assets less than $10,000,000; and those who failed and were carrying a membership in the New York Stock Exchange exceeded in their liabilities the liabilities of the former members of all other exchanges combined.

"Supervision by the State Banking Superintendent would have prevented this condition. During the same period not a single bank or banker has failed, and only one insurance company. The business of that insurance company was taken over at once by the State Superintendent of Insurance, and its books are available to the District Attorney to investigate and prosecute complaints of a criminal character.

"All I ask the Legislature this year is that they give to the District Attorneys the same power to prosecute crooked bankers. This is not asking much, and is not 'amazing'; but will give the people protection against crooked brokers, and honest brokers need have no fear."

MASONS SUSPENDED FOR AIDING CONVICT

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 5.—Joe P. Bowdain, Masonic Grand Master of Georgia, has arrested the charter of Lebanon Lodge and suspended all its members until a final hearing. This action was taken following an attempt by Lebanon Lodge to bring about the release from prison of W. L. Payne, a former Atlanta detective, who was convicted of accepting bribes from a negro bootlegger.

Payne's conviction resulted from the inquiry into the notorious "million dollar bunco gang" operations in Atlanta. Numerous cases of police inefficiency were investigated, and it was charged by Nat McWhorter, bootlegger, that he had paid Payne $150 a week for protection for many months.

Payne was tried recently by Lebanon Lodge and announcement was made that he had been cleared by a nearly unanimous vote. Members of the lodge were instructed to appear as a body before the Prison Commission to ask for Payne's pardon. This action was blocked by the Grand Master's order.

"The arresting of the charter for alleged un-Masonic conduct suspends all officers and members of the lodge and prevents any operation of Lebanon Lodge until the next annual communication of the Grand Lodge of Georgia at Macon, Oct. 30, when the Grand Lodge will take final action," says the Masonic statement.

All books, funds and paraphernalia of the lodge have been taken into custody for the Grand Lodge of Georgia by Acting Grand Marshal Sam Johnson of Atlanta.

During the term of suspension no member of Lebanon Lodge can visit any other Masonic body.

LAWYER TESTIFIES FOR MRS. SALUDES

BROKER OWED HER MONEY

The defense at the trial of Mrs. Paulette A. Saludes for the murder of Oscar Martelliere, an insurance broker, closed in Judge Koenig's part of General Sessions yesterday and the case probably will go to the jury this afternoon.

James A. Turley, the accused French woman's counsel, testified that he had acted as her lawyer in litigation growing out of the bankruptcy of the lumber firm owned by her husband, James Saludes, who left for France about two years ago. Mrs. Saludes had testified in her own defense at the trial for killing Martelliere on October 16 last that Martelliere, with whom she lived for a time, had persuaded her not to appear at the bankruptcy proceeding. Mr. Turley said that a few hours before the shooting Mrs. Saludes visited him in his office and he took her to task for failing to appear at the bankruptcy proceedings. He said that he then called up Martelliere and demanded that he return to Mrs. Saludes money which the broker had received for the sale of her Brooklyn home and her automobile.

"Martelliere said to me, 'You can go as far as you like, and she can go as far as she likes. I have everything covered up.'" the lawyer testified. He communicated this to Mrs. Saludes. She seemed dazed, and kept repeating, 'Oh, Bobbie, how could you lie to me so? He can't mean it.'"

Mr. Turley added that he told her that the only way she could get the money from Martelliere was to get evidence for legal proceedings. When he returned to his office later in the day, the lawyer continued, he found Mrs. Saludes hysterical and talking incoherently. He said that she sat rigidly in a chair, but eventually recognized his voice, opened her eyes and said: "Oh, Mr. Turley, I shot him."

He called up Martelliere's office, and Acting Captain William Funston of the Detective Division answered the telephone and told him that Martelliere had been shot. The lawyer told Funston that Mrs. Saludes was at his office, and after the detectives arrived, he added, Mrs. Saludes tried to jump through a window. He said that all the time she was in his office she acted in an irrational matter.

The defense and the prosecution will sum up this morning, after which Judge Koenig will charge the jury.

FINDS MURDER BAFFLING

District Attorney Edward Glennon of the Bronx announced yesterday that it was only a matter of time before he would have sufficient evidence to present the Schneider murder case to the Grand Jury. He said that his office, in conjunction with the police, was investigating every possible lead, but that it was a baffling mystery.

That Frederick Schneider was killed by a jealous woman the prosecutor is convinced, but the problem is to identify the woman and prove that she was in the automobile in which Schneider's body was found on the Sound View Road near Clason Point last Monday afternoon.

Before he presents the case to the Grand Jury, Mr. Glennon said, he wants to be convinced in his own mind that the woman named in the indictment is the woman who fired the shots. Yesterday he attacked the alibi offered by Mrs. Anna Buzzi, now held in $25,000 bail as a material witness, with whom the wealthy contractor had lived for the last eight years.

"We have information from witnesses," he said, "which shows that Mr. Schneider could not have been in his home at the time Mrs. Buzzi says he was. She says he came home at 5:05 P. M. and stayed ten or twenty minutes, which would time his departure at 5:20 or 5:25. If her clock was seven minutes fast, as it was said to be, that would mean that he arrived home at 4:58 and left at 5:13 or 5:18.

Schneider Seen at 4:45 P. M.

"Now, we have two witnesses—one a police officer and one an employe of Schneider—who say that they saw Schneider driving his car east on Third Avenue at 163d Street at 4:45 o'clock. This was in the opposite direction from his home and in the direction of his office on Westchester Avenue near the Bronx River. As far as these witnesses could see, Schneider was alone. There was no one on the front seat with him, but they could not see into the rear seat for the side curtains were drawn against the rain.

"Another man, also an employe of Schneider, saw him driving past the entrance to his factory about 5 o'clock. He was going along Westchester Avenue toward Sound View Road, again in the opposite direction from his home. The employes fix the time definitely, because they had just finished work and had punched the time clock in the Schneider office. The employe who saw Schneider drive past the office saw no one in the car except Schneider."

"Mrs. Buzzi says Schneider was home at 4:58 or 5:05, depending on whether her clock was right or seven minutes fast. The employes say he drove past the factory at 5 o'clock, going away from home. All I care to say is that there is an axiom in physics that one body cannot occupy two positions in space at the same time."

Says Other Witnesses Agree.

Mr. Glennon added that the testimony of the employes supported statements of Nicholas Fuelner, the farmer who heard shots, and Stevenson and Nash, conductor and motorman of a Clason Point trolley car, who passed what they thought was a stalled automobile, and later picked up a woman near the automobile on the trip back toward Westchester Avenue.

"Fuelner says he heard the shots a little after 5 o'clock;" said Glennon, "and he fixed the time as 5:25 or 5:26 o'clock when they passed the automobile standing in the road. The car crew fix the time by the time they started from Simpson Street and arrived at Clason Point. The conductor says they remembers the automobile because the thought flashed through his mind that some poor fellow had got stalled in the rain.

"Schneider could easily have driven to the place where his body was found between 5 o'clock, when he was seen passing the office, and 5:26, when his car was seen by the trolley crew. But he could not possibly have had time to turn around after passing the office, drive to his home on the Grand Concourse and have coffee and cake with Mrs. Buzzi, and then get out to the scene of the crime by 5:26 o'clock. If he really did go home about 5 o'clock, and if he left at 5:13 (the earliest he could have left, according to Mrs. Buzzi's story), he might possibly have got to the place where he was found by 5:26, but he would have had to have traveled very fast."

Authorities Question Stenographer.

The authorities have been unable to discover why Schneider was driving out Sound View Road last Monday toward College Point, away from his home and office. Gladys Volkmann, a stenographer in Schneider's office, lives at 1,428 Higgs Beach, near the end of the Clason Point trolley line, but Mr. Glennon said that Schneider had not been accustomed to take her home from work and did not stop to do so last Monday. When Schneider passed the office, Mr. Glennon said, Miss Volkmann was still at work. Miss Volkmann, a fair, slender, good-looking girl of medium height, with curly blond hair, was called to the District Attorney's office yesterday afternoon and questioned by Assistant District Attorney Albert Cohn, but, according to the prosecutor, she added nothing of importance to the information in hand.

The District Attorney said that there was no likelihood that Mrs. Minnie Schneider, the contractor's widow, was the woman seen leaving the automobile by Fuelner, or the woman taken back from the Clason Point section by the trolley car.

"Mrs. Schneider does not answer the description at all," said. "The description would fit a woman of medium build, but not Mrs. Schneider, who is rather stout."

Calls In Pistol Expert.

The District Attorney consulted yesterday with Captain William A. Jones, former pistol expert of the Police Department, as to whether Schneider was shot from a place beside him on the front seat or behind him in the tonneau.

"It would have been difficult to fire these shots from the seat beside Schneider," said Mr. Glennon, "unless the person who did the shooting was left-handed. The Medical Examiner's office thinks he was shot from the rear."

James F. Donnelly, attorney for Mrs. Buzzi, declared yesterday that he believed Schneider had committed suicide.

"The affidavit made by Detective Michael Hegney, on which my client is being held," Mr. Donnelly said, "says that death was caused by two gunshot wounds, one in the right ear and one in back of the right ear. These wounds could have been self-inflicted, and there are hundreds of cases that prove a man can fire a second shot after firing the first shot into his brain. Furthermore, Schneider had reason to kill himself."

John Kadel, Schneider's personal attorney, told District Attorney Glennon that Schneider had no reason for suicide because of financial troubles.

Mrs. Buzzi's attorney, who got a writ of habeas corpus for his client last week, only to have it dismissed by Judge Gibbs in the Bronx County Court, got a new writ yesterday from Presiding Justice Victor J. Dowling of the Appellate Division. It is returnable at 10:30 o'clock Friday morning at the Appellate Division, Twenty-fifth Street and Madison Avenue.

Trial Separation of Couple For One Year, Is Court Order

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., March 5.—A trial separation for one year was ordered by Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins in the case of Mrs. Emma Westfehling of Halcyon Park, New Rochelle, against her husband, Dr. D. Henry Westfehling, a dentist.

The plaintiff charged that her husband abandoned her last April 9. The couple have been married nineteen years. Dr. Westfehling declared that the trouble was due to his stepdaughter. He said he was forced to sleep in a coal bin in the cellar on several occasions.

Justice Tompkins said: "These parties should reconcile their differences and live together, and to encourage them to do so I will grant her a separation for the term of one year, during which time the defendant must pay her $25 per week alimony."

FINE 73 MERCHANTS UNDER SUNDAY LAWS

STAGE PERFORMERS FREED

Lawyer Said They Did Not Dance, but Walked "With a Rhythmic Movement."

Seventy-three small merchants were fined $5 each by Magistrates Thomas F. McAndrews and Norman J. Marsh in the Essex Market Court yesterday on charges of violating the Sunday laws. The defendants were butchers, grocers, haberdashers, shoe dealers and other tradesmen. Their arrests were part of the campaign of the Lord's Day Alliance. All pleaded guilty to the charge of doing business on Sunday.

Magistrate Moses R. Kyttenberg in the West Side Court dismissed the case against J. Herbert Mack, manager of the Columbia Burlesque Theatre, and Louise Squier and Billy Shone, a song and dance team, who were served with summonses on Sunday night. Patrolman Ulysses Boettig testified that he had seen Miss Squier dancing in tights and a flowing scarf, and that Shone had danced with her.

Denial that Miss Squier had worn tights was made by Maurice Goodman, counsel for the defendants. He said Miss Squier had on pantaloons and black silk stockings. Miss Squier appeared in the courtroom with a package under her arm containing her costume, but was not required to display it.

Although the policemen demonstrated by gestures how Shone and Miss Squier had performed a dance that he called "sidestepping," the lawyer contended that the couple had not danced, but had merely walked off the stage "with a rhythmic movement" at the end of their turn.

Magistrate Kyttenberg decided that there had been no dancing. He said he believed that "some stage costumes are more decent than some of the modern evening dresses women are now wearing."

SAYS WORKERS' BUREAU HAS NO RADICAL AIMS

Secretary Denies Charges of Attempts to Distribute Revolutionary Propaganda.

The Workers' Education Bureau will not and has not given its support toward any form of propaganda, revolutionary or otherwise, said Spencer Miller Jr., Secretary of the bureau, yesterday in commenting on charges contained in the current issue of The Railway Review of Chicago and published in THE TIMES yesterday. The article alleged that revolutionary propaganda on a large scale was being attempted within the union, "under the control of labor leaders, ex-college professors and college Bolsheviki."

"The article contains so many misstatements of facts that I felt it my duty to set forth what is involved in the recent plan of co-operation between the Workers' Education Bureau of America and the American Federation of Labor," said Mr. Miller.

"The Workers' Education Bureau of America is not nor has it been affiliated with the Rand School of Social Science, nor with the New School for Social Research," said Mr. Miller, "nor is the bureau allied with the Bureau of Industrial Research. The Labor Arts League for Industrial Democracy or Labor Bureau, Inc. All the above mentioned schools, organizations, bureaus and journals have their own purposes, programs and policies and are as independent of the bureau as the bureau is independent of them. The bureau has no relation, support or affiliation either directly or indirectly with the Socialist Party of America. To attempt to classify them together is to reveal a total lack of discriminating intelligence.

"It is concerned primarily with the promotion of adult education among working men and women in this country. It will not nor has it given its support to any form of propaganda. It is not interested in teaching people what to think, but how to think. It asserts that education is a continuous process and should parallel human life. It believes that in our modern industrial world knowledge increases more rapidly than our understanding and that one of the functions of the workers' education movement in America is restatement briefly and simply for the working people of the fundamental social and economic problems of the day."

The article in The Railway Review alleged that the Labor Bureau, Inc., was one of the organizations allied with Mr. Spencer's organization. George Soule, speaking for the bureau, declared that the bureau was not allied with the Workers' Education Bureau nor was the Labor Bureau an organization of "Socialist and ultra radical leaders."

DISHWASHER "PONZI" HELD.

McPHERSON, Kan., March 5.—Joseph L. Gagnon, former hotel dishwasher, later "McPherson's Ponzi," who successfully exploited a few score residents of this city to the tune of what many say amounted to about $50,000, has been captured at Kankakee, Ill., where he was living under the name of J. L. Gardner.

Gagnon was found by Burns detectives who had been on his trail since he disappeared from this city last May. Around his associations there hangs a tale of frenzied finance, in which a selected group of townspeople, many of them prominent in business and professional circles, had visions of an almost certain method of playing the market to win, only to find in the end that their dreams were blasted.

Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in New York City for week ending Saturday, March 3, on shipments sold out, ranged from 10.50 cents to 15.50 cents per pound, and averaged 13.41 cents per pound.—Adv.

SCENTS TRACTION PLOT

DENIAL COMES FROM ALBANY

Dispatch Says There Has Been No Change of Plan for Hearing on the Proposal.

Mayor John F. Hylan, who had his promised conference with Corporation Counsel George P. Nicholson immediately after his arrival at City Hall yesterday morning, apparently learned that there was little immediate hope of restoring service on the bus lines on the Grand Concourse in the Bronx and on Washington Heights, Manhattan, which were discontinued after midnight Sunday morning, after the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court had unanimously vacated a stay on an injunction and had refused permission to the city to carry the case to the Court of Appeals.

Later in the day the Mayor, who was kept busy all day by the accumulation of business during his absence at Palm Beach, issued a statement saying that practically all the bus lines started by the city had been stopped by injunctions and that the only hope for improved surface transportation was in the passage by the Legislature of the Walker-Donohue bill abolishing the Transit Commission, creating a city Department of Transportation and authorizing the city to run buses.

The Mayor declared that the "traction interests," while professing no interest in the bill, were secretly trying to defeat it. In support of this theory, the Mayor said he had been informed that the Assembly Committee on Public Service, of which Assemblyman John R. Vale of Putnam County was Chairman, would not sit in session with the Senate hearing on the Walker-Donohue bill on March 14, as had been planned. Pointing out that it had been the custom to hold joint hearings on previous transit bills, the Mayor added that he would like to know what had taken place.

Deny Change at Albany.

A dispatch to THE TIMES from Albany said that Mayor Hylan was wrong concerning a change in plan for the Walker-Donohue bill hearing and that the Assembly committee would sit with the Senate committee at the hearing on March 14.

"The discontinuance by the courts during the last two or three years of various bus lines that we started in this city shows very clearly that without special legislation it will be impossible to give the city proper or adequate bus facilities," the Mayor said. "I have tried in every way to provide this necessary bus service to all parts of the city, but no sooner do we get a bus line started and in successful

KLAN JURY TO HEAR MERROUGE EVIDENCE

Special to The New York Times.

BASTROP, La., March 5.—Ku Klux Klansmen or their sympathizers comprise the majority of the Grand Jury selected today to hear evidence regarding the torture and murder of Watt Daniel and Thomas F. Richards last July and other outrages by hooded bands in Morehouse Parish. At least eight of the twelve jurors are authenticably reported to be members of the Klan or aligned with it.

Captain J. K. Skipwith, Exalted Cyclops of the Klan, sat in the front row and heard Judge Odom tell the jury that the oath to the State supersedes the oath and obligation of any other order or body and charged it to find and indict the hooded mob that killed Richards and Daniel and sank their bodies in Lake La Fourche.

J. E. Evans, a farmer of Oakridge, was appointed foreman of the jury. It could not be learned whether he is a member of the Klan.

Other members drawn on the jury are C. H. Tallman of Mer Rouge, S. H. Stevenson of Stevenson, G. A. Allen of Bonita, R. B. Williams of Oakridge, J. H. Jordan of Collinston, George Hayden of Bastrop, E. M. White of Mer Rouge, R. E. Bramlett of Collinston, F. M. Jones of Tilton, F. E. Hope of Bonita and R. U. Hood of Bastrop. The personnel of the jury is regarded as of a high type.

A. S. Reddick of Bonita was the only one of the twenty men summoned for duty that did not answer to roll call. Judge Odom directed the Sheriff to issue an attachment against him. Judge Odom had intended to appoint Reddick foreman. It was said that Reddick had no connection with the Klan.

Attorney General Coco, Assistant Attorney General Guion and District Attorney David I. Garrett were present. W. H. Todd of Bastrop and Percy Sandel and Thomas Newton of Monroe, said to have been retained by the Ku Klux Klan, also were in attendance.

In his charge to the jury Judge Odom said:

"I desire to call your special attention to certain violations of the law which have been more or less frequent in Morehouse Parish during the last year or more. I refer especially to the activities of bands of hooded or masked men, who on different occasions kidnapped, beaten and deported citizens of the parish, and more especially the incident on the Bastrop and Mer Rouge public road on Aug. 24, 1922, when scores of citizens on their way home from Bastrop were held up, five of them kidnapped and carried several miles away, where two of them were beaten and turned loose, one turned loose without punishment, the other two not having been seen alive since. The incidents to which I refer are matters of common knowledge and need no further specific mention by me. The details were fully gone into at the public hearing held here some time ago.

"I call your special attention to and urge your most careful, thorough and vigorous investigation of these violations of the law. There are in these violations involved principles which are of more than ordinary concern to us all, because in them there is shown a tendency on the part of certain individuals which if unchecked will result ultimately in the destruction of organized society, or organized government.

"Under the guise and pretext of assisting in the enforcement of the laws, certain individuals and groups have taken upon themselves the regulation of the morals and conduct of their fellow-citizens. At various times letters have been sent to the individuals censuring their conduct and admonishing them to mend their ways. Some of these letters were signed 'Vigilance Committee,' and 'Ku Klux Klan.' These letters usually contained a veiled or open threat of violence if the offender did not mend his conduct.

"At other times citizens have formed themselves into groups, regaled themselves in black robes and masks, bodily seized individuals who in the opinion of the masked group or band had offended the law or decency, and carried them to secluded spots, and there, in some instances, administering admonitions and reprimands and in other severe beatings. In some instances the offending individual was ordered to leave the parish and not return.

"Thus far I have heard of no good citizen who condones the conduct of the mob on the occasion of Aug. 24. But there are those, and among them some of our best citizens, who are, or were at one time, apparently in accord and sympathy with those who were engaged in these activities generally and who continue to justify their attitude and to justify the conduct of the mob on the ground that the members of it were actuated by the desire and purpose of suppressing lawlessness, crime and decency in the community, that the individuals punished or deported, as the case might be, were invariably undesirable citizens, whose conduct either had not been or could not be reached through the courts and that after all these hooded and masked bands were doing real service to the State.

"In all these various activities there is no case so far as I know where the offender was first presented to the court for correction and punishment, but in each case these parties have constituted themselves the accuser, jury and executioners. It cannot be said on behalf of these parties that they acted only after the court had failed.

"The very thought of such condition strikes us with horror, for if such exists men may set aside criminal laws and regulate property rights.

"Before the law all men, whether they be members of the Ku Klux Klan, the Masonic fraternity, the Knights of Columbus, the B'nai B'rith, or the Methodist Church, stand precisely upon the same plane—they are all equal. You are to deal with men, not with organizations, societies or fraternities.

"If in your deliberations you become convinced that a certain citizen has violated the law, it would never occur to you that you should then inquire whether he was of the Christian or Hebrew faith, or whether he was an Mason or a Woodman of the World, and if such a course should be suggested to you, you would feel insulted. Why, then, should you be concerned over the question of whether these crimes were committed through the Klan as an organization or by Klansmen as individuals?

"I make these suggestions, gentlemen, in the hope that I may impress upon you the fact that it is your sworn duty to help enforce the laws of the State, regardless of sentiments and regardless of the affiliation or creed of the individual who violates them.

"As concerns us, if we have reached that state or condition of society where men may organize into bands or groups and condemn and punish citizens when and as they see fit without regard to the laws of the land and the established rules of judicial procedure, then, gentlemen, the day of our doom is upon us. We have seen the end of civilization, of organized society. The laws of civilized government must be enforced, or else civilization could not survive.

"When a man becomes an officer of the law or courts he forfeits absolutely the right and privilege of favoring a friend or antagonizing an enemy.

"In all your deliberations you must remember that aside from family ties your first and highest duty is to your country. You cannot permit any tie, oath or obligation to come between you and your duty to your State as Grand Jurors. You have registered a most solemn oath that you will do your duty as such. You are bound not only by your ties of loyalty to your State as good, patriotic American citizens, but also by your oath as officers to support and enforce the law. The law expects and requires that of you.

"You are not here to unmask Klansmen or to disrupt the Ku Klux as an organization. You are to present and indict criminals without regard to their affiliations. You are to deal with men, not organizations, societies, religion or fraternities."

MAYFIELD DENOUNCES CHARGES AS INFAMOUS

Senator-Elect for Texas Resents Accusation He Is Member of Klux and Got Its Aid in Election.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Senator-elect Earle B. Mayfield of Texas gave out a statement today declaring "infamous and absolutely false" the election contest charges filed recently with the Senate by George E. B. Peddy, the Republican-Independent Democratic candidate for Senator defeated by Mr. Mayfield last November. Mr. Peddy charged that Senator-elect Mayfield belonged to the Ku Klux Klan and had entered a conspiracy with its members by which his election was fraudulent.

"The protest filed is false from beginning to end," said Mr. Mayfield. "It is but a continuation of a campaign of misrepresentation and abuse on the part of my political opponents to injure me personally and to lessen the possibility of my carrying out my pledges to serve the people and no special interest during my term of office.

"Every alleged fact in the protest, with reference to me, was thrashed out in every court in Texas before the election and was well known to the voters of our State when they went to the polls in the general election on Nov. 7, and I was elected by a majority of 126,000 votes. I spent less than $1,000 in the general elections, while the Campaign Committee of my opponent, in a sworn statement filed with our Secretary of State, admitted having spent over $73,000 to defeat me.

"The charge that I intimidated the oil industry of Texas is ridiculous. Besides, the charge is a reflection upon the character of my associates upon the Railroad Commission, who participated with me in every decision touching that industry. Why, two of the most prominent oil men of Texas swore to having contributed $35,000 each to Mr. Peddy's campaign, and the good Lord only knows how much more.

"The protest not only contains a wholesale indictment of our Attorney General, Secretary of State, election officials and 300,000 voters, charging them with fraud and wrongful practices, but it goes the limit and charges the Texas courts with corruption. I would denounce as infamous and absolutely false these charges made against the honesty and integrity of my people by those who would traduce the fair name of Texas to further their political ambitions and selfish fortunes, even though I were not their target.

"Everybody in Texas knows we had an honest election except the lawyers and the $5 per day men who are hired to contest my seat in the Senate. In the end their efforts will amount to nothing. The voice of the people will be respected."

KLAN GIVES RECTOR $100.

Six White-Robed Visitors Appear at Service in Paterson Church.

PATERSON, N. J., March 5.—Six men wearing the white gowns and hoods of the Ku Klux Klan entered Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church by a rear door during services Sunday night and presented a purse of $100 to the Rev. Irving C. Starr, the pastor. One of the visitors read the principles of the Klan, and another recited a poem, "God Give Us Men!"; a third handed the pastor an envelope containing the money and a note, which read:

"We offer this contribution to show our appreciation of the pastor, who has on many occasions preached on pure American ideals for which the Ku Klux Klan stands first, last and all the time. We hope you will accept this small gift in the spirit in which it is given.

"Praise God, from whom all blessings flow."

Mr. Starr praised the Klan in an interview after the services. "The Klan is against nothing except lawlessness and other things anti-American," he said.

KLAN HEAD'S BOND RAISED.

Houston Judge Sets Clarke's Hearing for March 12.

Special to The New York Times.

HOUSTON, Texas, March 5.—Bond of $5,000 was set and a capias instanter was issued by Federal Judge J. C. Hutcheson this morning for the appearance in Federal Court here of Edward Young Clarke, former acting Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, charged in an indictment returned by the Federal Grand Jury with the transportation of whisky, and Mrs. Martha Foster, from Houston to New Orleans for immoral purposes. Judge Hutcheson set Clarke's case for hearing here on March 12. He declared the bond of $1,000 fixed for Clarke on Saturday by the United States Commissioner at Atlanta for his appearance here in September was unwarranted and insufficient.

Removal proceedings to have the former Klan head in Federal court here during the present term started on the issuance of the capias and the setting of the bond by Judge Hutcheson.

HEWITT'S DAUGHTER, 8, SUES

Through Mother She Seeks Income of $13,000 a Year.

Ann Cooper Hewitt, 8, daughter of the late Peter Cooper Hewitt and granddaughter of Abram S. Hewitt, former Mayor of New York, began suit in Jersey City yesterday, through her mother, Baroness Maryon D'Erlanger, No. 4, Rue le Suer, Paris, as guardian, for an income of $13,000 a year for her support from the estate of her father, who was a resident of Ringwood, N. J. She was represented by George McCarter as counsel.

Hewitt left an estate which is now worth $1,303,290.71, with an annual income of $60,000. The will provided that the widow should have two-thirds of the income and the child one-third, but that in the event of the remarriage of the widow she should have only one-third of the income of the estate, while the daughter should have two-thirds. Upon the widow's marriage on July 18, 1922, to the Baron Robin D'Erlanger the executor of the will, the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, shut off the income of the child and used the income of the mother to pay her debts, it said. The bank was represented yesterday by Josiah Stryker as counsel.

DETECTIVES WATCH MEETING FOR KLAN

One of Those Present Said It Was Meeting of Stockholders of a Publication.

A "meeting of the country editors" was held at the Hotel Majestic, Central Park West and Seventy-second Street, last night. It was private and entrance to the room was guarded by a doorkeeper. He said admission was by invitation only. One who attended the meeting said it was called by officers and stockholders of the Country Editor Publishing Company, Inc., of 16 East Forty-sixth Street, for the purpose of arranging for the sale of $100,000 worth of stock. Beyond this explanation he would give no further information.

More than 100 men attended the meeting, which was in session from 8 to after 11 P. M. When they left they descended a staircase on the Seventy-second Street side of the building which leads from the the red room to the grand ballroom. In entering the meeting they used the main staircase and elevators. By using the Seventy-second Street stairway the majority of those in the meeting left before reporters were aware that the meeting had broken up.

Copies of the February issue of the "Country Editor" were given to reporters who inquired as to the nature of the meeting. No names were given as to who presided and who made speeches. Among the articles in the magazine was one captioned "The Rockefeller Solution of the Problem of Benefactions." Another article was headed "The world-wide Vision of the Ku Klux Klan in Relation to the Protestant White Men of the World, by Edward Young Clarke, Imperial Giant-Knight of the Ku Klux Klan."

This article was illustrated by a picture of Christ laying a sword on the left shoulder of a man dressed in the full regalia of the Ku Klux Klan. Under the picture was the following caption, "Go thou unto all the world and preach My doctrine."

Other articles were headed:

"The American Anti-Saloon League."

"William H. Anderson upheld by Anti-Saloon League Board; charges of irregularity made by former employe not believed."

"Knights of Columbus on trail of Ku Klux Klan."

Under this was a sub-title which read "Supreme Board of Directors issues pamphlet and leaflets telling about the 'bogus fourth-degree oath.'"

According to the management of the hotel their only knowledge of the meeting was that it had some connection with a publication called The Country Editor. They did not know who presided and referred all those who questioned them to the doorkeeper, who declined to give any information.

The meeting came to the knowledge of the Police Department, and Lieutenant James J. Gegan, head of the Bomb Squad, sent seven of his detectives to the Hotel Majestic. These detectives attempted to get into the meeting, but admittance was refused.

According to Detective James Riley, who was in charge of the detectives assigned to the Hotel Majestic, the police had heard that the meeting was to be under the auspices of Klan 1, the Manhattan organization.

The detectives said that they had considerable advance information about this meeting and that the purpose of it was to bring about a change of the titles of the officers, and instead of using kleagle and other strange sounding names, military titles were to be resorted to, such as Colonel, Major, Captain and Lieutenant.

The detectives made several attempts to enter without using force, but did not succeed in getting a man past the doorkeeper. They remained on duty until shortly before the meeting broke up, when they left.

SIR GALAHAD ORDER HOLDS CONCLAVE HERE

Episcopal Boys' Organization Praised by Bishop Gailor for Chivalrous Aims.

The first grand conclave of all the courts of the Order of Sir Gallahad in the Episcopal Diocese of New York was held last evening in the Episcopal Church of the Epiphany, Lexington Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street, with a sermon by the Right Rev. Thomas F. Gailor, Bishop of Tennessee and President of the National Council of the Episcopal Church.

There was a processional and recessional of the members of the five degrees of the order, which is a national organization of the Episcopal Church for men and boys. All were in uniform, and they marched behind the cross with the page and banner following. Each court has a king and there were two kings in the procession, each wearing a flowing velvet robe with ermine collar and a gold crown on the head. Their trains were held by tiny pages dressed in scarlet. They followed the choir boys, clergy and Bishop Gailor, the Gloria Trumpeters blowing their trumpets and dressed in angelic robes, who marched just ahead of the Bishop. Many of the knights were in gray attire with gray hoods and shields.

The Rev. Dr. Ernest J. Dennen of Boston, Archdeacon of Massachusetts, the founder of the order, came especially to speak. He said it was incorporated in 1921 and had already spread from the Atlantic to the Pacific, being organized in thirty-two dioceses of America, also in Canada and Cuba, with courts "on the way" in Brazil, Australia and China, and that the Consul General of Poland had written for data with which to organize the order in his country.

Bishop Gailor declared there was need for such an order today because of the "license, lawlessness, rebellion against restraint, immodesty, the decline of reticence—as one writer calls it—vulgarity of display and bombastic boasting and silly self-centred affectation of independent thought and independent speech and action."

NUGENT THINKS PARTY IS FOR SMITH IN 1926

Says He Heard Much Talk in the South Favoring Governor as Candidate for President.

Governor Smith is being seriously discussed by Democratic leaders as a Presidential candidate, it was said yesterday by James R. Nugent of Newark, the Democratic leader. Mr. Nugent had just arrived from a vacation at Florida east coast resorts.

"In my conversation with Democrats of national importance," he said, "I find much talk of Al Smith as a Presidential candidate. I came into frequent contact with scores of politicians who assist in molding national politics, and all have a kindly word for the Governor of New York State.

"The next Presidential campaign will be fought out on the prohibition issue. Present conditions are as unpopular in the South as they are here. I was offered Scotch for $35 a case and Gordon gin for $10. The officials are nearly all in the business. Prohibition conditions are worse there than here. Bootlegging is the principal occupation of many State and city officials down there.

"The next President will be a Democrat, and he will be elected on the anti-prohibition platform. The great States of the Atlantic Seaboard will all go Democratic, all the way down from Massachusetts, and perhaps they will even include Pennsylvania, if Gifford Pinchot continues to intensify sentiment there.

"The Eastern States and the South are all we need, but we will get Illinois, too, on an anti-prohibition campaign.

"Bryan? Florida will take care of him when he runs against Senator Fletcher. I was unprepared for the response my remarks against Bryan drew in Florida."

STOLEN JEWELRY RETURNED

Hotel Telephone Operator Held Following $900 Theft.

Jewelry valued at $900 which was stolen last Friday night from a washroom of the Hotel Monterey, 2,522 Broadway, was mysteriously returned to the manager of the hotel Sunday. Magistrate Moses R. Ryttenberg was informed in West Side Court yesterday when Miss Mildred Borgstrom, 23 years old, of 141 Third Street, New Dorp, S. I., telephone operator of the hotel, was arraigned for examination charged with stealing the jewelry.

The stolen jewelry consisted of a pearl bracelet, a solitaire ring and a watch ring. They were stolen from Miss Mildred Anstett, a model, of 16 East 116th Street. Miss Borgstrom, Miss Anstett told the police, was the only other person in the room when the jewelry was left behind for a moment by her.

On the model's complaint Miss Borgstrom was arrested. The jewelry was returned by "a tall dark man" from the Western Union office at Ninety-second Street and Broadway, detectives learned.

Magistrate Ryttenberg adjourned the case to March 12.

NEW MARK AT JERSEY TRIAL.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 5.—"Jersey justice" made another speed record today when Isaiah Barnes of Atlantic City, who attacked Daniel Thomas on Saturday in the corridor of the county jail at May's Landing, was indicted for atrocious assault with intent to kill, placed on trial before Judge William H. Smathers fifteen minutes later, and after a half hour devoted to the introduction of testimony, convicted by a jury which deliberated two minutes. He will be sentenced on Thursday to a term of not less than two or more than fourteen years' imprisonment.

Barnes and Thomas, former friends in Atlantic City, were cellmates in the jail, where Barnes was awaiting trial for alleged larceny, and Thomas for a hearing for breaking parole on a previous offense. While passing each other in the passageway between the cells Barnes attacked Thomas with a piece of jagged glass, but was prevented from injuring him by guards who were forced to draw revolvers in subduing Barnes.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 6.—The storm that was central over New England Sunday night continued to move rapidly east-northeastward and its centre was over Newfoundland Monday night, while another disturbance of wide extent was central over Texas and moving rapidly east-northeastward. Still another disturbance was over the Red River of the North Valley Monday night while an area of high pressure was over the Lake Region and moving rapidly eastward. This pressure distribution has been attended by local rains since Sunday night in Tennessee, the Middle Mississippi Valley, the West Gulf States and the North Pacific States and by local snows in the Rocky Mountain and northern plateau regions and in portions of the lower lake region and Northern New England.

The temperature was considerably lower Monday in the Atlantic States as far South as North Carolina and it was high in the upper Mississippi and the Missouri Valley, the plains States and the central Rocky mountain region. The weather has continued warm in the Gulf and South Atlantic States.

The Texas disturbance will move rapidly north-eastward during the next two days and it will be attended by snow or rain in the North Atlantic States and the lower lake region and rain elsewhere, east of the Mississippi River, except Southern Florida Tuesday or Tuesday night and precipitation will probably continue Wednesday in the Northeastern States. The temperature will not change materially Tuesday, but colder weather will overspread the Ohio Valley, Tennessee and the East Gulf and South Atlantic States Tuesday night or Wednesday.

FORECAST: TODAY AND TOMORROW.

Southern New England—Increasing cloudiness, followed by snow or rain Tuesday afternoon or night and on Wednesday; not much change in temperature.

Eastern New York—Increasing cloudiness and slightly warmer, followed by snow or rain in South and snow in north portion Tuesday afternoon or night and on Wednesday.

Eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey—Increasing cloudiness, followed by rain in South and rain or snow in north portion Tuesday afternoon and night and probably Wednesday morning, not much change in temperature.

Delaware—Rain Tuesday and Tuesday night, probably clearing Wednesday morning, not much change in temperature.

Western Pennsylvania—Rain or snow and slightly warmer Tuesday. Wednesday cloudy, probably local rains or snows.

ACTORS TO FIGHT SENATOR LEVY'S BILL

FEDERATION'S AID SOUGHT

The Actors' Equity Association announced yesterday that it would send a delegation to Albany to fight the passage of the bill introduced by Senator Meyer Levy, which has for its purpose the legalizing of Sunday performances in New York. Frank Gillmore, Executive Secretary of the Equity, made it clear that the question of blue laws did not enter into the matter so far as Equity was concerned, but that the organization was acting purely to protect the actor. The American Federation of Labor will also be asked to co-operate in the fight against the bill.

A statement of the Equity position, given out by Mr. Gillmore, was in part as follows:

"A malodorous herring, that of the blue law discussion, has been cunningly drawn across the trail; but the question has nothing whatever to do with blue laws. It is just a matter of fair play. And we want to know whether it is fair play to ask any group of people to work seven days a week.

"A machine needs overhauling now and then; a horse does better for a periodic day of rest, and even the most philosophic man hardly welcomes seven days' grind week in and week out. If this is true, then what can be the feelings of the sensitive, high-strung actor? Could John Barrymore and Jane Cowl, for example, play such exhausting roles as Hamlet and Juliet without a respite now and then? It is possible, but the theatregoer would suffer, since they could not give the same passionate, yet delicate, performances from actors bound to 'cheat,' to 'lay down,' in order to make a nightly appearance.

"No one expected Caruso to sing more than three or four times a week, and there is just as much physical effort, to say nothing of mental strain, in a long speaking part as in a singing one.

"The actor, to do his best, must be fresh, alert, his nerves steady and his intellect clear. These conditions, combined with talent, give the playgoer the pleasure which comes from seeing superlative acting.

"People argue that the vaudeville actor works on Sunday. We know he does, and if he raised his voice in protest we should be the first to back him up, but if he remains silent no one can tell whether he objects or not. The legitimate actor don't remain silent. We want a weekly rest because we know how our art is hurt when we have to do without it.

"They argue, too, that ball players work seven days a week; but that is not true of all of them. A team consists of more than nine, nearer thirty. Let one of them go stale, and he is removed from the field until he has recovered his 'pep.' But actors cannot retire from the cast except for sickness, since understudies disturb the ensemble and their presence is not relished by those who pay for their seats. Besides, ball players are all young and all athletes; actors are not necessarily either.

"The laws of the State of New York prohibit three operas seven days a week. They protect laborers in the same way. And we venture to think that actors need a day of rest as much as other employees.

"It is not the public which demands Sunday performances. It is the theatre managers. They want the additional receipts, and in getting these Sunday profits they care not what injustice may be done to the actors whose talents, combined with that of the playwrights, make theatres possible."

In the meantime, the cast of "March Hares," which had been forbidden to give a performance of that play at the Little Theatre next Sunday night, agreed to give the play for charity and to accept no pay. The performance will accordingly be given in aid of the scholarship fund of the Drama Institute of the Inter-Theatre Arts, Inc.

VALESKA SURATT AT PALACE

The Duncan Sisters and Valeska Suratt are the headliners of this week's bill at the Palace, the former, after a prologue bearing on the Prince of Wales and the King of Spain, singing partly and effectively, and the latter bringing a Barrymore voice to an Edgar Allan Woolf playlet. In the Suratt offering, William Howard does several excellent bits of burlesque clowning. Others on the program are the California Ramblers, Claude and Marion, Morton and Glass, Jack Wilson and the Ben Haggin Jubileaux.

At the Central Theatre Law Fields appeared as the star of "Snapshots." A number of vaudeville acts were interspersed in the production, among them the Five Melody Charmers, the Six Saxomaniacs, Leighton, Pettie and Josephine, Alice Ramsen, Wynne Gibson, James Cagney, Gladys James and Nora Nielson.

"Anima Allegra" for Third Time.

Franco Vittadini's "Anima Allegra" was sung for the third time at the Metropolitan last evening, when the influential Monday subscribers gave their measure of official sanction to Mr. Gatti-Casazza's gay little Italian novelty of the season, while the dancing score again won its way with the general public in the cast with Miss Bori were Mmes. Howard, Marie Anthony, Talvo and Schaaf, Messrs. Laurt-Volpi, Tokatyan, Didur, Diaz, Bada and others, and Mr. Moranzoni conducted.

Tonight the Metropolitan stars are giving a special Tuesday performance for the Italian war orphans' charity. Puccini's "La Boheme" will be sung, the cast including Mmes. Alda and Sundelius, Messrs. Gigli, Scotti and Mardones.

"Pasteur" will open at the Empire Theatre on Monday night of next week, instead of Wednesday, as originally announced.

There will be a juvenile performance of "Merton of the Movies" at the Cort Theatre on Thursday afternoon, April 12. All of the parts will be played by children, and the receipts will go to the Professional Children's School, at 312 West Seventy-second Street.

Robert Strange will have a role in "Sold!" which will come to town in a few weeks.

A play by Thomas Louden will come to the Punch and Judy Theatre in two weeks. It will probably be known as "The Love Set," and Gavin Muir will head the cast.

The Forum Theatre, at Broek Avenue and 126th Street, was opened last night as a motion picture theatre. It has a seating capacity of 3,000.

Three special trains will carry employes of the General Electric Company from Bridgeport to New York next Friday to see "Better Times" at the Hippodrome.

"The Slavemaker," by Norman Houston and Sam Forrest, was produced in Baltimore last night by Sam H. Harris, with Mary Ryan in the leading role.

"Go Go," a new musical piece, was presented in Atlantic City last night by John Cort. It will come to Daly's Sixty-third Street Theatre next Monday night.

WOMEN AID BLIND SOLDIERS.

About 300 prominent women attended a reception yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Rufus Graves, 1,040 Park Avenue, and discussed plans for aiding the Pierre Defiane, a hospital, recreational training school and social club in Paris, where blind former soldiers, blinded in the war, are being trained by the French Government. Mrs. Rufus Graves Mather, formerly Miss Winifred Holt, was the guest of honor.

Mrs. Mather said that the Pierre Defiane was maintained wholly by contributions. At present its finances have become so involved that unless $150,000 is raised by March 15 by the American Committee for World War Blinded Soldiers the work in France must be dropped.

Among those at the meeting were Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mrs. Cooper Hewitt, Mrs. Frederick W. Longfellow, Mrs. James Roosevelt, Mrs. Francis Rogers, Duchess de Talleyrand, Mrs. Berry Wall, Mrs. Elsie Douglas Wright, Mrs. H. McK. Twombly, Mrs. Arthur Scribner and Mrs. Gaston Liebert.

JOHN DREW TO BE HONORED.

His 50 Years on the Stage to Be Celebrated at a Dinner.

A committee of thirty-six prominent men, in and out of the theatre, signed a formal invitation to John Drew to be the guest of honor at a dinner at the Hotel Biltmore on Sunday night, March 25. The dinner will be given in honor of Mr. Drew's fiftieth year on the American stage.

Mr. Drew has been on tour all season in "The Circle," and will soon be seen here for a single week in a revival of "The School for Scandal." It is rumored that this may be his last appearance on the stage.

Edward Childs Carpenter, President of the American Dramatists and of the Dramatists' Guild of the Authors League, was the guest of honor at a dinner last night in the rooms of the first-named organization at 142 West Forty-fifth Street. Mr. Carpenter, accompanied by Mrs. Carpenter, will sail tomorrow on the Paris, and while abroad will try to carry out a plan recently formulated for a closer alliance of English, French, and American playwrights.

Because he wanted to go to school, Romeo Laudisi, 3½ years old, of 20 Sherman Avenue, Long Island City, tramped nearly seven miles from home yesterday, and was found tapping on the window of a kindergarten at 316 Hudson Avenue, Brooklyn. Through the aid of the police he was restored to his family, tired but happy after his adventure.

Romeo is the son of L. Laudisi, a banker, at Fourth and Vernon Avenues. It has been his custom to accompany his 7-year-old sister, Anastasia, as far as the school building every morning. Yesterday morning Romeo left his sister as usual, but, instead of turning back, continued on into the great unknown.

Shortly after 1 o'clock Miss Anna MacMahon, in charge of the kindergarten on Hudson Avenue, noticed the boy at the window and called him in. He was able to give his first name and address, but not his family name. Miss MacMahon called Policeman Houck, who took the boy by the hand and started for the Poplar Street Police Station. On the way Romeo spied a baker's window and told Houck that he was hungry. The policeman took him in and gave him coffee and cakes. At the station house the police telephoned to Banker Laudisi, and a short time later Alfonso Lisen, an uncle of the boy, arrived in an automobile and took Romeo home. He told the police that the boy was very anxious to go to school.

OBREGON NAMED IN SUIT.

President Obregon of Mexico was named yesterday in papers filed in the City Court in a suit of Robert H. Murray, formerly a newspaper correspondent in the City of Mexico, against Magnus G. Thomle on a check which was returned. The check was drawn to B. K. Elgin and cashed by Murray.

In his answer Thomle declared that he owed nothing to Elgin. He alleged that Elgin was trying to interest people in stock of an insurance company and represented that President Obregon told him he would "produce a condition that would cause all Government employes to insure in the company upon the understanding that Obregon would get one-third of the profits." Thomle said that the negotiations with Obregon fell through and that he never agreed to invest in the company.

Murray declared he never heard about the supposed insurance company but understood that Thomle and Elgin were partners in a railroad enterprise. Thomle was directed to testify before trial and because he failed to appear he was fined $25 yesterday by Justice Walsh and was directed to appear next Monday.

ACTRESS TO GET DIVORCE.

CHICAGO, March 5.—A thirteen years' quest for freedom and alimony from Albert Gallatin Wheeler 2d, son of the builder of Chicago's freight tunnel system, ended today when Judge Walter P. Steffen indicated that he would grant a divorce to Mrs. Claudia Caristedt Wheeler, a former actress, known as "The Girl in the Red Tights."

The decree will ratify an alimony settlement the exact terms of which were not disclosed, but which, it is understood, provides for the immediate payment of $31,200 claimed by Mrs. Wheeler under a separate maintenance decree awarded to her by a New York court in 1916. Establishment of a trust fund assuring the actress an annuity for life is included.

Chauve-Souris Repeats First Bill.

Balieff's Chauve-Souris, after more than a year in New York, went back to its original program last night on the Century Roof. This first bill, played here originally at the Forty-ninth Street Theatre on Feb. 5 of last year, was repeated in its entirety, with one or two numbers added to it as "surprises." The company, which is now in the final weeks of its engagement here, will offer a different program each week until the end of the run.

MUSIC

Miss Sylvia Lent's Recital.

Miss Sylvia Lent is a young Washington girl who has studied the violin both with Franz Kneisel and with Leopold Auer. She gave a recital yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall, which a large and interested audience crowded to hear. The hall was, in fact, astonishingly full — a tour de force on somebody's part, considering that Miss Lent's name is not yet one to conjure an audience with. It may be some time before it is. She has undoubtedly talent for the violin, and has assimilated good teaching in an admirable manner. It can hardly be said that as yet she is much beyond the pupilary stage in her art. She did not display much individuality in her performance yesterday, though she did display a good musical feeling, a correct ear and the power of producing a fine tone in various degrees of and correct and fluent use of the bow.

Her program included Professor Auer's arrangement of Vitali's Chaconne, in which Miss Lent showed some excellent double stopping in tune and a broad and beautiful tone; Max Bruch's Scottish Fantasy, in which she was not quite so unerring in technique, and to capture the spirit of which she has some way yet to go; two of Mr. Kreisler's charming arrangements, two pieces by Cecil Burleigh; Sarasate's "Habaneras," Wilhelmj's arrangement of a nocturne by Chopin and Vieuxtemps's polonaise in A.

Miss Lent has made a most encouraging beginning and holds out promise of an artistic future. This will come with greater maturity, a deeper insight into the more intangible musical values, and the growth of an individuality of her own, which she does not at present exhibit in her public playing.

Field Service Fellowships Benefit.

An audience of good size attended the benefit for the American Field Service fellowships in Carnegie Hall last evening and a substantial amount was added to the memorial fund for sending American students to French universities. A septuor by Saint-Saëns was played by Messrs. Zimler, Schmitz and others, and it was followed by two sketches based on Indian themes by the late C. T. Griffes, played by the Franco-American String Quartet. An encore was required of Leon Rothier, the Metropolitan bassofor his singing of Saint-Saëns's "Le Feu d'armes du Roi Jean." An arrangement of Casella's "Pupazzetti" for two pianos was played by the composer and Robert Schmitz. They also played Ibert's "Petite," a new work of this writer, which, outside of a peculiar rhythmic accentuation, bears no resemblance to the Broadway variety. The Salzedo Harp Trio was warmly applauded for its offerings, as was Eva Gauthier.

Warner Hawkins Applauded.

Warner Mason Hawkins, an accomplished musician of this city, gave a public recital at Aeolian Hall last evening, including his own setting for piano of the G-major organ prelude and fugue by Bach, of which the player's program note said he believed no previous arrangement had been made. Besides well matured interpretations of Scarlatti, Schumann, Chopin and Liszt, Mr. Hawkins gave free rein also to the moderns. Grieg's "Ballade," on a Norwegian air brought an encore, and the audience applauded Debussy's "Bells Through the Leaves," some "new" harmonies of Carpenter's "Garden of Soul Sympathy" by Cyril Scott and oddly familiar rhythms of "Ragamuffin" by John Ireland.

"Lohengrin" Broadcasted by Radio.

The Manhattan's fourth and final week of popular Wagnerian festival by the Berlin opera singers, who are moving next Monday to the Lexington, was marked by a large attendance at the repetition of "Lohengrin" last evening, and by a far more vast audience all unseen. It was the fourth of the German operas to be sent broadcast by radio during the month, the previous ones having been "Flying Dutchman," "Die Walkuere" and "Meistersinger." Elsa Wuchler sang her namesake role as Thursday night, in place of Miss von Osten, ill for some days past. With her were Mme. Hoellischer, Messrs. Rutt, Lattermann and Lehmann, and Mr. Moerike conducted.

CECIL SPEAKS HERE APRIL 2

But Program for Lord Robert's Visit Has Not Been Definitely Settled.

Miss Christina Merriman, Secretary of the Foreign Policy Association, said last night that the full program for Lord Robert Cecil's visit to this country had not yet been definitely settled. He will sail for America on March 17 and will speak here at a dinner in the Hotel Astor on April 2.

He will also speak in Boston, Chicago and Philadelphia at public meetings, and possibly in Cincinnati. Lord Robert has been invited to speak at a number of universities, but just how many such invitations he can accept Miss Merriman did not know. He does not wish to make more than five public speeches. He will sail in time to be back in England on May 5.

He will discuss the League of Nations and the World Court, and may possibly talk a little on the Ruhr situation.

LONDON, March 5.—Lord Robert Cecil issued the following message today through the League of Nations Union in regard to his projected trip to the United States:

"I am receiving a large number of invitations by cable to address meetings in the United States and Canada. These I am quite unable to answer because I do not know what arrangements are being made for me on the other side by the Foreign Policy Association, at whose invitation I am going. I trust no one in the United States will think I am guilty of discourtesy in consequence."

JAILS KNIT GOODS PICKETS.

Three Get 10 Days Each for Causing Trouble in Factory.

The first jail sentences since the beginning of the knit goods workers' strike were imposed yesterday by Magistrate Kochanderfer in the Ridgewood Court. He imposed punishment of ten days in the workhouse on John Schinsel of 1,709 Gates Avenue, Peter Leinweber of 1,896 Stockholm Street and John Petsche of 796 Hart Street, Brooklyn.

The complainant was Michael Haug, owner of a knit goods mill at 590 Onderdonk Avenue, Ridgewood, who said that the three pickets entered his establishment last Friday and created trouble by attempting to induce his employes to strike.

BOLL WEEVIL CURB SUBJECT OF DISPUTE

Cotton Association Says It Dismissed Hutchison—He Says He Is Independent of It.

ST. MATTHEWS, S. C., March 5.—The appointment of Dr. Miller Reese Hutchison as director of scientific research of the American Cotton Association to conduct its national campaign for boll-weevil control has been revoked. The announcement was made by J. N. Wannamaker, President of the association, today, who said that it was opposed in to any organization in which the head has absolute power. The campaign, he added, would be continued with increased scope, and experiments would be conducted at 2,000 demonstration farms.

Dr. Hutchison's appointment, Mr. Wannamaker said, was revoked after careful investigation had convinced me that a monumental mistake had been made in selecting him for the position and a belief that it was not too late to remedy the mistake." He added that the association was opposed to any proposal by which any individual or interest would be enriched by "commercializing, monopolizing or exploiting any successful boll-weevil remedy—or any other human necessity."

Dr. Hutchison said yesterday that the nation campaign for boll-weevil control was in no way connected with or directed by the American Cotton Association, and the latter organization had no power to change its personnel.

"The national campaign," Dr. Hutchison said, "was launched by me at the Atlanta convention. It has the wholehearted support of Federal and State agricultural experiment and extension forces and of all associations connected with the cotton industry except the American Cotton Association, which withdrew from the campaign project after learning that it could not dominate the campaign and control its funds.

"This withdrawal of the American Cotton Association formally and automatically severed all relations between the American Cotton Association and myself, inasmuch as I had been unanimously elected President and managing director of the national campaign.

"Furthermore, I am in receipt of many communications congratulating the campaign upon being non-partisan, non-political and thoroughly national, in accordance with the unanimously expressed wishes of the Atlanta convention."

League Members Say Outsiders Make More Money.

PAPAKATING, N. J., March 5.—Robert V. Armstrong, President of the Dairymen's League Co-operative Association of Sussex County, said today he had received a bulletin from the league headquarters at Utica, N. Y., reporting that 411 farmers have withdrawn from the league. He said most of the withdrawals were from Sussex County. The total membership of the organization in three counties in New Jersey and two in Pennsylvania, was 2,500, Armstrong said.

The withdrawing farmers have voiced dissatisfaction with reductions in their receipts, a percentage being retained to finance the league. Farmers not in the pool, it is declared are making more money. The period for withdrawal is between Feb. 1 and 12 each year. Mr. Armstrong denied that the loss of membership would seriously affect the operation of the league.

REDS' EMIGRANT MONOPOLY.

Russian Volunteer Fleet Expected to Enjoy It to White Star's Hurt.

MOSCOW, March 5 (Associated Press).—The Concessions Committee of the Soviet Government has decided to support the plea of the Russian Volunteer Fleet for the exclusive right to do an emigrant business within Russia.

If this right is finally granted, the White Star Line and other foreign steamship agencies will not be permitted to have offices in Russia unless they reach an understanding with the Volunteer Fleet officials. Recently emigration of Russians to the United States has greatly increased.

Queensboro Chamber Nominates.

The Nomination Committee of the Queensboro Chamber of Commerce yesterday named George H. Willcockson, Vice President of the Loose-Wiles Biscuit Company, for President for the coming year to succeed William H. Johns, President for the last two years. Frank F. Adel of Ridgewood and John T. Harrison of Flushing were nominated as Vice Presidents. F. A. Rowley of Jamaica was renominated for the fifth time as Treasurer. The following were nominated for Directors for three years: Ray Palmer, Long Island City; Benjamin Kohn, Rockaway Beach; L. C. L. Smith, Long Island City; Stuard Hirschman, Manhattan; Percy G. James, and John J. Halleran, Flushing. The Nominating Committee included Elmer G. Story, F. Ray Howe, L. J. Towneley, Charles R. Bettes and George S. Downing. The election will be held on April 13.

Bleached Muslins Advanced.

A price of 20½ cents a yard has been put on "Fruit of the Loom" 4-4 bleached muslins, according to an announcement made yesterday by Converse & Co., selling agents for E. B. & R. Knight, Inc. The last previous price was 20 cents a yard. No specific deliveries for which the goods will be sold at the new figure were contained in the announcement, but the advance becomes effective immediately.

Stock Goods Situation.

Most of the woolen mills are said to have small amounts of stock goods of lightweight men's wear fabrics. In some patterns little or no goods are available, although there are buyers seeking them in the market. There is, however, some quantity of stock tropical worsteds available in from 9¼ to 10 ounce weights. In one instance yesterday an independent worsted concern offered these cloths at a range of $2.10 to $2.65, this entailing a reduction of from 5 to 15 cents per yard from the last advance the concern made.

Haberdashery Collections Better.

Wholesalers here say collections from men's furnishings retailers continues to show improvement. Complaints of slowness are met with to some extent, but, by comparison with last year at this time, show a marked falling off. During the past four to six weeks there is said to have been good payment of indebtedness, some of it extending prior to the holidays. Comparatively few additional accounts have been placed for collection by wholesalers with their credit association. This condition is expected to grow still more favorable with the approach of warmer weather, which will materially benefit haberdashery sales.

Has First Case in Sterling.

What is said to be the first "compact case" yet offered in sterling silver has been put on the market by a concern with local sales offices. It is meant to retail at $10, combines all the features of the cheaper cases with the durability and wearing qualities of sterling silver and is available in several engine-turned designs. The same firm will shortly put on the market another novelty in compact cases that will be entirely different from anything else offered in that line. It has also just brought out a line of etched sterling silver bangle bracelets, in one to six strands, to retail on the basis of 50 cents a strand. The bracelets are offered in three different patterns.

Clothiers After Sample Pieces.

Clothing manufacturers are pressing the mills to deliver sample pieces for their Fall lines as early as possible. Most of the wholesalers will have their men out on the road by the first week of April, while some of those for the specialty houses may go out even sooner. The mills have been hampered to some extent by the late opening date, but it is not expected now that there will be any serious delay in the delivery to the clothiers. There is much talk in the trade as to the advances that clothiers will show in their Fall lines. Wool goods factors still assert the advances should be small in keeping with the moderate rises in fabric costs. Just now, before action is taken by important Rochester and Chicago clothing firms, they are inclined to place the probable wholesale advance at about 15 per cent.

Egyptian Vanity Boxes.

In keeping with the trend toward things Egyptian is a line of new vanity boxes which is now being offered to the trade placing on the market. The boxes are covered with printed silk of Egyptian design in red, cocoa and black, and match very well with the new Spring dresses of this pattern which the younger girls will wear. Padding is placed between the outer silks and the wood of the box, this giving added resistance to wear. The interior is lined with colored moire, and four fittings in the form of a lipstick, powder puff, rouge and puff are provided, as well as a large mirror underneath the cover. The manufacturer says he has already had a large number of inquiries for the article, some of them from as far away as British Columbia. The wholesale price is $24 per dozen.

Prints Are Leading Features.

Showings of printed silks by retailers constitute the main feature of the week devoted to the National Exposition of Everything in Silk which began yesterday. Efforts are being directed more to the sale of these silks than the others because of their fresh novelty appeal, which appears to be making notable headway with the consuming public. The most colorful of the prints are highly favored in Paisley, Egyptian, Chinese, geometric or batik patterns on crepe de chine, radium, foulard or georgette grounds. Wholesalers find they are unable to make delivery of the popular Paisley crepe de chine in less than two weeks. In the solid color silks, flat crepes continue to dominate, but there is an active call for canton crepes, satin cantons and crepe romain. In these black is still the leading shade desired.

Gray Goods Sales Fair.

Fair activity on the part of buyers was noted in the local gray goods market yesterday. In the printcloth business done were sales of 39-inch 68-72s at 9¾ cents, 39½-inch 64-60s at 11½ cents, and Eastern 38½-inch 60-48s at 10 cents. Southern goods of the last-named construction were held at 9⅝ cents, though it was said to be possible that a few might still be had at 9¾ cents. Sheetings were quiet, with 37-inch 48-square four-yard cloths still holding at 12¾ cents. Business in lightweight sheetings was reported at 8¾ cents for 6.15s, 9½ cents for 5.50s and 10 ¼cents for 5-yard goods. For 72-60 ginghams checks 12¼ cents was the best that could be done by buyers. In the sateens trading was reported on the basis of 18¾ cents for some of the poorer makes of 39-inch 4.30s at 19 cents for goods of better quality.

Can Be Made to Pay.

Apropos of the article in Sunday's TIMES telling of the difficulties so many department stores are having in making their millinery section pay, to which was largely attributed the rapid growth of the operation of such sections by outside syndicates, the assertion was made yesterday that a millinery department, properly merchandised, could be made to produce a more than fair return on the money invested in it. The big problem is to keep the business balanced from month to month. In one case cited yesterday, the June business done in the millinery department, formerly represented only 3 to 4 per cent. of the year's total, whereas March sales ran to 11 per cent. The June business now runs about 8 per cent. of the annual total, and in dollars and cents the sales are greater than those of the pre-Easter month before the war. Careful merchandising did it.

Their Troubles Are Starting.

In addition to the production difficulties caused by the late placing of Spring orders by the jobbing trade, the troubles of the men's underwear manufacturers have been added to of late by the increased amount of sickness among their employes and the delays in rail traffic in various parts of the country. The traffic delays are due to the heavy snows and severe weather generally and, while the mild weather of the past week has helped to clear the situation somewhat, it was said yesterday that there is very likely to be a shortage of lightweight merchandise in the hands of many retailers when the consumer demand for this merchandise sets in. Of even more serious import is the amount of sickness among the mill operatives, as this directly lessens the production at a time when the manufacturers are striving to the best of their ability to meet the burden placed upon them.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The advance of prices continued on the Stock Exchange yesterday with another "million-shairs market" and a number of 1 to 3 point gains. These occurred almost entirely in the industrial shares; most of the railway stocks were slightly lower at the end, after a very light business. On the whole, the day's rise in the speculative stocks might most reasonably be ascribed to the momentum of speculation. There was nothing in the day's news which an advance of prices could be said to "reflect," except for the strength of the commodity markets, which is nothing new; the adjournment of Congress, which was foreordained, and a variety of hopeful published reviews of the business situation, which gave no information that was not known to Wall Street days or weeks ago.

Nevertheless, the mere fact of general agreement in drawing a cheerful picture is sometimes the strongest stimulus to a market and, when not accompanied by actual tightening of money, it becomes as much of a cause as visible changes for the better. In yesterday's money market there were no signs of anything more than completion of its adjustment to the Reserve Bank's 4½ per cent. rate. Adoption of the same rate yesterday by the San Francisco bank eliminated the 4 per cent. rediscount rate from all the Reserve districts. Yesterday's foreign exchange market for the most part repeated last week's inactivity. Decline of ⅜ cent in sterling brought that rate to the lowest since Feb. 19, two days before the high point of $4.72½ was touched.

The Department of Commerce yesterday gave out its figures of our November import trade by continents of origin. It reported the value of imports from Europe at the largest figure of any month in 1922, probably excepting September, on the eve of the new tariff. The total exceeds that of November, 1921, by $24,000,000 and that of November, 1920, by $12,000,000. Increased importations, from Europe as from other continents, are usual in the kind of American trade revival now under way; but so sweeping an increase, in immediate sequel to the Fordney tariff schedules, is at least striking. It will no doubt suggest to many minds that the new method of valuation prescribed for imported goods may have upset comparisons. The Department of Commerce holds that it has not; that wholesale prices in the country of origin are still the basis. This leaves the November figures an interesting puzzle.

The first of the monthly averages of American prices to be published, that of Dun's Review, showed yesterday an advance of 2% per cent. for February. The figure will seem small to people who had observed last month's rise of something like 6 per cent. in cotton, 14 in copper and 25 in sugar; but those were the high lights. The really significant facts about this "index number" are that the month's advance was the largest in a year past, except for October and February, 1922, and that the March average is the highest since that of Jan. 1, 1922.

Average prices by this computation stand 19¼ per cent. above the low level reached in the middle of 1921, although still 27½ per cent. below the high point of 1920. It is now possible to make a more exact comparison of the difference between the present English and American price averages, respectively, and those at the outbreak of the war. Last week's London Economist index number showed the March 1 English average to be 7% per cent. above Aug. 1, 1914. Compared with the same date the American average for March is 53½ per cent. higher. Comparison of index numbers drawn up on different systems cannot be exact, but the difference in this case is so considerable that only the discount on sterling would seem to be the means of keeping mutual trade in equilibrium.

EQUITABLE TRUST TO ABSORB BIG BANK

The Directors of the Equitable Trust Company and the Importers and Traders National Bank have completed plans for consolidation and formal announcements will be made soon to the stockholders of each institution. The trust company will acquire control of the bank, and two shares of Equitable Trust Stock and $400 in cash will be paid for each share of Importers and Traders Bank stock.

Directors of the Importers and Traders have already voted approval of the merger on these terms and the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors of the Equitable Trust has also accepted it. Action has not yet been taken by the full Directorate of the Equitable, but as its Executive Committee will recommend the consolidation to the entire board the vote of that body is considered as merely a formality which will be given as a matter of course. The Executive Committee will meet again today to consider additional details of the plan.

The consolidation of these two institutions constitutes the largest bank merger consummated in New York this year. With the Equitable's capital of $20,000,000 and the Importers and Traders' capital of $1,500,000 the combination will give a total capital of $21,500,000, while combined deposits will total $299,801,399. The combined surplus and undivided profits will be about $17,000,000.

The only other bank consolidation this year of large Wall Street institutions was the Irving Bank-Columbia Trust Company merger, details of which were worked out last year, although the consolidation did not become effective until a few weeks ago. The combined capital of these two banks stood at $17,500,000, with surplus and undivided profits of $10,500,000.

During the last two weeks the financial community has heard numerous rumors as to impending developments regarding the Importers and Traders and the Equitable Trust, but the principals of both banks declined then to discuss the situation. Previous to that time the name of the Importers and Traders had been associated with other Wall Street banks, prominent among which was the Chemical National Bank. H. H. Powell, President of the Importers and Traders, said then that his bank had received overtures from several institutions but that no conclusions had been reached.

Specialists in bank stocks have realized for a long time that a new development involving the Importers & Traders National Bank was brewing. The bank stock has had a healthy rise from the beginning of the year, and in recent weeks there has been a keen demand for it but a dearth of offerings. The stock yesterday closed at $695 bid and $730 asked, with no sales. Equitable Trust Company stock was $195 bid, $199 asked. The par value of each stock is $100 a share. It is said that the shares of the Importers & Traders are closely held, and while specialists say they have a formidable list of demands for the stock there have been few trades.

Officials Who Made the Deal.

Arthur W. Loasby, Senior Vice President of the Equitable has carried on the entire negotiations for his company, while the Importers & Traders has been represented in the bulk of the conferences by Edward Townsend, Chairman of the Board, and H. H. Powell, President. Mr. Loasby declined yesterday to discuss the situation.

At the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Equitable Trust Company today, to consider further details of the consolidation, Mr. Loasby will preside, as Alvin W. Krech, President, is in the South on a vacation. Mr. Loasby also presided at last week's meeting of the Executive Committee, which was also attended by the following members: Bertram Cutler of 26 Broadway, who represented the Rockefeller interests; Winslow S. Pierce of Pierce & Greer, and Henry E. Cooper, Vice President.

Many Directors Absent.

One factor which has delayed formal ratification of the plan of consolidation by the Equitable Board has been the absence of several members from the city, either on vacation or on account of sickness, which has prevented a quorum. There are thirty men on the board but at present there are not sixteen in the city. The Equitable officials will call a meeting of the board this week if possible, and obtain formal approval of the findings of the Executive Committee. No opposition whatever, is expected from any of the directors.

In Wall Street there was a well-defined rumor yesterday that Arthur W. Loasby was slated to head the consolidated administration and that Alvin W. Krech would be made Chairman. None of the directors would discuss this matter yesterday.

The Equitable Trust has a Colonial branch at 220 Broadway, within a short distance of the Importers & Traders' quarters at 247 Broadway. It is understood that tentative plans provide for the physical combination of these two places of business in 1924 or 1925. Meanwhile, it is understood, that it is proposed to allow all branches of the bank to function as at present. Details of possible changes of personnel have not been finally decided, but it is said that the two banks will probably operate temporarily largely in their present status.

According to the last statement the Importers and Traders' National Bank has a surplus and undivided profits of $8,500,000 and gross deposits of $29,257,000. The bank handles a large amount of commercial and industrial accounts. The Equitable, according to the last statement, had cash on hand and in banks of $30,302,923; exchanges for clearing house, $40,001,844; bills discounted, $50,847,389; time loans, $37,562,037; deposits, $270,544,399, and acceptances, $23,936,501.

Cotton Exchange Seat $30,000.

The New York Cotton Exchange membership of William R. Houston was sold yesterday to F. G. Brown, yesterday for $30,000, an advance of $1,000 over the last previous sale.

SEVEN COMPANIES DECLARE DIVIDENDS

Westinghouse Directors Decide on 35 Per Cent. on the Outstanding Capital Stock.

Several more important dividend announcements were made public yesterday by corporations whose stocks are listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Directors of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company, at their meeting held in Pittsburgh, declared a stock dividend of 35 per cent. on the present outstanding capital stock. This dividend is payable April 30 to stock of record March 29. Action on the quarterly cash dividend will be taken on March 15.

Loose Wiles Biscuit Company directors yesterday declared a dividend of $7 a share on account of cumulative dividends due on the second preferred stock, according to advices received in Wall Street yesterday from Kansas City. The dividend is payable May 1. At the same time the board declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on the first preferred stock, payable April 1.

Dividends were resumed yesterday on the capital stock of the Tennessee Copper and Chemical Corporation at a meeting held by the board in this city yesterday. The directors declared a dividend of 25 cents a share on the capital stock of the company, payable April 16 to stockholders of record March 30. No mention was made as to whether the dividend rate is quarterly.

All accumulated dividends due on the preferred stock of the Savannah Sugar Refining Company as a result of the action taken by the Board of Directors in declaring a 25 2-3 per cent dividend on this issue is payable in preferred stock at par. This dividend will pay the entire amount due on the preferred stock up to May 1, 1923. At the same time the directors declared the regular quarterly cash dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred stock, payable May 1 to stock of record March 15. The stock dividend is payable as of the same dates.

The Reece Buttonhole Machine Company yesterday declared an extra dividend of 2 per cent. on the company's capital stock in addition to the regular quarterly payment of 3 per cent. Directors of the Reece Folding Machine Company increased the quarterly dividend on its stock from ½ of 1 per cent. to 1 per cent, and the Reece International Company declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1 per cent. All dividends are payable April 2 to stock of record March 15.

White Eagle Oil Gives Report.

The White Eagle Oil and Refining Company reports net income for January of $218,000 before deducting reserves for depreciation, depletion, and Federal taxes. This compares with $164,000 for January of last year. During February of this year the company completed six producing wells, with a total initial production of 1310 barrels of oil per day.

Shonnard & Co. Give Clerks Bonus.

Because of the increase in stock transactions in Wall Street since the beginning of the year, a development which has made it necessary for clerks in the financial district to work until late at night, the partners of Shonnard & Co. have distributed a bonus of one week's salary to all employes.

LIMA LOCOMOTIVE INCOME DECREASES

The balance sheet on Dec. 31, 1922, showed net current assets of $7,756,887, against net current liabilities of only $2,315,019. The net current assets consisted mainly of cash, accounts receivable and inventories.

Joel S. Coffin, Chairman of Directors, in his statement to stockholders said, in part:

"The volume of business done was adversely affected by the industrial depression prevailing during the greater part of the year, and the consequent limited demand for locomotives. The gross income was $6,476,963 and the net income, after interest on bonds, $175,445. No reserve for Federal income taxes was necessary.

"The balance sheet shows a reduction of $763,026 in good-will, as compared with the amount on Dec. 31, 1921, property account having been correspondingly increased, following an appraisal of the company's plant and property. Unfilled orders on the books of the company at the close of the year amounted to $14,749,081, all for domestic railroads."

The Company will agree to reimburse the holders of the Series A Bonds, if requested within sixty days after payment, for the Pennsylvania Four Mill Tax and for the Connecticut Personal Property Tax not exceeding four mills per dollar per annum, and for the Massachusetts Income Tax on the interest not exceeding six percent of such interest per annum.

For detailed information regarding these Bonds, attention is directed to a letter of Mr. Samuel Insull, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Company, from which the following is summarized:

The Public Service Company of Northern Illinois operates in fifteen counties in northeastern Illinois, having a combined population, according to the 1920 census, of 1,156,677, excluding the City of Chicago. The Company supplies electric light and power, gas, water and heat. Consumers on December 31, 1922, numbered 220,160, an increase of 52% since December 31, 1916. The territory served surrounds the City of Chicago, and includes not only the suburban districts tributary to Chicago, but also one of the best manufacturing sections in the United States. On account of its nearness to a large central market, this district is an excellent market for light, power and industrial gas.

These Bonds, in the opinion of counsel, are secured by a first mortgage collateral lien on the proposed power plant (now under construction) of the Waukegan Generating Company through pledge of all the first mortgage bonds and all the capital stock of that company (except directors' qualifying shares). In addition the Bonds are secured by a direct mortgage lien on all of the Company's physical property now owned or hereafter acquired subject only to prior lien bonds at any time outstanding. At present there are $11,500,000 par value of the prior lien bonds pledged as additional security for the First Lien and Refunding Bonds and all prior lien bonds hereafter issued will also be pledged.

The First Lien and Refunding Bonds precede $10,000,000 outstanding Preferred Stock paying 6% dividends, and 157,753 shares of Common Stock paying $7 per share per annum, having a combined market value, as indicated by present quotations, of over $25,000,000.

For the year ended December 31, 1922, gross earnings were $14,225,115.82 and net earnings, before depreciation $5,007,865.33. The annual interest on the entire Funded Debt of the Company in the hands of the public, including these Bonds, requires $2,110,515.

The management is in the hands of experienced public utilities men, who have built up for the Company a well established and growing business, which is evidenced by the increasing popularity of the Company's service.

These Bonds are offered for delivery when, as and if issued and accepted by us and subject to approval of counsel. Temporary bonds or interim receipts later exchangeable for definitive bonds, will be ready for delivery on or about March 15, 1923. All statements herein are official or are based on information which we regard as reliable, and, while we do not guarantee them, they are the data upon which we have acted in the purchase of this security.

WOULD END BEARER BONDS.

French Parliament Disregards Government to Halt Tax Frauds.

PARIS, March 5 (Associated Press).—The Government was beaten this evening in a fight in the Chamber of Deputies against the Parliament's apparent disposition either to abolish bearer securities because of the alleged immense income tax frauds or else require the registration or endorsement of bearer securities in order to be able to trace their ownership.

The Finance Minister, M. de Lasteyrie, said he would oppose to the utmost the amendment to require the endorsement of bearer bonds, which the Chamber voted, 322 to 226, to consider as a possible measure, but without definitely increasing the tax yet in the budget.

"All foreign capital will leave France, and even much French wealth will be taken out," said M. de Lasteyrie in his uphill battle against the Chamber, which has been opposed to his plan to balance the budget by added taxation.

The Minister asserted that Italy was the only country that had attempted to abolish bearer securities, and Italy was obliged to abandon the plan. He begged the Chamber not to approve the amendment, which would unfavorably affect the French franc, seriously hamper business and in the end reduce the Government's income.

SEEK CO-OPERATION AT CHILE CONGRESS

WILL URGE CLOSER TIES

Political Issues to Be Discussed for First Time, Says Ex-Ambassador Fletcher.

Members of the United States delegation to the Fifth International Conference of American States, to be held shortly in Chile, were guests yesterday at a farewell luncheon in their honor given by the Pan-American Society of the United States at the Bankers' Club, Henry P. Fletcher, Ambassador to Belgium and Chairman of the delegation, and former Senator Pomerene of Ohio, a member of the delegation, explained the objects of the conference and pointed out the necessity of solidifying the ties between the republics of the two Americas. Severo Mallet-Prevost, President of the Society of the United States, presided.

Describing the Pan-American Conference as "designed to arouse in all the countries a spirit of co-operation mutually beneficial," Ambassador Fletcher said:

"This is the first conference at which political subjects will be discussed. We will take up the treaties and resolutions which have been adopted at previous conferences with the idea of having something done. Very often very pious resolutions are adopted and the matter rests for another year—for another five years—whatever it may be—and one of the first things we will try to do will be to have the conventions with regard to copyrights and trademarks, which were negotiated at the last conference, put in the way of adoption by the other States.

"The reorganization of the Pan American Union to make it a more efficient agency of American solidarity will engage our attention. The results of the Congress of Jurists at Rio de Janeiro on the codification of international law is another subject. The Pan-American agreement looking to co-operation on ocean and land transportation, intercontinental railways, motor transportation and airplane service also will come before us. Other subjects will be co-operation with regard to supervision of merchandise entering into international commerce, shipping and insurance documents, interpretation of maritime law, classification of merchandise, parcels post, convenient classification of passports and the closer association of the republics of the American continent, with a view of promoting common interests."

Export Price of Copper Advanced.

The export price of copper metal was advanced to 17½ cents c. i. f., European ports, yesterday, a gain of a fraction over the price quoted at the end of last week, the domestic price continues to be quoted at 17 cents, there being no change for several days. Sales continue on a fairly large scale, but not as large as were reported during the earlier days of last week.

Cigarette Sales Mount in Year.

The Tobacco Products Corporation reported yesterday that January sales of cigarettes had increased from 39.4 per cent. to 74 per cent., according to brands, over the sales for the same month last year.

Chicago North Shore Has Report.

The Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee Railroad reports gross operating revenue of $5,007,951 for the year ended Dec. 31, 1922, against $4,500,806 in 1921. Surplus after charges, taxes and other deductions amounted to $517,929, against $389,720.

AVERAGE PRICES UP 2⅝ PER CENT. IN FEBRUARY

The monthly index number of average commodity prices, published in Dun's Review and giving the figures as of March 1, shows an average increase of 2⅝ per cent. during the month of February. This is the largest increase of any month since last October, when the average advance was 5⅝ per cent. During the month of February it is shown that average prices advanced in all but one of the seven groups of commodities, the largest advance being in breadstuffs, metals and miscellaneous products. The only decline of the month was in meat products.

Dun's average on March 1 shows an advance of 12⅝ per cent. over the same date in 1922. As compared with the low point reached in the recent deflation of prices, on July 1, 1921, the increase has been 19½ per cent. From the high point of May 1, 1920, the March average shows a decline of 27⅜ per cent. Prices now stand 58½ per cent. higher than on Aug. 1, 1914.

TO BUILD RADIO STATION.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 5.—An important announcement regarding the projected imperial wireless chain was made by Premier Bonar Law in the House of Commons today. Replying to a question he said:

"In view of the developments in the science of wireless telegraphy and the other circumstances which have arisen since the late Government decided upon a policy of a state operated wireless chain, it is not considered necessary any longer to exclude private enterprise from participation in wireless telegraphy within the Empire.

"The Government has therefore decided to issue licenses for the construction of wireless stations in this country for communication with the Dominions, colonies and foreign cuntries, subject to the conditions necessary to secure British control and for suitable arrangements for handling the traffic.

"At the same time the Government has decided that it is necessary in the interests of national security that there should be a wireless station in this country capable of communicating with the Dominions, and owned and operated by private enterprise. A station of this kind will, therefore, be erected as early as possible, and it will be available for commercial traffic as well as for service messageges."

NEW RAILROAD LINK STARTED IN MEXICO

COST ABOUT $10,000,000

Julius Kruttschnitt Calls Undertaking an Epoch in History of Southern Country.

The first spike was driven yesterday in a railroad link which will connect the manufacturing region of Mexico with its agricultural and mining resources and which will also mark another step in fulfilling the dream of the late E. H. Harriman, who predicted that railroad trains would eventually connect New York City with Buenos Aires. The railroad link on which new construction has been started is 100 miles long and will, when completed, connect Tepic with La Quemada, thus opening the way for trains of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company of Mexico to run from the northern boundary through to the City of Mexico.

Details of the new construction work, which will cost between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000 and require three years to finish, were issued yesterday by Julius Kruttschnitt, President of the Southern Pacific system, who arrived here from the Pacific Coast. Mr. Kruttschnitt said the undertaking was epochal in the history of Mexico. The Southern Pacific had planned the system, which it now appears will be successfully completed, nearly twenty years ago, but due to revolutions in Mexico had not been able to carry it through. In commenting on the changed conditions of Mexico under the Obregon régime, Mr. Kruttschnitt said:

"Officials of the Mexican Government met us in the fairest and most statesmanlike spirit and with their assistance we expect to complete this important work within three years. Mexico is today a land of peace, and big strides have been made in the direction of prosperity. In fact I think I never saw Mexico looking more nearly at her best than I did on my trip over our lines which I completed recently. The people are apparently contented and employment has been thrown open to many thousands. Along the west coast, great irrigation projects are under way and one of these projects, in Sinaloa, will open up a territory with the richness of the Imperial Valley of California."

McCord Radiator Stock for Sale.

A new offer of 50,000 shares of McCord Radiator and Manufacturing Company Class A common stock is being offered today at $37 per share by a syndicate composed of John Burnham & Co., Inc., Chicago; Howe, Snow & Bertles, Inc.; McClure, Jones & Reed and Merrill, Lynch & Co.

C. McCord, President of the company, in a letter to the bankers, states that the company has recently been formed to take over the radiator, gasket and lubricator divisions of the McCord Manufacturing Company of New York. The firm's plants are located in Detroit and Wyandotte, Mich.; Plymouth, Ind., and Walkerville, Ont.

Philadelphia Co. to Vote on Bonds.

Stockholders of the Philadelphia Company will meet in Pittsburgh on May 8 to vote on the proposal to issue $10,000,000 of 5½ per cent. fifteen-year debentures, according to announcement yesterday. These bonds will be convertible at the holder's option into 6 per cent. cumulative preferred stock at the rate of twenty shares for each $1,000 bond.

PAPER PRICES ADVANCE.

Paper prices are continuing upward as a result of the increased demand for this product since the beginning of the year. Officials of the larger companies in this city asserted yesterday that while there was every possibility that prices would tend toward higher levels, there was no sign of a shortage. The labor situation at the mills is good, there being an absence of the agitation which was experienced during the war years and immediately following.

Book paper has advanced from $5 to $10 a ton since Jan. 1 and writing paper has advanced from $5 to $20 a ton, according to grade. Newsprint for spot delivery is now quoted at $40 a ton. Most of the newsprint, however, is sold on contract, the price on the latter business now being $75 a ton. In some cases consumers are assured of their requirements through 1923 at this price, although most of the contracts expire on July 1.

Paper officials yesterday said it would not be surprising if the contract price meets the current market price for newsprint at the middle of the year. No immediate advance in price is expected. Officials of the International Paper Company yesterday declined to make prediction regarding the immediate outlook for paper prices.

Great Northern Road to Burn Oil.

The Great Northern Railroad Company will replace its coal-burning locomotives in the Sunburst oil region of Montana with oil burners, according to announcement yesterday.

What Are These Bonds That Pay 7%?

A MAN came into our office the other day and told us that he was interested in first mortgage real estate bonds, especially because of their liberal interest rate and fine safety record. "But," he said, "I really don't know much about these bonds, how they are made, what special safeguards surround them, what the function of the banker is with regard to them. Frankly, I want to know their fine points, their innermost workings, before I invest."

We have published a booklet which was written to supply just the information which this investor demanded. Because we wanted to convey a clear and complete understanding of real estate bonds, this booklet deals with the "inside story" of these securities, giving details which the average outsider would probably never think of. And because we wanted the booklet to be read, we wrote it in as interesting, conversational style as we could command, and supplied illustrations. A number of newspapers have already published the material in this booklet, by arrangement with us. The coupon will bring to you, free and without obligation, a copy of "The Premier Investment."

Guaranty Service

Bank Loans and Banking Service

"THE FOUNDER of our business," said one of our depositors recently, "used his bank for commercial loans only. Making loans was about all the service a bank rendered in those days. We are carrying our account with the Guaranty today because we have found it helpful in a great many other ways than in giving us a line of credit."

One of the important factors which influence the placing of banking business is indicated in the remark quoted. Modern business is complex, and its financial operations are among its most intricate phases. This Company has developed a breadth of service which enables it to be of assistance in any phase of domestic financing, foreign trade banking, or corporate trust service.

The requirements of your business, including the establishment of your credit line in accordance with sound banking practice, can be met at any of the offices of this Company. We invite you to call and discuss banking matters with our officers.

Our booklet, "Specialized Service to Corporations," discusses our facilities from the viewpoint of their particular value to corporations and firms. It will be sent on request.

GOVERNMENT SUES BIG LUMBER FIRMS

NEW YORK MAN ACCUSED

Several Persons, Named in Civil Suit, Are Already Under Indictment on Criminal Charges.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—A bill in equity whereby the Government seeks to recover $1,500,000 from several lumber firms was filed by Attorney General Daugherty in the District of Columbia Supreme Court today. The suits grow out of alleged war frauds, the companies having sold lumber for camps and other Government construction. Some of the officials named in the civil suit already have been criminally indicted.

Persons and firms named in the bill filed today include J. L. Phillips, John Stephens, J. L. Phillips and John Stephens, copartners trading under the name of J. L. Phillips and John Stephens; Merchants and Manufacturers National Bank of Newark, N. J., a corporation, and Nellie Senft Chambers, executors of George M. Chambers, deceased; Frank T. Sullivan, Lee L. Herrell, Roland Perry, Gut Eitzen, Mitchell A. Touart Jr., Charles Phillips Jr., the Eitzen-Touart Company, J. L. Phillips & Co., a corporation, and the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland, a corporation.

J. L. Phillips is a lumberman of Thomasville, Ga., Philadelphia and New York. Stephens is President of the Stephens Lumber Company of Jacksonville, Fla.; the late George M. Chambers, a lumberman, of Newark, N. J., and formerly a Captain in the army and lumber expert of the War Department. Sullivan is a lumberman of Buffalo; Herrell and Perry are engaged in the lumber business in Washington, D. C. Eitzen and Touart are respectively President and Vice President of the Eitzen-Touart Company of Pensacola, Fla. Charles Phillips Jr. is a brother of J. L. Phillips, and now a resident of Atlanta, Ga.

The suit grows out of transactions in connection with the sale by the Government in 1919 of approximately 140,000,000 feet of lumber acquired for war purposes and as a result of which an indictment charging conspiracy to defraud the United States was returned last Summer by the Special War Frauds Grand Jury at Washington, against Phillips, Stephens Chambers, Sullivan Perry, Charles Phillips Jr., Eitzen and Touart, together with Ernest C. Morse and Charles S. Shotwell, formerly officials of the War Department.

The bill alleges, in effect, that after the armistice the Government contracted with Phillips and Stephens to sell the large surplus of Government lumber, and with Chambers to inspect and fix basic prices, but that, through a conspiracy, the three men and other defendants contained so that the lumber was priced below the base prices, and illegal profits and rebates were obtained by them.

The Government asks for an accounting for these profits and rebates and seeks to recover commissions paid to Philips, and rebates aggregating over $362,000. The Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland is made a defendant to enforce a surety bond in $500,000 executed by it in favor of the United States, conditioned upon the faithful performance of Phillips and Stephens of the terms of their contract with the Government.

Stock Retirement Rumored.

Directors of the Pittsburgh Coal Company are planning to retire the company's outstanding preferred stock, according to a rumor revived in the financial district yesterday. Reports to this effect have been circulated in the financial district frequently, but thus far nothing has materialized. It is now said that the board has a plan to present at the annual meeting of stockholders on March 20.

THREATENS TRANSIT SUIT.

The City of New York threatened the Transit Commission yesterday with a law suit for $21.51. Notice of this was received by the commission in a letter from the Acting Corporation Counsel, the last paragraph of which was as follows:

"Unless payment of $21.51 is received at the Law Department, Municipal Building, Borough of Manhattan, on or before March 10, 1923, an action will be instituted against you for the recovery of that sum, together with costs and disbursements."

The letter was referred to the commission's legal department. It was learned there that the $21.51 was the amount of a claim presented by the Borough President of Manhattan for resetting two manholes in front of 153 East Fifty-seventh Street. These manholes were part of the Fifty-seventh Street duct line, which is part of the railroad leased to the Interborough Rapid Transit Company. After their completion the Borough President changed the grade of the street, which necessitated raising the manholes to conform to the new grade.

When the Borough President submitted his bill, the counsel of the commission declined to allow it on the ground that the resetting of manholes was not a proper charge against rapid transit funds and that the work, having been made necessary by the city itself in changing the grade, should be paid for by the Borough President of Manhattan.

It was said at the offices of the commission that its counsel was now seeking to determine just how the City of New York could sue itself, as, should the claim be upheld, the bill would have to be transmitted by the commission to the City Controller for payment.

The Young Depositor and George Williams

From a letter in the archives of the Chemical National Bank

"When I started in business I sought the strongest bank in New York, but I had grave doubts whether such a big institution would consider a budding business man a desirable depositor.

"To my surprise the president, Mr. Williams, received me with genuine interest and cordiality. . . . . He took my hand and remarked in his quiet, kindly way: 'This bank has been built up by such men as you who have come to us when their beginnings were small and remained with us when their affairs grew large.'"

Close relationship between the Bank and its depositors has always been a prime consideration.

IRREGULAR ADVANCE IN COTTON MARKET

Liquidation in Some Months Brings Uneven Aspect to Day's Trading.

While new high levels were attained in the cotton market yesterday, advances proved uneven. Liquidation in May became quite general, so that instead of selling a cent over July trading occurred at a difference of only 65 points. An early rush of buying in new crops carried October to 27.20, a rise of 140 points from late quotations on Friday. This attracted a larger supply of contracts owing to the fact that the South is making every preparation to raise as large a crop this year as weather will permit. Sales of fertilizers are several times last year's total to date and Winter moisture has been unusually abundant in virtually all sections. Final prices showed a decline of 1 to an advance of 30 points.

As Liverpool made a full response to the sharp advance in American markets the latter part of the week, a further upward movement occurred in both new and old crop positions in early trading. At the start, March and May encountered enough contracts to retard the rise in near months, though July, October and December made new high records. Heavy trading took place in each of these three positions on the call, July gaining 30 points compared with an actual loss of 5 points in March. This tendency on the part of near positions to drag became the dominating feature of trading as the day wore on. July operations were on an increasing scale, demand for that month appearing on every slight reaction, regardless of relations with either May on the one side or October on the other. An aggressive buying wave in late months ran October 27 cents, 40 points over Saturday's close, though May showed a gain of only 12 points at the same time. Several brokers were engaged in selling out lines of May and purchasing late months at a difference of 4 cents or more. Above 27 cents the market ran into heavier new crop pressure.

Though reports from Southern points reflected no change in spot conditions and 31 cents was quoted at several markets, steady liquidation occurred in May throughout the session. May has been selling recently a cent over July, despite the fact that whatever scarcity of actual cotton develops as the season advances will be more acute in July than in May. With consumption now running over a million bales monthly, there will be 2,000,000 bales less actual cotton in July than in May, unless the advance in cost of raw material finally halts consumption materially. Steady pressure on May was attended with buying in July, resulting in a decrease of over 30 points in the May premium. A supply of May contracts came both from sellers against purchases of July and against purchases in the new crop. With the recent extreme premiums established on the May position operations of this nature were not unexpected. The fact that March in New Orleans sold over March in New York served to prevent declines of importance, though fluctuations increased and ranges 50 point changes took place during the day. The rush in July to a basis of 30¼ cents at midday attracted sufficient profit-taking to prevent any further upturn and later trading brought uncertain fluctuations, with final prices showing an actual loss of one point in May compared with a 33-point gain in the July position. New crops encountered selling pressure on every upturn during the afternoon.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Grain exports from the United States last week amounted to 8,740,000 bushels, compared with 4,851,000 for the week previous. Wheat exports to Europe also were heavy last week, the Continent and the United Kingdom each taking twice as much as they did the week before. Shipments of flour from the United States amounted to 433,800 barrels, against 284,500 barrels the week previous.

Total grain exports for the last week, as compared with those of the week before, were given by the department as follows:

MAY WHEAT REGAINS ALL OF ITS DECLINE

Indications Seen That Supply May Fall Below Last Year's Inadequate Total.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 5.—Liquidation has been on in grains for nearly three days, but the markets are in a rut and after a small dip early closed strong and at the finish May wheat had practically recovered all of the decline that resulted from the selling induced by the bearish statement issued by George E. Marcy and the bearish statistical position given to the trade in a statement on Saturday. At the close today wheat was 1 to 2 cents higher, corn up ⅞ to 1, oats ¼ to ⅞ and rye ½.

The Snow-Bartlett-Frazier Company report made farm reserves of wheat 153,000,000 bushels, or somewhat less than expected, comparing with 134,000,-000 bushels harvested last year. It was taken as indicating that domestic consumption is running around 83,000,000 bushels more this season than in 1921-22.

Commenting on the report, Mr. Snow says that on March 1 there were about 313,000,000 bushels of wheat to be accounted for, of which there are 54,000,000 in available supplies and around 104,-000,000 in country elevators and in mills outside of the points of large accumulation. Around 102,000,000 bushels are available for export during the next four months and for carryover into the new crop.

If the figures prove correct, he says that it would seef that actual supplies are smaller than was the case a year ago, the latter eventuality proving too low. A serious Winter wheat acreage loss is indicated and the condition of the plant is relatively low.

Export sales of around 500,000 bushels were largely of Manitobas. The visible supply increased 11,000 bushels for the week and the total is 47,507,000 bushels, compared with 47,496,000 the previous week and 40,055,000 last year.

Farm reserves of corn, as shown by the Snow report, are 1,101,000,000 bushels, or slightly larger than expected, compared with 1,306,000,000 bushels last year. Of oats, they are 448,000,000 bushels, against 412,000,000 last year.

On the basis of the Snow figures the Government should show around 429,-000,000 bushels of oats. Corn, he says, has been disappearing since harvest at practically the same rate as last year, the increased number of animals on feed being offset by greater economies on account of its higher price.

The bulk of the trade in corn and oats was of a local character, with a good class of buying in corn on resting orders on an early break. The visible supply of corn increased 2,269,000 bushels for this week and is 27,520,000, against 25,240,000 the previous week and 44,762,000 last year. Cash demand is only fair with a limited export business.

Primary receipts of wheat today were 1,574,000 bushels; week ago, 1,627,000; last year, 1,443,000 bushels. Shipments were 517,000 bushels; week ago, 616,000; last year, 605,000.

Corn receipts were 1,824,000 bushels; week ago, 2,821,000; last year, 2,295,000, and shipments, 664,000 bushels; week ago, 823,000; last year, 1,414,000.

GENERAL FIGHT FOLLOWS

One man required the services of a physician and a score of others suffered minor bruises and contusions in a free-for-all fight that started at a public meeting held under the auspices of the Citizens' Protest Committee last night in the Central Opera House in Sixty-seventh Street, near Third Avenue. The meeting, according to the police, was held to voice a public protest against the holding of a parade in this city on St. Patrick's Day.

There were about 800 persons, 600 of them women, at the meeting when the fight started, and at the height of the battle someone telephoned to the East Sixty-seventh Street Station that there was a riot in progress and Captain James Wall and ten policemen rushed to the scene. According to the police, the fight followed the demand of a man seated near the rear of the hall that an American flag be hung over the speaker's platform.

Daniel Crowley of 1,600 Lexington Avenue received lacerations of the forehead and contusions of the nose when attacked by several unidentified persons. Crowley was said by the police to have been the man who demanded that the American flag be displayed. Crowley was attended by a private physician and later taken home by his friends. He was unable to identify any of his assailants, the police said.

When Peter S. Colloran, Chairman, called the meeting to order, a man in the rear of the theatre arose and said:

"I don't see any American flag up in this hall. I think we should get one and put it up before we go any further."

"This is an Irish meeting."

Shouts of "yes" and "no" came from all parts of the house, according to the report to the police, and the argument became so heated that, amid the screams of some of the women, several of the men came to blows. In the melée that followed, it was said, a few chairs were thrown, but the only injury reported to the police was that of Crowley. When Captain Wall arrived with the reserves, the meeting quieted down and was continued. No arrests were made.

Another uproar started a few minutes later, according to the police, this time being caused by the suggestion of a man seated in the front of the hall that "Free Staters" should occupy the front seats and the "Irish Republicans" should stay in the rear. This uproar was confined to shouts, the police not finding it necessary to take action.

Among the speakers at the meeting were James Hayes and Egan Clancy, introduced as the brother of the former Lord Mayor Shaw of Limerick. According to the police the Citizens' Protest Committee is composed of members of the Society for the Recognition of the Irish Republic and was organized recently to protest against the St. Patrick's Day parade.

LEGION MEN CONFIDENT.

State Commander Expects Whole Legislative Program to Go Through.

ALBANY, March 5.—Governor Smith and members of the Legislature have shown a desire to assist in every way possible the ex-service men and women, and it is expected that virtually the entire legislative program of the American Legion will be enacted, it was said today by State Commander Albert S. Callan.

Adoption by the Legislature of a resolution providing for an amendment to the State Constitution permitting next year's Legislature to vote a bond issue for soldier bonus purposes without submission to the people for approval, and a $1,500,000 appropriation for a State military memorial hospital at King's Park are regarded as the most important measures endorsed by the legion, it is said in a report by Samuel E. Aronowitz of Albany, Chairman of the legion legislative committee.

Continuation of State relief work for ex-service men is provided in a bill calling for another $1,500,000 appropriation, according to the report. The fund would be used to aid veterans out of employment because of the service which are not receiving Federal compensation.

Preference for veterans in retention of positions is contained in the provisions of a Statewide civil service bill already reported favorably by the Senate Civil Service Committee, the report said.

Other legislation sought by the legion would further Americanization by making the teaching of patriotism through knowledge of American history and the Constitution mandatory in every school in New York State; examining history text books now used and discarding those which tend to spread foreign propaganda, and making the State Board of Regents the sole examining authorities in determining the literacy of new voters.

PAPAL NUNCIO FOR DUBLIN?

Irish in Paris Hear Mgr. Luzio Will Soon Be Sent to Ireland.

PARIS, March 5 (Associated Press).—The Vatican is about to send Mgr. Luzio of the Sacred Congregation at an early date to Ireland, according to information reaching circles in Pais. The matter is being kept secret as fa as possible, but the object of Mgr. Luzio's visit, it is asserted, is to smooth over the difficulties between the Irish bishops and the Republicans.

It is expected that the bishops will make no objection to the appointment of an apostolic delegate at Dublin. Moreover, it is felt that such an appointment would greatly strengthen the Government, which seeks diplomatic recognition, although the constitution makes no provision for this.

COAL OFFICIALS SAY DEALERS HAVE FUEL

Administrator's Office Finds All Now Supplied — Goethals Has a Conference.

All coal dealers in Manhattan and the Bronx now are supplied with coal, it was said yesterday at the offices of the State Fuel Administration, 165 Broadway. Shipments for twelve dealers in Brooklyn, who had complained of not being able to get coal last week, were said either to have been received or to be on the way.

General George W. Goethals, State Fuel Administrator; F. R. Wadleigh, Federal Fuel Distributer, and a representative from the office of C. B. Kilmer, District Fuel Administrator at Saratoga, held an executive conference yesterday at 165 Broadway. The fuel officials declined to discuss the conference.

The number of emergency appeals received and investigated by the police and health departments since Saturday was eighty-one, the lowest since the administration began to function. On these complaints seventy orders were issued for delivery today.

Eight coal dealers were held for Special Sessions in $25 bail each by Magistrate Richard F. McKinley in Jefferson Market Court for violation of the State Fuel Administration orders that all coal containers holding less than 200 pounds should be plainly marked with the amount of coal offered for sale. They were arrested by Inspectors Frederick Dammonn and Edward J. Coughlin of the Bureau of Weights and Measures.

They were: Thomas Lazozoni, 26 years old, of 51 Bank Street; Leo Calukol, 24 years old, 322 West Twenty-first Street; Frank Scaransello, 57 years old, 333 West Twenty-sixth Street; Domenick Errico, 33 years old, 95 Perry Street; Lawrence Lorusso, 14 years old, 335 Bedford Street; Dick Savino, 38 years old, 516 142d Street; Staffano Morea, 69 years old, 171 West Fourth Street, and Antony Gracone, 28 years old, 339 West Seventeenth Street.

NEW NASSAU CHARTER READY FOR ASSEMBLY

Provides for County President and Health, Police and Welfare Commissioners.

MINEOLA, L. I., March 3.—The Nassau County Charter Commission, through its Chairman, William S. Pettit, submitted its preliminary report today to the County Board of Supervisors here. The commission was appointed in December, 1921, and has held thirty public meetings and examined numerous systems of county government in all parts of the country.

The new charter, which will be introduced at Albany tomorrow by Assemblyman Thomas A. McWhinney of Nassau County, provides for a County President, who will appoint the departmental heads, subject to approval of the County Board of Supervisors. The County President will be Chairman of the Board of Supervisors, with veto power, which may be overridden by a two-thirds vote of the Supervisors. The charter calls for a county police force under a County Police Commissioner with countywide jurisdiction. In its report the commission says:

"The Charter Commission has found many public officials of ability who are inefficient because they are working under obsolete and antiquated laws. This is true particularly of constables, Justices of the Peace, Boards of Assessment and Overseers of the Poor."

The charter abolishes Justices of the Peace, of whom there are twelve in the county, and establishes four local court districts. Other provisions are for a Department of Health to supplant the present health officers, a Department of Public Welfare in place of Overseers of the poor, Planning and Zoning Board, and a Department of Public Works and Town Directors.

If the charter is approved by the Legislature, it will be submitted to the voters here at the next general election, after which, if successful, it will be returned to the Legislature for final passage.

KING GUSTAVE IN BRUSSELS.

Branting's Absence Discounts Ruhr Mediation Rumor.

Following a review of the entire garrison, which saluted the royal guest with an artillery salvo, the two Kings drove to the palace through streets lined with cheering throngs.

The absence of the Swedish Premier and Foreign Minister, Hialmar Branting, from the King's party was accepted as a contradiction of the rumors that King Gustave's visit was intended to pave the way for mediation in the Ruhr.

FRENCH ALERT ON RUSSIA.

Maklakoff Raises New Hopes of a Stable Basis There.

PARIS, March 5.—The belief of Basile Maklakoff that reconstruction will be possible in Russia when the moderates gain control of the Soviet Government and carry out essential reforms was commented on today by representative Frenchmen as indicating a new orientation of the Russian problem, which is beginning to attract fresh attention here. Maklakoff, who was appointed Ambassador to France under the Kerensky regime, is a well-known Constitutional Democrat.

France, perhaps more than any other nation, desires to resume relations with Russia when such a step becomes possible. There is a widespread view in this country that this should be done at the earliest practicable moment, for a large number of Russian bonds are held by the French public, especially by the peasant and working classes. These security holders exert a continuous pressure upon their representatives in Parliament to insure protection of their interests.

The difficulty is in the Soviet Government's refusal to recognize the old foreign debt. The Bolshevist suggestion that The Hague conference be permitted to deal directly with the French bondholders over the head of the French Government is interpreted here as an obvious attempt to extend Soviet propaganda.

The announcement that American Congressmen are planning to visit Russia has also served to revive interest in that country. Although absorbed in the Ruhr, it is regarded as likely that France will give renewed study to developments in Russia.

RESCUES SHIP'S CREW ADRIFT ON ICE FLOES

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., March 5.—Adrift on ice floes and facing momentary death, the crew of the three-masted British schooner A. B. Barteaux, from Perth Amboy, N. J., was rescued by the Norwegian steamer Hauk off the Newfoundland coast yesterday, after the British vessel had foundered, a radio message received here today said.

The story of the rescue was relayed by the steamer Silvia, due here tonight from Halifax, which said she spoke to the Norwegian steamer today and learned of the loss of the schooner in the heavy ice and the perilous plight of the sailors on the drifting floes. The Hauk, fifteen days from Sydney to St. John's, coal laden, took the men from the ice after the crew's desperate signals attracted the attention of the Norwegian vessel.

The message from the Silvia said that a number of the rescued men were suffering from severe frost bite as a result of their exposure on the ice floes.

The crew of the Newfoundland schooner James O'Neill, salt laden, from Oporto, was rescued off Cape Race yesterday by the steamer Bel Vernon, which arrived here today from Boston and Halifax, after the schooner was crushed by ice floes. The crew said that the vessel sank twenty minutes after they took to the life boats.

The Canadian ice breaker Stanley, which yesterday took in tow the French steamer Pro Patria, from Halifax for St. Pierre, Miquelon, which was disabled and short of provisions, reported by wireless today that the two ships were encountering stormy weather and that it would probably be tomorrow before they would succeed in reaching St. Pierre. The Pro Patria sailed from Halifax on Feb. 20, and nine days ago reported all dinners and all saying that the vessel was short of water. The French steamer, which carried ten passengers and mail, was caught in ice floes and only escaped after her propeller blades were broken.

TWO HERRIN MINERS NAMED AS SLAYERS

SAW WOUNDED MAN KILLED

Witness Said Mine Workers Were First Attacked When Shots Were Fired From the Pits.

MARION, Ill., March 5 (Associated Press).—Still bearing the scars of his wounds, William Cairns, one of the survivors of the Herrin riots, took the witness stand today at the trial of six men charged with murder in connection with the outbreak, and pointed out three of the defendants as either having taken part in the tragedy or been at the scene with guns in their hands.

While lying beneath a barbed wire fence with seventeen buck shot in his back and a bullet in his side, the witness testified that he had seen Phillip Fontannetta, the youngest of the defendants, walk up to John Shoemaker, Assistant Superintendent of the mine where the trouble started, who was lying near by badly wounded but still breathing.

Just before the shooting began, the witness said an automobile drove up to the crowd that was escorting some fifty unarmed prisoners taken from the mine, and he heard some one shout: "Here comes Willis."

Hugh Willis, State Board member of the Illinois Mine Workers, is one of the men on trial charged with the slaying of Antonio Mulkovitch, one of the twenty-two non-union workers killed during the riots. Cairns said that he could not identify any one in the automobile.

The witness testified that the workers and armed guards in the mine of the Southern Illinois Coal Company had been attacked early in the afternoon of June 21, the first shots being fired from outside the pit.

He declared the defenders raised a white flag about 5 o'clock that afternoon but that the firing continued during the night. The fire, he said, was returned from the pit but the next morning about fifty men remaining in the mine, a score having fled during the night, laid down their arms and surrendered.

"I heard one of the armed men who marched us out say that we were to be put aboard a train and sent out of the county," the witness said. "But we were marched up the road and I saw C. K. McDowell led away by two men, one of whom was Otis Clark.

"A little further on I heard a man say 'they all ought to be hanged.' And a negro who carried a gun and wore a battered army helmet replied: 'Well, we're going to fix 'em!'"

The witness then stood up and pointed out one of the defendants, James Brown, as the man who made the statement. Clark, who was acquitted at his first trial on a charge of having slain Howard Hoffman, another victim of the riots, also is a defendant in the present case.

Continuing his testimony, Cairns asserted that the prisoners were then lined up before a barbed-wire fence and the shooting began. He said he tried to crawl through the fence, but pulled it over and lay face downward on the ground while the crowd chased the fleeing prisoners.

"While I was lying there," he said, "I saw a wounded man leaning against a tree with his blood-streaked face on his arm. A couple of men with guns came up and said to him: 'You big —— can't we kill you,' and fired into his body."

PICKPOCKETS IN SUBWAY.

Policeman Gets Man He Charges Had Hand in His Overcoat.

Two suspected pickpockets were arrested at the Ninety-sixth Street subway station last night and taken to Police Headquarters charged with attempted grand larceny. One was accused of trying to take a policeman's shield.

Policeman George Platt, in civilian clothes, was on a Broadway express, and he said that as the train neared Ninety-sixth Street he felt somebody investigating his overcoat pocket, in which was his shield and 92 cents. He said he grabbed the hand and arrested Julius Rice, 1,578 Union Street, Brooklyn.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., March 5.—In a declaration filed here today in the Superior Court in a suit for $30,000 by the Fidelity & Deposit Company of Maryland against David Lamar, now a fugitive, and his wife, Mrs. Lamar swore she had assets of $210,000 and liabilities of $20,000. CHICAGO BANDIT CAUGHT.

But Companion Escapes With $70,000 Jewels Taken in Hold-Up.

CHICAGO, March 5.—A bandit was captured today who, with a companion, held up the offices of the K. Massover Company, manufacturing jewelers, and fled with diamonds valued at between $50,000 and $75,000. Jewels worth $5,000 were found on him. His companion escaped, presumably with the rest of the loot.

There was a wild scramble in the elevators of the building when the bandits fled from the jewelry company's offices. They ran through a department store, upsetting women shoppers and creating a melee in which traffic policemen and store detectives joined.

COLUMBIA TO TEACH PRACTICAL POLITICS

Course of Lectures by Party Workers Will Open Tomorrow Evening.

Democratic and Republican workers have been enlisted by Columbia University as lecturers in a new course styled "Practical Politics," said Prof. James C. Egbert, director of University Extension, yesterday. Men and women prominent in both parties will make up the lecturing staff.

The first lecture will be given on Wednesday evening, March 7, by Herbert C. Pell Jr., former member of Congress and Chairman of the Democratic State Committee. Mr. Pell will outline the Governments of New York State and city and describe the organization of the major and minor parties.

William Allen, Chairman of the Executive Committee of Tammany Hall and Democratic leader of the Nineteenth Assembly District, will speak on March 14, his topic being "The Work of the District Leader." The lectures will be continued every Wednesday evening until April 25, and will be under the chairmanship of Schuyler C. Wallace of the Columbia Department of Government.

"The course," Mr. Wallace explained, "is designed to introduce the student to the realities of political life. Mr. Pell's introductory lecture will briefly outline an attempt to indicate the place of the party in our governmental system.

"The two evenings will be given to the functions of political clubs. The activities of these organizations will be discussed and their potentialities considered. In this connection the work of the district leader and the work of the woman associate leader occupy a prominent place.

"The place of women in politics will also receive consideration here. The fourth lecture will be devoted to the mechanics of nominations and elections. The three lectures which follow will deal with the work of legislative bodies. Both the Board of Aldermen and the New York Legislature will be studied. The place of each in the governmental system will be described, and the procedure and organization of the three houses taken up in considerable detail.

"The work on the floor of the Legislature and in the various committees will be fully treated. The final lecture in the series will deal with means whereby the Legislature quickly can marshal all available information upon any subject that is up before the legislator and obtain various other aids in his legislative work."

Mr. Allen in his lecture on March 4 will picture "the path to leadership and the methods by which leadership is achieved." He will tell of the task of the leader in "keeping his ear to the ground."

Other speakers, Professor Egbert said, would be announced later.

BRONXVILLE!
When the prices become public, when the facts become known, and this chance is gone, Westchester's greatest homesite opportunity (1-3 acre up, plots) will be recognized by suburban buyers, too late!

In dead of winter, in urgent haste, with care not to let this forced sale liquidation improperly affect open market values of adjacent realty, we are moving this sale of preferred homesites to a close, at a price WAY below the present value! Superb sites NOW!—at a fractional price! Ward Carpenter & Co., White Plains, N. Y. Tel. 2442 White Plains.

SALESMEN.

An established brokerage company is ready to engage a few men immediately in the financing of a going industrial organization now in production, whose business has elicited the unreserved approval of one of the ablest groups of engineers and business men in the country.

We do not want men who feel that their previous experience in this field entitles them to immediate placement in radical promotions.

We want a man to go out and sell a clean-cut legitimate business, from which the major hazards normally present in a new undertaking have been removed.

The opportunity open to the man selected reaches out into these large, strong corporations. If it develops that you are fitted to make financial work your permanent calling, you will have an enviable opportunity to advance to a permanent executive position in a soundly organized brokerage house. On the other hand, if your future does not lie in that work lucrative commercial positions will be open to you in two different companies with a wide executive need. In the meantime the work will provide you with an immediate commission income.

Whether or not you have had experience in financial work is immaterial. We shall provide a thorough training which is in itself invaluable. Our chief concern is to know that the man we engage is of unquestioned integrity and a sincere willingness to develop on a permanent basis in some branch of our business. S 14 Times.

FUERSTS ARE NOT GUILTY.

Jersey Jury Fails to Sustain Robbery and Assault Charges.

MAYS LANDING, N. J., March 5.—Milton and Julius Fuerst, restaurant proprietors of 15 Bowery, New York City, were found not guilty today by a jury in the Criminal Court before County Judge W. H. Smathers, when tried on indictments charging robbery and assault and battery. The complainants were Mrs. Florence Suter of 341 East Seventy-seventh Street, New York, and Samuel Horowitz of the same address.

Joseph Perski, attorney for the defendants, said the whole case was a "frame up." The offense was alleged to have occurred here last Summer at Grossman's Hotel on New Jersey Avenue. Horowitz said he went to Mrs. Suter's room to obtain a shawl for her. There, he declares, he was attacked by two men and bound. Mrs. Suter also said she followed him and was tied and gagged and a diamond ring and a diamond brooch were taken from her.

Old Employe of Macy's Honored.

James Woods, for fifty years an employe in the delivery department of R. H. Macy & Co., Inc., was the guest of honor at a dinner given by his fellow-employes at the Hotel Breslin on Saturday night. A diamond ring was presented to him.

CONTROLLER SMILES AT HYLAN FEUD VIEW

Mayor and Craig May Face Each Other Tomorrow for First Time Since Controversy.

BOTH IN FIGHTING CONDITION

Gen. Allen One of First Callers on Executive After Return From Vacation.

If appearances count for anything, both Mayor Hylan and Controller Craig are in fit physical condition to continue the warfare which was started between the two city officials when the Mayor left for Palm Beach, Fla., more than a month ago.

The Mayor reached the City Hall yesterday morning at 8:50 o'clock. He mounted the steps and trod the corridor to his office with every appearance of being in tip-top condition. He admittted he had lost four pounds in weight since his departure, and said he felt better for it. He would not discuss his fued with the Controller, nor add anything to his statement of Sunday that "Craig is a sick man and I can't hit a man when he's down."

The Controller, who had a slight attack of laryngitis, had fully recovered and felt in splendid condition. He smiled rather grimly when he was asked if he had any comment to make about the Mayor's remark about him.

"All I have to say in answer to the Mayor's statement," said the Controller, "is that I have been right on the job during his vacation, performing my official duties as Controller, and hope to continue to do so. Hylan is having his warfare carried on by the three H's—Hearst, Hulbert and Hirshfield. He can afford to stand by and see if they get him any results."

The first opportunity the two officials will have to meet face to face will be tomorrow when the Board of Estimate meets as a committee of the whole. The board will hold its regular meeting on Friday.

During the day the Mayor received a visit from Maj.-Gen. Henry T. Allen, commander of the military forces in Germany, who returned to New York last Saturday. He was accompanied to City Hall by a personal friend.

"We had a pleasant chat with Mayor Hylan," said General Allen when he left. "He is a husky Mayor, a regular he-man, just what you need in this big city."

BATTEN

Who is going to tell her?

SHE knows very, very little, and there is so much that she must learn.

So much, that if the future should lift its veil and show her the onrushing horde of questions that she must face in the next twenty-odd years, she would probably lift up her voice and tell the world her decision to quit right now and here.

Who is going to tell her?

Mother and Father and playmates and teachers and books and nature will carry her far along the toilsome road to ladyship.

But she must also be home-maker and stewardess of the family budget. In that sphere she will be guided largely by advertising. Good food, good clothing, good furnishings, good values for her household and children—these she will learn from advertising.

To teach her to want a better home and to make a better home for her children than even her mother made—that is truly shaping public opinion. That is the work of advertising.

Perhaps she will need some of your wares. Who is going to tell her?

Once a month, or more frequently, we issue a publication called Batten's Wedge. Each issue is devoted to a single editorial on some phase of business. If you are a business executive and would like to receive copies, write us.
